McCloskey Foiled On Bid For Backer

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The Republican party met for the 30th time in presidential convention today, to renominate President Nixon and to give Vice President Spiro T. Agnew a boost that could make him the presidential candidate four years from now. (See related stories, page 2).

The party that sprang from Abraham Lincoln in the shadow of the Civil War gavelled its 1,348 well-groomed and governed delegates to order in the same flag-decked convention hall where the Democrats held their free-wheeling conclave last month.

Three hours before Chairman Robert J. Dole gaveled the convention to order, convention leaders handed a final rebuff to liberal, antiwar dissident Paul N. McCloskey.

The Credentials Committee refused to seat a delegate from New Mexico supporting the California congressman, ending probably the last chance that any dissent will be raised against Nixon from the floor of the three-day meeting.

The renomination of both Nixon and Agnew was a formality to be made official on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. For Agnew it was also a potential first step on the road to his own presidential nomination—a trail devoid for now of potential challengers and free of any full scale effort to give the party a more liberal base.

Agnew did nothing to dampen the hopes of many party conservatives that he might capture the presidential nomination in 1976 just as Nixon inherited it from Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1968. He said he was "pleased" at the speculation.

The Republican squabbling was mere shadow boxing compared to the savage infighting between Democrats Hubert H. Humphrey and George S. McGovern which shook this tropical spit of land six weeks ago.

The White House worked to keep the feud backstage but the liberals threatened to carry it to the convention floor before the news-hungry eyes of television.

But confidence flowered anew in the August heat with the arrival of two respected polls showing Nixon's margin over McGovern widening and 30 to 40 per cent of registered Democrats declaring themselves ready to vote Republican.

Only six appeared Sunday when Mayor Edward Bivens Jr. of Inkster, Mich., a Negro, called a caucus of the 56 black delegates and 84 alternates with the intention of demanding the resignation of GOP National Chairman Robert Dole on grounds he was indifferent to women and blacks. Even fewer showed up at a second meeting.

Outside the pastel Fontainbleau Hotel, 500 anti-establishment protestors tried to disrupt Sunday night's $500-a-ticket gala honoring First Lady Pat Nixon.

An army of troopers and police scattered them after they struck out at, kicked, spat on and cursed party-goers in fancy dress.

"They wanted to kill me," protested an outraged Anna Maria Alba of Beverly Hills, Calif., the Argentine-born owner of a cosmetics firm.

She showed reporters the torn sleeve of her lace gown. "They called me a pig—a Nixon lover," she said. "They threw eggs on me. It's embarrassing."

The festivities went on anyway, raising $800,000.

Tonight, Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, the Senate's only Negro, Mrs. Anne Armstrong, party co-chairman, and youthful Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis are to deliver three keynote addresses followed by actor Jimmy Stewart's tribute to Pat Nixon.

Nixon will be renominated Tuesday and Agnew Wednesday.

Agnew, arriving Sunday, was met by a throng of youthful supporters.

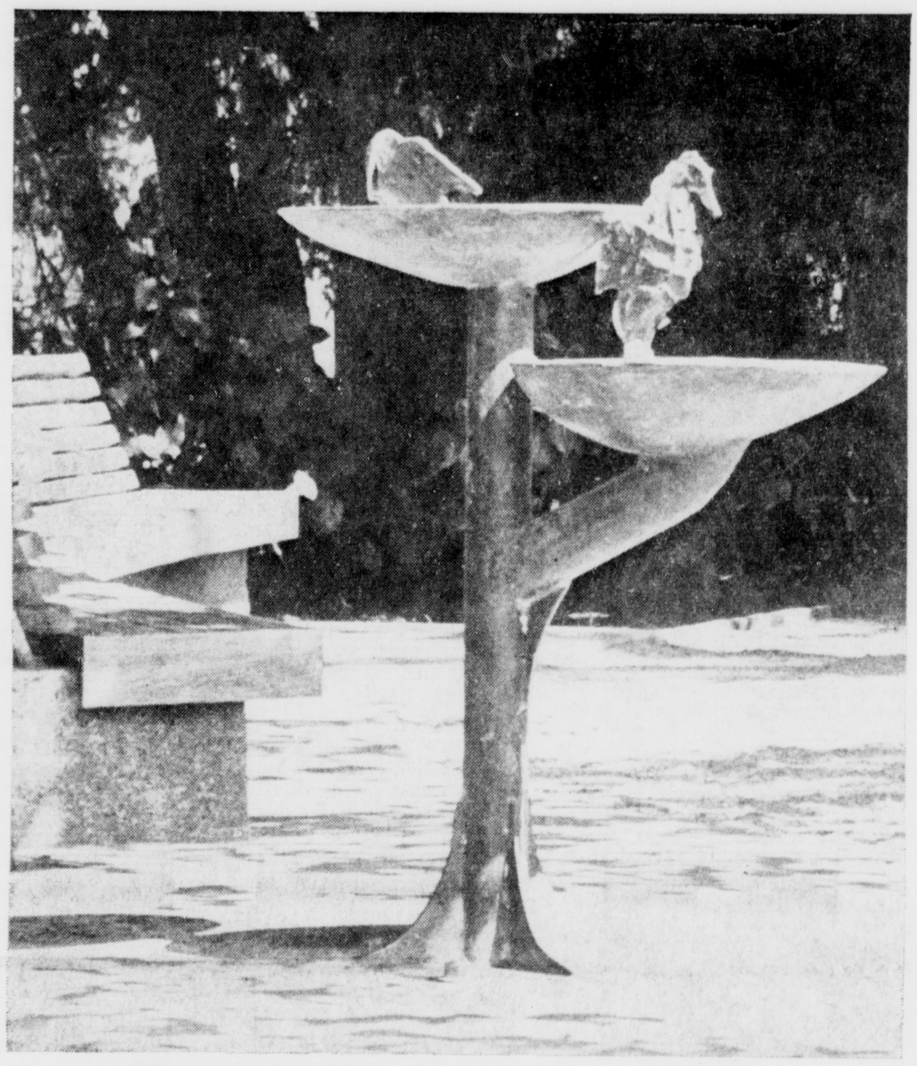

He told reporters he was "pleased" with a Miami Herald poll showing him the favorite among 36 per cent of delegates expressing a preference for a 1976 candidate.

"This doesn't mean that I've decided to seek the presidency," Agnew said. "But I'm keeping the options open."

Another conservative, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who will be 65 in 1976, kept the door open to a candidacy then. "I don't think you kiss anybody off because they're too young or too old," he said.

Against this competition, the liberals and moderates named

CESARE BETTINI FOUNTAIN STOLEN

This 300-pound, cast bronze fountain dedicated to the memory of Cesare Bettini stood until this weekend in San Rafael's Gerstle Park. The elaborate work, from which water spouted from sea horse figurines, was taken by thieves who loosened its base bolts, according to Scott Tilden, parks supervisor. The fountain, valued at about $1,000, was dedicated six years ago to the late Gerstle Estate gardener, father of San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

AT CAMP DAVID

Nixon, Kissinger Confer; San Diego Visit Planned

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, planning to do some post-convention politicking, will stop in San Diego for an airport rally Thursday en route to the western White House, it was learned today.

According to a White House official, Nixon will land at San Diego airport rather than the El Toro Marine Air Station, his usual landing field on trips to San Clemente.

Earlier in the day Nixon is scheduled to address the American Legion convention in Chicago and dedicate the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School in Utica, Mich.

Nixon will remain at San Clemente until Labor Day with the exception of a two-day side trip to Honolulu to meet with Japanese Prime Minister Tanaka.

Kissinger flew to Camp David after arriving in Washington Saturday from talks last week in Paris with Hanoi's peace negotiator, Le Duc Tho, and in Saigon with South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Nixon and Kissinger were joined at dinner Sunday by Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Radio Hanoi reported Sunday that Kissinger's trip to Saigon was a "cunning trick" to give the illusion that major changes were developing at the peace talks.

Between meetings with Kissinger, Nixon enacted a bill providing $1.6 billion in disaster relief for victims of tropical storm Agnes, the most widespread natural disaster in U. S. history.

"The job yet ahead requires persistence, courage and cooperation," Nixon said in a statement. "I know the citizens of the badly demanded communities have all of these."

The measure, approved by Congress last week, includes $1.3 billion for low-interest loans to an estimated 115,000 homeowners and 6,000 businessmen in the seven eastern states hit hardest by flooding in June.

Nixon also put the finishing touches on the acceptance speech he will deliver to the Republican National Convention Wenesday, and telephoned First Lady Pat Nixon before she left the White House Sunday for Miami Beach.

"Meet as many people as possible," Mrs. Nixon quoted her husband. "And tell the young volunteers how much I appreciate their efforts."

McGovern Hits Nixon On Flood Handling

McGovern, contending that the administration had been sluggish in responding to housing needs of devastated communities in the East, planned to inspect the damage here and in nearby Kingston. He will meet with angry Pennsylvanians who claim the federal government has been slow in meeting their needs.

McGovern earlier wrote to Wilkes-Barre City Manager Bernard J. Gallagher charging that the administration was "quick to bail out the Lockheed Corp. and the Penn Central Railroad, yet unwilling to serve the immediate needs of Pennsylvania's flood victims."

President Nixon signed a $1.6 billion bill Sunday at Camp David to provide aid to victims of tropical storm Agnes in the East and flood victims in South Dakota.

Starting the third week of his campaign, McGovern also planned to set foot in Illinois and Texas today as he struggled t narrow a large deficit in public opinion polls in his race with Nixon.

Following an airport rally in Decatur, Ill., the Democratic nominee will fly to Austin, Tex., for a reunion Tuesday with former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson, despite his bitter clash with McGovern over the Vietnam war when he was in the White House, endorsed McGovern last week.

Wednesday McGovern will be in Chicago for what he hopes will be a reconciliation meeeting with Mayor Richard J. Daley.

McGovern said today if the United States would suspend the Vietnam War for two days it could rebuild the flood-destroyed areas of Wilkes-Barre.

"We are bombing dikes in Haiphong when we should be building dikes in Pennsylvania," the Democratic presidential candidate told a young couple outside their home in the suburb of Kingston.

"One or two days of the war could rebuild this area."

McGovern made the remark as he stood in front of the Kingston home of Vincent Goulston. Three-fourths of the home had collapsed into a crater. The home was a few hundred feet from a dike on the Susquehanna River, which overflowed during tropical storm Agnes last June.

"It's like a war, but thank God there is no loss of life," McGovern said.

Red Troops Launch Da Nang Offensive

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops backed by tanks and accurate 130mm long-range artillery moved up the Que Son Valley closer to Da Nang and the huge American airbase today. U.S. planes retaliated in waves to try to stop the advance and a possible attack on South Vietnam's second largest city.

Military spokesmen said American fighter-bombers destroyed two Communist tanks 15 miles south of the city Sunday, while other warplanes bombed four of the 130mm guns —the largest artillery piece in the Communist arsenal. The guns, which have a range of 17 miles, were spotted about 30 miles south of Da Nang.

Neither tanks nor the big guns had been seen in the Da Nang area until the Communists Saturday overran the valley Saturday, capturing the district (county) capital of Que Son, 30 miles southwest of the city, and nearby Fire Base Ross.

Five waves of American B52s dumped almost 375 tons of high explosives on suspected Communist positions in the Que Son Valley but results of the strikes were not known.

(In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim linked the Communist drive with the U.S. presidential campaign. "With the election campaign nearing," he said, "we expected there would be some attempt by the enemy to influence it. We believe we may be

A $16 Million Grant Approved For Ferries

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A $16,478,270 grant to the Golden Gate Bridge District to build the first new ferry fleet on San Francisco Bay in 46 years was approved today.

The approval by Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe came only hours before the expiration of the low bid by a San Diego shipyard to build the initial fleet of three ferries.

Bridge district directors approved the construction contract on Aug. 11 subject to approval of the grant covering two-thirds of the $24 million total cost of the ferries and terminals in Larkspur, Sausalito and San Francisco.

The $12.6 million ferry construction contract with Campbell Industries calls for delivery of the first ferry in April 1974, with the next two to be delivered within the following eight months.

The bridge district has been working for almost two years to get the grant. Strong opposition to the grant came from Harbor Carriers, private operator of ferries on the bay.

Bridge District officials, however, convinced Volpe's staff late Friday that the district will cooperate with Harbor Carriers. Specifically, the district will share its float at the new San Francisco terminal with Harbor Carriers, will continue its feeder bus service to the Tiburon ferry operated by Harbor Carriers, and include the Tiburon ferry service in district publicity and schedules.

Carlos C. Villarreal, administrator of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration under Volpe, said the success of the district's single Sausalito ferry "has proved the impact of water transit in the Bay Area."

Villarreal said the new ferry system will deposit Marin commuters "virtually at their office doors without adding to downtown congestion. This is the kind of service the Nixon administration had in mind when it proposed to upgrade mass transit throughout the nation."

He praised the bridge district's plans for the ferry system as "an outstanding example of a creative, dynamic approach to solving a transit problem. Our objective is to move people, not vehicles."

According to district plans drafted over the past five years, the three aluminum-hulled ferries and the existing

Smoker Naps —Is Saved From Blaze

Walter D. Wilcox of Apartment 20 at 95 Midway Road told firemen he awoke in bed about 11:20 p.m. with flames all around him. He rushed to the kitchen where he was overcome by smoke.

Frances P. Zimmerman, occupant of Apartment 15, smelled smoke, summoned firemen and rushed into the burning apartment. He found Wilcox in the kitchen coughing and choking and led him to safety, according to San Rafael Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci.

Ten firemen and three units responded, extinguishing the fire in about two hours. At no time were the remaining 39 units or nearby homes endangered the chief said.

Most of the apartment dwellers had already evacuated by the time firemen arrived, according to the chief, many of them standing around in nightgowns and pajamas.

Fire, smoke and water damage was estimated at $10,000 to the apartment and $3,000 to the contents.

$500,000 Bail Set In Seattle Hijacking

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)— Frank M. Sibley, 43, stood in tennis shoes before a U.S. magistrate today and heard the jurist set his bail at $500,000 after being charged with air piracy for commandeering a 727 jetliner and demanding the largest ransom in U.S. skyjacking history.

Despite bullet wounds in his shoulder and leg, Sibley walked easily into the courthouse with one arm in a sling but with handcuffs on.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Blast From Humphrey

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today that President Nixon's veto of an education bill came at a time when "American education is in deep trouble"

Nixon vetoed the $30.5 billion bill to fund the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare last week with a message that it was inflationary.

"The Nixon administration is not the friend of American education. It has always recommended too little, too late," said Humphrey in a speech prepared for the 56th annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

Humphrey said some goals for the federal government should be to finance at least one third of public schools costs, a national collective bargaining law for teachers and federal standards and guarantees for teacher pension and retirement benefits.

Will Cleaver Return?

COMPTON (UPI) — Fugitive Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver may return to the United States rather than remain in Algeria, which is clamping down on refugee radicals, according to Cleaver's wife.

"The life of Eldridge Cleaver is in danger. He has been threatened prior to this with a very bad fate," Kathleen Cleaver told newsmen during the weekend.

Cleaver fled the United States while free on bond on a charge of carrying a weapon, a violation of parole for earlier crimes, which included robbery and rape.

His departure set off a series of killings within the party. Police described them as the result of a bitter power struggle between followers of Cleaver and those of his former ally, Huey Newton, who took over the Panthers.

Mrs. Cleaver did not give details of her statement that Cleaver's life is in danger in Algeria, and said she was unsure when — and if — Cleaver would return.

Labor Vote Prediction

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson predicts that President Nixon will get the biggest labor vote any Republican presidential candidate has won for the past 40 years.

For one thing working people are better off than before, Hodgson told a news conference yesterday. For another, he said Democratic candidate George McGovern's supporters turned their backs on organized labor at the Democratic national convention.

Hodgson said he was "enormously proud" of the labor plank in the Republican platform, with its open appeal for labor support and its lack of the GOP's traditional opposition to union shops. He said the President agreed with its contents "in substance."

Nixon Ahead In Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — President Nixon has a 26 point lead over Democratic presidential candidate GeorgeMcGovern, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

Nixon leads McGovern by 57 to 31 per cent.

The poll was taken Aug. 4 through Aug. 6, beginning the weekend Sargent Shriver was named by McGovern as his choice to replace Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton as his vice presidential candidate.

It shows a 1 per cent decline in McGovern's popularity from the previous poll, conducted after Eagleton disclosed that he had suffered from depression and had received shock treatments, but before he resigned the nomination.

The previous poll showed Nixon leading by 57 to 32 per cent.

Viet Settlement Seen

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers predicts that there will be a negotiated settlement to the Vietnam War by the end of the year.

"I think that either we will have a negotiated settlement before the election, which I think is a possibility, or we will have one very soon after President Nixon's reelection," Rogers said in a copyrighted story in yesterday's edition of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Ex-Naval Chief Dies

For accomplishments as chief of naval operations, Stark received the Navy's Distinguished Service Medal with a citation that noted his "responsibility for building and administering the largest peacetime Navy in the history of the country."

A native of Wilkes Barre, Pa., Stark was graduated in 1903 from the U.S. Naval Academy and, after two years at sea, was commissioned ensign. During World War I he was commander of the Torpedo Flotilla in the Asiatic Fleet and earned another Distinguished Service Medal.

He became chief of naval operations in 1939, only one month before Hitler invaded Poland and triggered World War II in Europe. He served in that post until March 1942.

First Lady To Be Honored At Opener Tonight

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Pat Nixon will have her moment of glory tonight when she steps up on the platform at the Republican National Convention to receive the accolades of hundreds of delegates.

It will be a history-making appearance for the First Lady. Never before has a President's wife been so spotlighted at a political conclave, or accorded so much attention.

Mrs. Nixon is the star of a film to be shown in the bunting-draped convention hall tonight, and the special tribute will be narrated by Hollywood star James Stewart. The movie is made up of film clips of the first lady on her travels to Africa, China and Russia as well as her active life at the White House.

Afterwards she will address the convention briefly while her two daughters and sons-in-law, the Edward Coxes and David Eisenhowers are spectators in the presidential box.

It was as if the time had come to give her special recognition.

Nothing has amused Mrs. Nixon more than to see these buttons saved as "collector's items" and ressurrected for this occasion by the faithful 12 years later.

"They knew I'd be back," she said with satisfaction.

Mrs. Nixon had a busy day ahead of her, armed with farewell orders from the President who telephoned her from Camp David, Md. when she left Washington to say: "Meet as many people as possible."

She planned to attend a breakfast honoring women candidates. Then she scheduled visits to state delegations, dividing up the caucuses with her daughters and hoping to touch base with as many as possible.

Protesters Give Guests Hard Time

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — "Keep the rich out!" spitting and shoving demonstrators shouted at Republicans arriving at Miami Beach's Fontainebleau Hotel for a $500-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

Mrs. Willard Marriott, wife of the multi-millionaire restaurant and motel chain owner, was furious.

"I had to climb a fence," she said.

The dinner Sunday night on the eve of the opening of the Republican National Convention raised $800,000 for GOP congressional candidates. The Republicans sold 1,600 tickets for the affair, but the diners had to run a gauntlet of about 500 antiwar protesters.

The demonstrators blocked Miami Beach's main street in front of the hotel for about a half hour befoe they were dispersed by club-swinging police.

"They want to kill me," said the Argentine-born cosmetic firm owner. "They called me a pig...a Nixon lover. They throw eggs on me. It's embarrassing."

Guilford Dudley, former ambassador to Panama and a self-described friend of President Nixon arrived in a Lincoln limousine.

"I guess that was a mistake," he said. "They jumped on top of the car and tried to rock it."

But Clare Boothe Luce, the former ambassador to Italy, wasn't stopped. She arrived on the arm of columnist William Buckley.

Hassan Foe Says Reforms Needed Now

RABAT, Moroçco (UPI)—An opponent to King Hassan's regime put it quietly but firmly: "Our people demand reforms immediately or the only solution may be more violence."

Such was the mood today among the legal political parties in Morocco following the king's hint in a speech Sunday that he may find it necessary to suppress one-third of Moroccan society in order to save the other two-thirds.

The king blamed the nation's labor unions and political groupings, which both openly oppose him, for a climate that resulted in two bloody attempts in 13 months against his life.

But one member of the Union Nationale Des Forces Populaires (UNFP) party said in an interview, "It's the method of the king that engenders the military adventures."

The politician who spoke freely but preferred to remain anonymous is typical of a segment of educated young Moroccans. His girlfriend was garbed in a miniskirt rather than the conservative clothes and veil traditionally worn by Arab women.

His one-room apartment had modern furniture, a television, and a picture of Vladimir Lenin on the wall next to Moroccan folk art.

A member of another party, Istiqlal, which is slightly more conservative than the UNFP, said in his office, "the people are pessimistic."

After the July, 1971, attempt on his life, King Hassan gave his people a new constitution. But a promised coalition government including the two parties and a parliament never came about. General elections now are set for April, 1973.

Istiqlal publishes its own newspaper — occasionally censored—and, the party member said, "We teach the people to respect democratic institutions. We negotiated with the king for six months. Nothing happened. Now the youth criticize us."

The Communist party is illegal in Morocco and its ideology has little open following, the politicians said. After the attempted August 16 attack, some political tracts appeared on the streets.

One hears on all sides that the king is not overwhelmingly popular. One opponent said, "It's not so much the monarchy as the person of Hassan himself that we don't like.

"He plays golf, he gets up late, he does not tend to work, he is egotistical."

Government spokesmen replied that Morocco has advanced under Hassan. The Moroccan Bank of Foreign Trade announced Sunday that Morocco's growth rate for 1968 to 1972 was planned at 4.3 per cent annually but climbed to 5.1 per cent.

But 75 per cent of the country's 14 million residents are illiterate, the government said.

Reagan Flattered By Poll Pointing To '76

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan, insisting he should not be "kissed off" merely because of advancing age, left the door open slightly for another Presidential bid in 1976 as he led California delegates today into the Republican convention.

"I don't think you kiss anybody off because they're too young or too old," said the tanned former actor, who looks much younger than his 61 years. "I don't intend to feel too old myself in the next few years."

Reagan said he was "flattered" by a poll Sunday which showed that 17 per cent of the Republican delegates nationwide preferred him for the 1976 presidential nomination. He told newsmen he has no political plans after 1974, when he steps down as governor of the nation's largest state.

While most California delegates went to the beach or partied, Reagan made the convention rounds with all the aura of a presidential candidate — surrounded by grim-faced body guards, waving to supporters and occasionally being serenaded by bands playing "California Here I Come."

Reagan, who ran for the GOP nomination in 1968 and is an enthusiastic advocate this time of President Nixon's re-election, was to preside tonight and Tuesday afternoon as temporary convention chairman. He planned to sharply criticize Democratic nominee George McGovern in a speech tonight.

Reagan accused McGovern Sunday of "irresponsibility" for "injecting himself into negotiations" with North Vietnam.

He also sided with smaller states against larger ones in a battle over representation at the 1976 convention. He said smaller states' independence should be protected.

The poll, by the Miami Herald, showed that 36 per cent of the delegates feel Vice President Spiro T. Agnew would make the best GOP candidate in 1976. Reagan ranked second in popularity with 17 per cent, followed by Texan John Connally, the Nixon Democrat, with 9 per cent.

But the newspaper said party leaders seldom mentioned Reagan's name as a potential nominee because he will be 65 in 1976.

Asked for a comment, Reagan sidestepped saying whether he would consider running again and told a news conference:

"As far as I'm concerned, the only election that concerns me is the one that's coming up in 1972. My mind does not go beyond Nov. 7 and getting the President re-elected.

"It's flattering," he continued, "to think that 17 per cent of the people feel that way. I'm happier about that than those others who said that I was getting too old."

Reagan is chairman of the 96-member California delegation, the largest in Miami Beach. Nearly 1,000 Californians— delegates, alternates, party leaders and hundreds of Young Republicans—arrived in shifts during the weekend from San Francisco and Los Angeles.

One chartered bus carrying arrivals to the delegation's Americana Hotel headquarters was pinched for speeding.

The Republican delegates were a far different breed from the California Democrats who came here six weeks ago. Instead of quarreling over credentials, Republicans were in a celebration mood. Displacing "Boycott Lettuce" and "Stop the Bombing" placards were red, white and blue "Love It or Leave It" signs. And fashionable sports coats and pants suits replaced the bluejean and braless look.

Reagan predicted Nixon will carry California in November. But like other California party leaders the governor said, "we will be running scared" because of a 3-2 Democratic voter registration advantage.

Open Classrooms On Agenda In Lagunitas

Lagunitas School District Board will be asked to act on a requested modification to the district's open classroom curriculum at its meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at Lagunitas School.

Trustees will consider the Youth in Arts program. The district's flyer policy and hear a report on the individualized instruction workshop.

FISCHER-SPASSKY

Draw In 16th Game; More Protests Fly

REYKJAVIK (UPI)—In the corridor Eyfim Geller and Nikolai Krogius, two of world champion Boris Spassky's seconds, waited more than an hour in their raincoats. Inside the dark hall on the brightly lighted stage, the champion and challenger Bobby Fischer played on and on.

"Are they crazy? It has been a dead draw since the 33rd move," Krogius said and glanced at the closed circuit television screen where the moves piled up.

Geller smiled and chatted with Larissa, Spassky's wife. He was not chain-smoking, a sure sign the champion was not in trouble.

Finally after the 60th move Fischer looked up from the board, nodded and offered his hand. Spassky pressed it and the 16th game in the $250,000 world chess championship ended in a draw.

Although Fischer picked up another half-point and inched closer to the 12.5 points he needs to win, grandmasters said the challenger's standard had fallen in the last couple of games.

"I don't know if Fischer is trying to play safe," said Icelandic grandmaster Fridrik Olafsson" but the score is even with a win each and four draws in the last six games. There was not much punch in his play today."

But what the 16th game lacked in excitement on the board, Fischer provided between the moves.

Three times the temperamental chess genius snapped out of his $470 swivel chair and stalked across the stage to German arbiter Lothar Schmid.

"First time Bobby complained about people coughing in the auditorium," Schmid said later.

"Then twice he demanded that I move the game to a private table tennis room backstae because of the noise. I refused and told him the noise-level was not sufficiently high to warrant such a drastic move. There was no real disturbance."

Watching the record crowd of 3,000 persons filing out of the hall Schmid said "I think people were good today although I had to admonish a few during the game."

After eachrefusal, Fischer shrugged and walked back to the table without pulling out the written protest, U.S. sources said he stuck in his pocket before going to the hall.

The Icelandic Chess Federation issued a statement during the game protesting being named coplaintiffs in a $1.75 million lawsuit movie producer Chester Fox filed against Fischer.

The statement, signed by the five committee members, said "we deeply regret that seeds of suspicion have been thrown against us and we are unable to explain how this happened. It has never been the slightest intention of the federation to sue Mr. Robert Fischer for huge amounts."

Fox, who returned from New York early Sunday, said: "All the legal aspects are in the hands of my lawyers. All I know is that Fischer has prevented me from fulfilling my exclusive contract with the federation by refusing to allow cameras into the hall."

The 17th game is scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT Tuesday with Spassky playing the white pieces and moving first.

SENIORS SWITCH TO COMMERCE

Senior citizens and helpers busily spruce up the San Anselmo Bus Depot in readiness for Friday's opening of Bustop, Marin Senior Coordinating Council's first boutique. Arts and crafts made by seniors will be sold on a consignment basis, and seniors will also staff the shop, which will be open six days a week from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Edward T. Ryken, council executive director, said the boutique will also sell items made by members of tha Family Mix, a nonprofit educational coop in San Anselmo. Outside the depot a barren hillside will be completely landscaped with flowers and shrubs by the two groups, assisted by youngsters from the Marin Volunteer Bureau. It's all part of seniors' efforts to keep the depot open despite a revenue loss since the Golden Gate Transit District took over commute bus runs.

Judge Sets Argument Date In Fraud Trial

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Judge Douglas Amdahl has given both sides until Sept. 8 to submit final arguments in the consumer fraud trial against Holiday Magic Inc.

Testimony ended Friday in Hennepin County District Court in the case against the California cosmetics firm and two of its distributors.

Judge Amdahl also gave the state until Wednesday to submit special arguments supporting its efforts to introduce excerpts from a news film in which a Holiday Magic distributor was interviewed by WCOO-TV.

The state contends the firm and two distributors—James A. Solem of St. Paul and James A. Russell of Waconia, Minn.— violated a 1971 Minnesota law prohibiting multilevel distributorships.

Judge Amdahl said he would not permit the film or a transcript of it to be presented in evidence until he rules on the company's claim that its distributors are independent contractors and not employes.

He has taken under advisement a company motion challenging the law's constitutionality on the grounds that it is "vague, indefinite and imprecise."

The final witnesses called by the defense were Solem and Russell, who were arrested in a raid directed by the attorney general's office at the company's distribution center in Bloomington.

Both insisted they were general distributors and not company employes.

Solem said he joined the firm while a University of Minnesota student in 1968 and rejoined in 1971 after serving in the Navy and as an insurance agent.

Russell said he had been an Air Force pilot and radar control officer and had been employed by the Ralston Purina Co. for 10 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Markowski of Bloomington testified earlier they had made more than $35,000 by recruiting other distributors in the three years they had been in the company's selling program.

Mrs. Markowski said, however, that retail sales accounted for a good share of their earnings and that in one month had come to $1,150.

375 Reported Dead In S. Korea Floods

SEOUL (UPI) — Huge mounds of rocks, mud and debris were piled high today at the scene of an avalanche set off by the torrents of rain which produced South Korea's worst floods in more than a half century.

Police said 375 persons had been killed, 81 were missing and 410 were injured in the floods throughout South Korea.

Rescue workers retrieved 13 more bodies today at the avalanche site in Pyongchang-dong, a northern sector of Seoul. Police said that brought to 87 the number of bodies that had been recovered following the avalanche and that more bodies were doubtlessly buried under the mud, the rocks and the debris.

The avalanche was the largest of 50 avalanches and mudslides touched off by the disastrous rains which pounded central South Korea Saturday. The rains were the worst in the 65 years the weather bureau has been making official observations, officials said.

The Pyongchang-dong landslide occurred when a rain-soaked slope of a mountain collapsed on the northern outskirts of Seoul. The mud, which broke down in torrential rains, picked up speed and snowballed, rolling down 500 yards and engulfing 13 earthen brick and wooden shanty houses clustered along the valley.

Kim Ok-Hi, 35, who survived the disaster, said, "It took place in a matter of minutes. I heard a thunderous sound of something rolling down and moments later my house was gone." She said she was outside her house at the time of the accident to pick radishes for breakfast.

"There was no chance to escape the avalanche," she said. She lost her husband and four children.

Lee Yong-Hun, 33, a government official, said he received a phone call from his wife just before the accident but arrived too late. "When I arrived, I could see nothing but mud and debris," he said. "There was no sign of survivors." He lost his family of four.

Most of the landslides were reported in Seoul and its vicinity where at one time about two inches of rain fell in an hour.

The storm, which dumped 18 inches of rain in less than 30 hours, wrought havoc in Seoul, flooding at least one third of the city and crippling almost all utility services.

The outlying and lowland areas of the capital were almost submerged under water, turning crowded streets into lakes. Makeshift rafts were seen in the hearts of the city.

In Seoul alone, more than 250,000 persons were left homeless. The flood victims were temporarily sheltered at schools, churches and public offices.

President Park Chung-hee today ordered the mobilization of all national resources to repair damages which may run well over $10 million.

Tax Rate Will Be Set Tonight

Corte Madera Town Council will set the tax rate for fiscal 1972-73 tonight when it meets at 7:30 at the town hall.

The final 1972-73 budget total of $1,271,163 passed in July called for a tax rate of $1.35 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of 32 cents over this year's rate of $1.03.

However, at tonight's meeting Treasurer Frank Bigley will recommend that the council consider increasing the tax rate still more to provide reserves.

Councilmen will also be informed that a hike in the county library rate will call for an extra two cents on the Corte Madera rate.

Opera Opener Crowds Grove

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— More than 22,000 persons jammed Sigmund Stern Grove Sunday to celebrate the Golden 50th season of the San Francisco Opera.

A treat for those who have followed the San Francisco Opera since its beginning were performances by such veterans as Lauritz Melchior, Licia Albanese, Lucine Amara, Dorothy Warenskjold and Frederick Jagel.

Pregnancy Pay Issue Sparks Welfare Suit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A suit by a Novato woman and two others, aimed at forcing the state to pay disability in cases of pregnancy related illness has been filed with the Court of Appeal in Sacramento.

The suit, first filed last week with the State Supreme Court, was transferred to the Third Appellate District, Sacramento.

The suit seeks to force Sigurd Hansen, director of the State Department of Human Resources Development, to make payments in pregnancy related disabilities, currently excluded.

The suit was filed by Augustina D. Armendariz of Gilroy who suffered a miscarriage; Elizabeth B. Johnson of Novato who was operated on for a tubal pregnancy; and Jacqueline Jaramillo of Oakland who is currently pregnant, and the San Francisco Local of the Waitresses Union.

The suit said that 2 million women and 3 million men come under the state disability insurance plan and that 200,000 women per year are denied disability payments because of the exclusion of pregnancy related disabilities. On the other hand, the suit said, payments are made for "such disabilities as sex change operations, attempted suicides, circumcision, menopause, (prostate operations), and cigarette-caused lung cancer."

The suit asks that Hansen be prohibited from enforcing the regulation, that the regulation be declared void as unconstitutional and that the department be required to adopt interim regulations.

Military spokesmen said they feared the North Vietnamese planned to attack Da Nang, a city of 300,000 nestled between the South China Sea and jungled mountains to the south and west. It is 345 miles north of Saigon.

A U.S. airbase housing 5,000 Americans is two miles south of Da Nang. The last American ground combat unit was sent home from the area 10 days ago.

In other war action:

Fourteen waves of American B52 bombers attacked Communist troops in Quang Tri province, which the South Vietnamese have been trying to recapture since June 28. The bombers, along with South Vietnamese fighter-bombers, also destroyed six Communist tanks in the area.

Also in Quang Tri, A Communist force led by tanks was believed to have wiped out an 80-man South Vietnamese paratrooper unit two miles west of the provincial capital, Quang Tri City. Although there was no official casualty report, officers said they feared most of the government soldiers had been killed or wounded. However, a government spokesman said 147 Communists were killed in scattered battles around the city and near Hue, 32 miles to the south, one day earlier.

A spokesman said 37 Communists and six South Vietnamese were killed in a battle in Kien Hoa province 45 miles south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta.

In the air war over the North, the U.S. command said that Navy fighter-bombers attacked a military storage area one-half mile from the port city of Haiphong, while Air Force jets hit the Kep missile support facility 31 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Da Nang has been attacked so often by Communist rocket teams firing from the nearby mountains that its nickname is "Rocket City." But it never has been under direct assault.

The area is defended by about 25,000 South Vietnamese —mostly Rangers, with a number of infantry units and militiamen. About 5,000 of the defenders, however, are members of the rebuilt South Vietnamese 3rd Division—the unit which was routed by the Communists last spring in Quang Tri province.

no opponent. But the name of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, a millionaire former businessman, was mentioned most often as "the type" of liberal who might oppose Agnew at the next convention.

These were among developments:

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller went before the Ohio delegation to urge it and other urban states to support his plan that could give more proportionate delegate strength at the next convention than smaller rural areas would have. His plea set off lively debate.

The Rules Committee sought to work out a compromise on the delegate strength question to prevent it from emerging on the floor and shifting the focus of attention away from Nixon's renomination. It reached no conclusion in a 2½ hour morning session and recessed until later in the day.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic adviser, said the White House was staying clear of the delegate strength question. But he was somewhat critical of the tight control on dissent at the convention because, for one reason, he said it allowed McCloskey to "grandstand."

Hawaii Is Fastest Growing US Land

HONOLULU (UPI)—The island of Hawaii is the fastest growing part of the United States because of the activity of two volcanoes, Mauna Loa and Kilauea, which periodically add enormous quantities of lava to the island's mass.

The 1969-1971 flow of lava from Kilauea's east rift zone was the longest and most voluminous flank eruption in the volcano's history.

Minister Flays GOP Committee

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—An Episcopal minister and religion columnist assailed the Republican Platform Committee for failing to take a stand for liberalized abortion.

The Rev. Lester Kinsolving, of San Francisco, who writes about religion for the National Newspaper Syndicate, spoke at the All Souls Episcopal Church Sunday and said he hoped some convention delegates were in the congregation.

He accused the Platform Committee of displaying "shocking subservience" to President Nixon on the abortion issue. He said Nixon's position against abortion was tragically mistaken. And he said Democratic Presidential Candidate George McGovern has been guilty of "meretricious waffling" on the abortion issue.

Heavy Stargazer Satellite Lofted From Cape Kennedy

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—A space telescope named Copernicus rocketed smoothly into a perfect orbit and passed its kirst critical tests today to give man his most powerful view into the universe.

The $82 million observatory will study the life and death of faraway stars and may reveal some early secrets of the universe. Its instruments also will zero in on the mysterious pulsars that emit X-rays at regular intervals like cosmic lighthouses.

Engineers at the Satellite Control Center at Greenbelt, Md., reported three hours after launch that the spacecraft had successfully stabilized itself with a minimum expenditure of control gas. A spokesman said other operations were normal and controllers were "happy as clams."

The Space Agency reported that Copernicus was in a flawless orbit 460 miles high. Once it separated from its spent rocket, the silvery satellite unfolded its two big wing-like solar panels and began what engineers called its "survival phase"—a critical 12 hours of careful checks to be sure the craft is safely stabilized.

"It's a terribly exciting adventure into astronomy," said Dr. Lyman Spitzer, astronomer in charge of the satellite's main telescope. "We hope if the equipment works the way we expect it, we'll find all sorts of extremely exciting new things."

He said Copernicus's first astronomical observatoins would begin next week when all systems have been checked out.

Copernicus is the heaviest and one of the most complicated and costly unmanned spacecraft every launched. Scientists hope it will help revolutionize space astronomy.

The 4,900-pound satellite was launched at 6:28 a.m. EDT and its Atlanta-Centaur rocket propelled it into orbit 12 minutes later. The last Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (OAO) was lost in 1970 when its nose fairing failed to separate, but the fairing fell away smoothly from todav's satellite.

The bat-like observatory was named after the 16th century Polish scientist who recognized in the 16th Century that it was the sun and not the earth that was the center of what was then believed to be the universe.

Watching the spectacular predawn blastoff were Witold Trampczynski, Poland's ambassador to the United States, and a large group of American dignitaries of Polish descent.

Young Cyclist Dies In Larkspur Crash

A 23-year-old motorcyclist was killed in Larkspur yesterday when his motorcycle veered on to loose gravel on the shoulder of Magnolia Avenue, throwing him against a speed limit sign.

Larkspur Police said John David Betz of 1308 Dakota Avenue, San Mateo, apparently died instantly at 10:50 a.m. as he crashed into the sign, snapping it off. His crash helmet disintegrated on impact, reported police.

Betz, reportedly a comparatively new motorcyclist, was taking part in the third annual Poker Run organized by Road Riders of Marin.

Alvin Dean Garcia of 1411 Casa Buena, Corte Madera, William M. Bogue of San Lorenzo, and Croft V. Jervis of Hayward, told police they were all in a group on the run's first leg with Betz.

Witnesses said Betz had just turned onto Magnolia from Bon Air Road, travelling at about 30 miles per hour, when his 1972 Norton veered onto the shoulder.

Some 260 motorcyclists, according to Mrs. Foss, competed in a leisurely run all over Marin County, collecting poker chips at designated points. At the run's end at Novato, those with the best poker hand from their chips won awards.

Foss said the club is starting a memorial fund for Betz.

Betz's death was the 22nd traffic fatality in Marin county this year compared to 23 by this date last year.

IRA Refuses To Execute

BELFAST (UPI)—The Official wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) refused to execute a suspected Protestant spy and became the target of criticism by the more extreme Provisional wing today Bombers struck in the heart of Belfast.

A spokesman for the Provisionals said officials acted in bad faith by not killing one of two men seized by the IRA when they acted suspiciously in a Roman Catholic bar in Belfast.

The Provisionals killed one of the men—James Neill, a 44-year-old Protestant with a wife and four children—but the Officials released the other suspect after beating him up, the spokesman said.

Wallet Flatness Hits Nixon Aide

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Anyone can get caught short of money at times in Miami Beach, even a VIP like Clark McGregor, chairman of the committee to re-elect President Nixon.

McGregor and Mrs. McGregor stopped at a benefit flower stand in the Fontainebleau Hotel. He ordered a corsage costing $7.50 for Mrs. McGregor and a boutonniere for himself costing 75 cents. After both were properly pinned into place, McGregor reached into his pocket and found he didn't have enough money to pay for the blooms.

He removed the pins and gave back the flowers.

Police Nab Three Burglary Suspects

Acting on a resident's report of a suspicious vehicle in the vicinity, Novato police yesterday morning arrested two young men and a boy from San Francisco on suspicion of burglary.

The three were connected with four burglaries and possibly two more. Stolen items valued at $461 were discovered in their car, officers reported.

Arrested were Robert Albert Larkin, 19, of 712 Girard Street, and the 14-year-old boy. Michael D. Edwinson, 18, of 722 Girard Street, turned himself in at police headquarters later in the day, police said.

Edwinson and Larkin were booked into Marin County jail with bail set at $1,500 each and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court. The boy was sent to Juvenile Hall.

Officer Roger Speerschneider reported he saw one of the youths, later identified as Edwinson, carrying an object across Center Road at Wilson at 7:15 a.m. yesterday.

Edwinson then disappeared on Buena Vista, but Speerschneider saw a car with a license number given by the resident, he reported.

Inside the car, the officer said, were Larkin and the juvenile, tool boxes, stereo tape player, stereo tapes, two fishing rods, tackle box, basketball and numerous hand tools, electric hand tools, and a 10-speed bicycle.

Edwinson, who wasn't in the car, appeared at the Novato Police Department at 1:15 p.m.

Youth Is Caught In Theft Act

Returning to their parked car on Cain Street, Larkspur, at 12:52 a.m. Saturday, a South Dakota couple found a youth taking a stereo speaker from the car, Larkspur police reported today.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knight told the youth to put the speaker back, said police, but when they discovered more of their personal property in his car, Knight grabbed him while Mrs. Knight telephoned for the police.

The juvenile — whose identity was withheld on orders of Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson — was arrested on suspicion of grand theft and placed in Juvenile Hall.

Police said the Knights, of Yankton, S. Dakota, were visiting relatives on Cane Street, and had been for a walk before discovering the theft.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

HERE'S HEALTH!

by JUNE EMBURY

Foot specialists warn that rigid footware, such as the "in" platform shoes, keep feet from functioning flexibly as nature intended. Which emphasizes the beautiful purpose served by the BIRKENSTOCK "footprint" sandals, now a way of life for people everywhere, who say they're the next best thing to going barefoot.

Actually, they're better than barefoot, because their patented contour, made of flexible cork, cushions against the impact of hard, smooth surfaces. Yet the sandals mold themselves to each individual foot and stimulate the toes to grip, which helps strengthen leg muscles and ligaments and encourages improved posture.

We feature the BIRKENSTOCK line in several styles for adults and children. You're invited to try on our samples and discover why one wearer was inspired to write us this unsolicited testimonial: "My feet thank you from the bottom Of their soles."

Law Inconsistent, But Not Lawyers

We often hear complaints about inconsistencies of the law; but there is nothing inconsistent about lawyers — anyhow, not where their own fees are involved.

The American Bar Association proved that at its convention last week in San Francisco.

Several sections of the ABA had urged it to take a stand in favor of no-fault automobile insurance. The ABA's board of governors had proposed that it postpone any action on the subject

SO WHAT DID the lawyer delegates do?

The essence of no-fault auto insurance is that it requires an underwriter to pay the medical bills for injuries suffered in auto accidents by those it has insured. Under the system that presently prevails, the responsibility for payment lies with the insuror of the driver who was to blame in the accident. Where more than one driver is involved, these leads to arguments between attorneys for their insurors — and frequently, to court.

No-fault's purpose is to speed up payments, keep accident insurance claims out of court, and thus reduce insurance costs.

THAT IT WORKS has been proved in Massachusetts, where a no-fault plan has been in effect for two years. Cost of basic insurance required under Massachusetts law dropped from $117 in 1970 to $74 this year. And in June, the Massachusetts Supreme Court ordered insurance companies to refund 27.6 per cent of premiums paid because they constituted excess profits.

But keeping claims for whiplash injuries, mental suffering, etc., out of the courts definitely does not benefit lawyers. What it does to them was described in a recent New York Times Magazine article on the experience in Massachusetts:

"The hallways of the Suffolk Superior Courthouse in Boston, once jammed with tort lawyers, are now relatively empty . . . 'Ninety per cent of tort cases are gone,' explains Mrs. Kathleen Ryan, president of the Massachusetts Trial Lawyers' Association."

AND SO THE ABA convention came out for a plan which would require the insuror to pay the medical bills for those he insured — but permit the injured party to sue anyhow in an attempt to collect more.

The obvious result: Quicker medical payments, but no reduction in lawyers' fees — nor in insurance costs.

Louis W. Niggeman of Kentfield, chairman of the board of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, nailed this "compromise" for what it is: not no-fault at all. It does not, he noted, eliminate "any of the wastes and costs of the tort liability system. The only way premiums can be contained or lowered is by restricting lawsuits."

Skunks Can't Jump

With our Marin evenings warmer and more suitable for wild animal observation, we are seeing more of Brother Skunk. In many ways, he is admirable. He never seems to be rushed. At his fastest, he seems to go at a stiff legged trot. He can't jump like a cat or a raccoon, and his feet are not equipped for climbing. Brother Skunk walks fearlessly with his feet firmly planted on the ground. He is unafraid. And we all know why.

SMOG DISTRICT REPORT

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto suggested last week that a $45,000 management study of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District may have been tainted by "ulterior motives."

How right he was!

The study was triggered last spring by a bitter dispute between the district's chief administrator and its attorney. Attorney Matthew S. Walker charged that his boss, D. J. Callaghan, systematically had coddled polluters over the years.

THANKS TO A SPLIT 18-member board of directors, the dispute was shelved pending the $45,000 study by Cresap, McCormick and Paget Inc. of San Francisco. Walker subsequently resigned to take a federal job, but the board has remained split, with Callaghan retaining support by a bare majority.

The consultants thus had to work an elaborate way around Callaghan in their analysis of the district's many ills. They hardly could have recommended firing him. Consultants, like many others, traditionally live by the mot that the path to success is paved with satisfied customers.

The consultants, seeing their charge from the board, thus recommended a heavy dose of aspirin and bandages and ignored the possibility of need for surgery.

THE RESULT of their tortuous circumvention was a series of recommendations that would strip Callaghan of many key powers and create a number of subsidiary hubs of power. It would be rather like a wheel wobbling along on several hubs.

The consultants went even further astray from reality. They said that holding together this wierd administrative contraption will demand much more work by the board of directors. That's asking a lot from a board which commonly musters little better than a quorum, regards a punctual lunch as the most important business of each meeting, and harbors many who understand neither air pollution nor what they are supposed to do for their $50 a session.

By the time Callaghan and his cohorts on the board get through tinkering with the consultants' recommendations, we expect little will be left besides a $45,000 receipt.

CALLAGHAN'S PRIDE in the report apparently explained his reluctance to release it to the public. He knowingly flouted a state law that made the report a public record when it was delivered to the district office. Callaghan refused requests for public viewing of the report for two days, giving in only when board chairman Robert B. St. Clair interceded and ordered him to release it.

Even this order from St. Clair got twisted by Callaghan. Instead of making the 130-page report available on the next afternoon, as St.Clair ordered, Callaghan sat on it until 4 p.m. This generous act gave the public one hour to glimpse the report before the district pulled up its drawbridge for the night.

What did the taxpayers get for their $45,000?

"I'm Beulah. How about flying me to Miami?"

Nixon Planning Cabinet Changes To Build Up Future Candidates

MIAMI BEACH — President Nixon does not plan to give Spiro Agnew a free ride to the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

He does not wish and he does not intend to propel his two-time running mate to a point where he could be the only contender.

This does not mean that Nixon is downgrading Agnew. It does mean that he wants to help prepare the way for an open and vigorous contest among a number of Republicans, and he aims to help them come to the fore during his second term — if he is re-elected.

TO THIS END there will almost certainly be numerous cabinet changes in a second Nixon administration.

One objective is to give maximum visibility to attractive Republican leaders who are potential presidential candidates.

Nixon is not ruling Agnew out. He simply wants to rule others in and he sees this as important for the health and vitality of the GOP.

Nixon has no inclusive list of Republican figures he has in mind. It is open-ended.

He expects that the biggest Democrat-for-Nixon, former Sec. of the Treasury John Connally, will be a self-proclaimed Republican and he will certainly be returning to a top post in the cabinet. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be coming to Washington.

THE PRESIDENT is very high on Donald Rumsfeld, former congressman from Illinois who has been serving as executive director of the Cost of Living Council. He is one of the brightest — a doer as well as a thinker — of the younger Republicans. Nixon will likely put him further to the front. He is also high on the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, George Bush.

Nixon expects the Senate to provide additional leadership potential —such as Senators Charles Percy of Illinois, Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio and Howard Baker of Tennessee. Sec. of Defense Melvin Laird of Wisconsin and presidential aide Robert Finch of California may also be in the Senate by 1974.

Vice President Agnew would still figure prominently but not exclusively in Nixon's plans to build a stronger Republican Party. He would continue to give Agnew important and visible assignments, but he has in mind something like a Republican constellation in which each can have a chance to shine.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ban on a President serving more than two elected terms makes it easy for Nixon to move in this direction. Perhaps he would have done so anyway, but it is noteworthy that during his four elections President Franklin D. Roosevelt never encouraged — really never allowed — any of his administration colleagues to rise very far above the surface. This discouraged many of them from becoming serious challengers to his renominations.

Nixon cannot be nominated for a third term. Therefore he has no temptation to keep the spot open for himself. He has every incentive to build up other Republicans, and it is apparent that he intends to do so.

He sees it as strengthening his own administration — if he wins — and strengthening his party.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Reader Wants Help On Canine Problem

Help! Do you suppose any of your readers can solve my problem? It is quite simple — stopping a neighbor's dog urinating all over our garbage can. Please do not laugh — I am absolutely serious. All the commercial products emphasize that training with the noxious spray or stakes which they promote must be tied in with voice commands — at least they are honest in promoting their products; problem: we never see the beast "sprinkling" the can — so how can we voice train him? We do know that it is the same hound, since we hear pitterpat overhead our bedroom — and when we rush out, the deed is done and the beast is sautering up the road with a smug expression on his face. Please, readers, no unproven nostrums — only well tested and workable products would be appreciated.

Research Statement On Fluoridation

I have read with interest the letters regarding the fluoridation controversy recently and would like to submit a quotation which is very pertinent to the subject. The following is taken from the National Academy of Sciences Publication No. 1694 and is by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council.

"Fluoride is present in small but widely varying amounts in all soils, water supplies, plants, and animals and thus is a normal constituent of all diets. Highest concentrations in mammals are found in bones and teeth. Fluoride is incorporated in the structure of teeth and is necessary for maximal resistance to dental caries. For these reasons, it is considered to be an essential nutrient.

"Standardization of water supplies by addition of fluoride to bring the concentration to one part per million has proved to be a safe, economical, and efficient way to reduce the indidence (sic) of tooth decay — a very important nutritional public health measure in areas where natural water supplies do not contain this amount.

"The Food and Nutrition Board recommends fluoridation of public water supplies where it is needed because of low fluoride concentration."

Boardwalk Solves Environment Problems

I would like to suggest a proposal in wholehearted agreement with your editorial on walking. While public promenades are in shortage here, creating them will still mean that people drive from their neighborhood to special sites, in order to go for a pleasant stroll. I think this makes a natural thing artificial and further fragments already compartmental living. Walking (or rowing, or bicycling) can and should be an integral part of daily living. Here on the Greenbrae Boardwalk, no one has to make a choice about whether to walk "for his health," or to be more expedient and drive. Everyone must walk, in all seasons and all weather. From our house it is ⅓ of a mile to the mail boxes and parking. The salt marsh which graces one side of the boardwalk never seems less than a jewel of God's handiwork, always rewarding the small extra time and effort for footwork.

May I suggest that Marin County's developers consider building more such boardwalks. For example, on the quarry site in Corte Madera, a group of dwellings on a single plane near the upper rim, would be in scale with the site and leave the entire lower area as a park . . .

There has been much talk recently about lower and moderate income housing in Marin. If the auto is no longer afforded such a large share of each lot and building, low-moderate housing could become more than the crackerboxes now possible (many retired or low income people live here in really unique and comfortable homes). Boardwalk homes, in addition to benefitting the health and peace of individuals, go far toward restoring the "lost sense of community" so often lamented. They also tend to become homes where "porch sitting" can be done in privacy and quiet . . . May I suggest boardwalk communities, with porches, as a cure for many of Marin's, and man's, dwelling problems.

Zenovich Clarifies Shoreland Use Bill

Your paper recently ran an article about my Senate Bill 742, which was labeled a bill which would overturn recent court decisions which granted public access to beaches, lakes, and rivers. I am afraid your readers may have received the erroneous impression that this measure was designed to prevent public access to such resources, so I would like to clarify the situation by providing the background for this legislation.

The Gion-Dietz decisions, to which the article refers, held that the owner of property which has been continuously used by the public for more than five years must either affirmatively prove that he granted a license to use his land to the public or demonstrate that he vade a bona fide attempt to prevent public use in order to negate a finding of intent to dedicate his land to the public. The burden of producing evidence is placed on the property owner.

The fear that their property would be dedicated to the public because they neither granted the public a license nor attempted to keep the public off their land prompted property owners to begin actively prohibiting public use of their land. This was corrected by urgency legislation I coauthored last session which allowed property owners to open their land to public use without the fear of it being dedicated permanently to the public.

This measure, though, only applied to current and future public use. The question still remained as to whether a property owner could be dragged into court and be forced to produce evidence showing that there was no intention to dedicate his land to the public at some time in the past in order to keep his land from being so dedicated. . .

My legislation would merely require anyone claiming that private land should be dedicated to the public based on past public use bring into court evidence, not just allegations, to support that claim . . .

Republican Black Caucus Great Contrast To Democrats

MIAMI BEACH — In order to call attention to the fact that a few of them are present, the black delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention are going to get together in a tight little group and hold what they call a strategy caucus.

They may not use the Doral Hotel room assigned to Paul Jones, the executive director of the black voter division of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. But they could if they wanted to, because they would all fit in.

It will be fascinating to compare this gathering to the black caucus at the Democratic convention, and you can be sure that your media favorites will, as one way of nudging the Grand Old Party to see if it is here live or only on film. And assuming that the motivation that unites the caucus is a common desire to re-elect Mr. Nixon, the contrast will be great indeed.

THE BLACK DEMOCRATS caucused in a big ballroom at the Fontainebleau, where Afro hairdos, dashikis and talk too straight to quote in a family newspaper surrounded a procession of presidential candidates. The only way the black Republicans can fill a big ballroom is to send out for help, which they may quite likely do, and the all-star cast that Jones has on his black voter division list is a lot heavier on bankers' gray flannel and clerical collars than Afro styles.

What puzzles most, though, is what a caucus of black Republicans committed to Mr. Nixon's re-election can think of to say to convince each other and blacks across the country that that is a wise commitment to make. The best clues are in the speeches Jones himself has been making as he trqvels the country on the President's behalf.

Jones, a 44-year-old former Peace Corps official and community relations specialist, is a convert from the Democratic Party where most blacks (at least 85 per cent in the 1968 election) still feel most comfortable. He switched just in time to take his current political assignment. So, as one who has been the route, he should know what to tell other blacks who might be considering conversion. BY GOING so heavily Democratic last time, blacks were throwing away their votes, Jones says. "Black voters told both parties that there was no need to work for black goals since the black vote was already in the back pocket of one party. We. . .lost a chance to gain leverage, to put a few IOUs from the candidates in the black hand." This year blacks should decide on the basis of candidate and performance, not party and promises, he maintains.

As evidence of performance, he lays heavy emphasis on Mr. Nixon's "black capitalism" promises of 1968, backed up with increased funds for minority business enterprise since then. He says the "exciting years" of civil rights legislation "are behind us," and points to the President's funding of civil rights enforcement.

He gives this administration credit for the reduction in the percentage of black children attending segregated schools, and the increase in the number of black generals in the services.

And all this, in Jones' version, was straight out of Mr. Nixon's heart, because the President "had no electoral mandate to help blacks — no mandate at all except his conscience telling him that we deserved a larger share of America's affluence."

"We blacks," he concludes, "can now liberate ourselves from our bondage to one political party. We now realize that our fidelity to that party has been unrewarded."

BUT ONE WONDERS to whom he is talking. In his rationale there is more about mysterious programs like MESBIC (minority enterprise small business investment companies) than about welfare, for example. Without pretense, he is pitching to the black borgeoisie rather than the ghetto proletariat. And since black businessmen are a minority within a minority, that does not appear to be sensible political strategy.

It is, however, from two viewpoints: Any tiny cut into the black bourgeoisie for Mr. Nixon will be a net gain to combine with greater net gains in other minority groups —and most importantly, out among the great white middle class where the votes are, it is far smarter for the GOP to appeal to and be represented on convention television by respectable preachers, college presidents and undertakers than by wild-haired activists who scare Middle America half to death.

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Jones both know that.

Manipulating The Seasons For Our Artificial Sports

Sporting events have lost all sense of season. Played under astrodomes on chemical grass, they threaten to become as artificial as flowers sealed in plastic.

Football, the game that's supposed to go with frost on the pumpkin and falling leaves, now thunders sweatily onto the turf — whoops, the Astroturf — in August or even July. And by World Series time, basketball and hockey are taking over.

Well, just wait. When the domed stadium really covers the country, pennant races can be adjusted to climax just before Christmas — if, by then, Christmas is still there.

The final abstracting of sports takes place in the Little Electronic Box — on the 21-inch screen representing in "living" color all that plastic grass. The prototypical sportsman of 1972 may be the broadcaster: the Man in the Glass Booth, stuffed with earplug phones, one eye on his monitor, surrounded by playback gadgets, stop-action cameras, and slow-motion reruns — to say nothing of those taped commercials.

THE EVOLUTION of the sports broadcaster parallels the evolution of sports, and perhaps even the evolution of American character. Red Barber has described today's sports broadcaster as "a 'faceless' voice that comes in with a sentence, then disappears for the 'former-great-star expert'" burbling on with his color commentary, his endless I-remember- whens.

It was not always so, as Barber — one of the masters of sports broadcasting for nearly 40 years — well knows. Early stars — Graham McNamee, Ted Husing, Bill Stern — were flamboyant characters who filtered their reports through rather awesome egos in rhetorical styles that combined the vocal flourishes of a road-company Hamlet and a snake-oil salesman. The TV broadcaster must stand aside — technology's handmaiden, neutral, well-behaved, deferring to the machine, to the camera's eye.

The radio broadcaster was the eye. He gave the listener not the game but the game as he chose to see it. His product was excitement — no matter how dull the event itself. An old-time sports broadcaster had a ramance going with actuality. He invented heroes. He contrived drama. He self-generated controversy.

Accuracy? Alas, it often came in second. Or third.

Bill Stern, a near-hysterical announcer with a racing-to-Apocalypse delivery, used to solve his problem of mistaking the ball carrier by inventing phantom laterals until the football ended in the right hands. Once Stern — legend has it — uncharitably gloated over Clem McCarthy, the horse-racing broadcaster, for calling a close finish wrong. "Well," said old Clem in mild rebuttal, "you can't lateral a horse."

IF 1972'S SPORTSCASTER is the plugged-in Man in the Glass Booth, the old-timer, in Barber's favorite phrase, was a sort of pop-poet in the catbird seat — a self-taught strolling minstrel with a carbon microphone and a saga to improvise on the spot.

Tangles in wires, parlayzed by inhibitions. living with a lie detector in the shape of a camera peering over his sholder, the erstwhile romancer has been forced to turn into a cautious maker of small talk: "All right, here's young Lancelot — a real good prospect for the Round Table. He's got those big hands. He knows all the moves. He just could be one of the great ones. Here's what his coach, King Arthur, had to say about him in a pre-joust taped interview: 'I'm telling you, Howard, once this kid matures a little emotionally. . . '"

And so on.

Hard days for romantics. Sports always has been a business, but now the business is too visible. The cash register's ring drowns out the play-by-play. Howard Cosell, ombudsman of the disillusioned, goes around complaining that all the Kings of Swat have no clothes.

And the seasons get manipulated.

IT IS TIME for a little nostalgia in sports broadcasting? As a "No, No Nanette" starter, who wants to produce an LP called "The Best Malapropisms of Dizzy Dean"? — including, of course, a few runners who "slud" back to their "respectable" bases.

Or is nostalgia the ultimate crassness?

STEP BACKWARD

NAACP Leaders Hit Bus Policy

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— Southern California NAACP leaders Sunday called antibusing legislation approved by the House of Representatives last week a "racist political attack" and a deliberate step backward.

The bill, supported by President Nixon, now goes to the Senate, where its fate is uncertain. It passed the House by a vote of 282-102.

Following the third quarter conference of leaders from 25 Southern California branches, the NAACP issued a statement condemning "the Congress and Richard Nixon for their racist political attack on the right of black children to quality education, in exchange for votes in the 1972 election."

"We feel passage of the Nixon anti-busing bill by Congress is a deliberate step backward from the position that the rights of all children to a quality education are constitutionally protected," said Mary Harper, conference president.

"The faith and hope of black Americans in the efficiency of law as an instrument of change has been badly shaken by the presidential and congressional action knowingly taken to undermine justice in the federal courts," she said.

The bill would severely limit busing as a tool to achieve racial balance in schools, but stops short of prohibiting it altogether. Under its provisions, all other remedies would have to be exhausted before turning to busing, and then students could be shifted only to the second-closest school to their homes, banning cross-city movements. Its terms would cover busing programs already established as well as future cases.

Storm Pounds War Gas Storage Island

HONOLULU (UPI) —Johnston Island, storehouse of America's 13,000 tons of lethal war gas, was bombarded for six hours Sunday by Hurricane Celeste's towering waves and roaring winds.

A Navy reconnaissance plane flew over the atoll later in the day to evaluate the onslaught of 45-foot waves and 150 mile-pen-hour winds that hit the top-secret military base.

The island's residents and 580 servicemen were evacuated before the storm lashed the 3,000-foot-long atoll located 800 miles southwest of Honolulu.

The reconnaissance plane did not land but reported to officials that it appeared there was "minimum wind damage and no water damage."

"We have no reason to believe there are any extensive damages to equipment or facilities on the island," a spokesman said.

Photos were taken and after they were evaluated, further decisions will be made toward returning personnel, the spokesman said.

Residents of Johnston were evacuated to Honolulu because "to remain would be too great a risk." They awaited word on when they could return to the mid-Pacific island.

As Hurricane Celeste headed northward, the howl of the wind and the pounding of the surf subsided, and the National Weather Service reported clear skies over the island. A spokesman said Celeste intensely lashed the tiny dot in the Pacific for six hours.

The nerve and mustard gas, stored in earth-covered steel and concrete bunkers called "igloos," was brought to Johnston from Okinawa aftar residents of Guam and Alaska protested upon learning their areas were being considered as storage sites.

Johnston, one of the remotest spots owned by the United States, is also jammed with top secret military equipment, including missile tracking facilities, storage areas for nuclear devices, launching pads for rockets, airfield refueling facilities and accommodations for those working there. The facilities are shrouded in mystery, and newsmen are not allowed.

The Air Force said "all munitions and equipment was secured to the maximum extent possible prior to evacuation" of the men. At first, the Air Force said there would be no evacuation because "facilities are adequate." Finally all but 10 men were removed and, as the hurricane picked up ferocity, everyone was evacuated from the tiny dot in the Pacific.

While the military evaluated the effects of Celeste on Johnston Island, clean up operations were underway on the Island of Hawaii after tropical storm Diana. Mayor Shunichi Kimura declared one section an emergency area where most of the $200,000 in storm damage occurred.

China-Burma Flight Veterans Convene

Demos Oppose Property Initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —In a broad-based state party platform, California Democrats have declared their opposition to the Watson property initiative and the death penalty proposal on the November ballot.

"We believe in the basis of the decision of the California Supreme Court which declared the death penalty a cruel and unusual punishment," the party said in a resolution adopted by delegates at a platform meeting Saturday.

In opposing the Watson measure, which limits property taxes, the convention called the initiative a "regressive measure" that would provide tax relief for big businesses at the expense of the average taxpayer.

The Democrats also took stands on several other controversial initiatives on the November ballot, including support of a measure to tighten control of California's coastline and to restrict the governor's veto power on state employes' pay increases.

The delegates also endorsed an initiative requiring the state to match highway patrolmen's salaries with those of top local police agencies.

The convention declared its opposition to an initiative prohibiting farm product boycotts and require secret ballots for farm labor union organizations.

The delegates took no stand on an initiative legalizing marijuana possession for adults but declared in a resolution that they opposed felony prosecutions for the use or personal possession of the weed.

Bob Ashford, statewide coordinator of the marijuana initiative campaign, issued a statement Sunday from San Francisco charging the Democrats with "ducking the issue" by failing to take a stand on the measure.

The convention also defeated a motion by Leslie Craven of Azusa, a congressional candidate, to remove from the platform a plank supporting the use of busing to achieve racially integrated schools.

Craven said 80 per cent of Californians opposed busing. But Rep. James Corman said the convention must take a stand on busing because the issue is "a matter of great national importance."

Navy Kudos To Mill Valley Man

John S. Berray of 11 Circle Way, Mill Valley, has been awarded the Navy Meritorious Civilian Service Award on his retirement as superintendent of the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard Mechanical Group.

It marked the second time that Berry received the award — the first was when he was a young leadingman sheetmetal worker at Hunters Point in April 1946.

Berray was cited for his work in leading the combined federal campaign at Hunters Point to 123.5 per cent of its preassigned goal, and for his recent accomplishments in meeting the due dates on the carriers Enterprise and Ranger while the shipyard was undergoing a large reduction in force.

Beauty Queen Quits, Calls Role 'Degrading'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Miss California-World of 1972, Patricia Kinne, 18, resigned her title during the weekend, complaining that she had been treated "like cattle...like a product."

"I felt degraded," said the San Gabriel girl, who won the title three weeks ago. The first runnerup, Miki Garcia of Sacramento, will represent California at the Miss World-USA contest next month in Hampton, Va.

Precious Film's Return Is Asked

New York Times Idled By Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Times was forced to suspend publication of today's morning editions because of a work stoppage Sunday night by members of the New York Mailers Union.

A spokesman for the newspaper said the mailers, who handle the printed newspapers from the presses to the delivery trucks, walked off the job just as the first edition press run began about 9:30 p.m.

The mailers claimed the newspaper violated its contract with the union by changing mailroom work conditions that could result in the elimination of 24 jobs. A newspaper spokesman said the action was in compliance with the contract and that "any issues could be resolved under the existing terms of the contract."

The spokesman said the newspaper was able to print only about 1,000 copies out of its average press run of 850,000.

Teacher Aids First Step Outside A Mental Ward

Woody Mizelle of 105 A Marinero Circle, Tiburon, is a teacher. He has only nine pupils, and school begins each day with a business meeting at which the teenagers decide what they're going to do.

"If any child wants a group — say he had a bad weekend — he can choose which others he would like to talk to about it. He can set a time limit on the group," said Mizelle.

The pupils are all 13 to 16 year-old patients in the Children's Center at Napa State Hospital. Mizelle is teaching in an experimental satellite home prograv which is intended to alter radically the sudden transition children face when they're discharged from the hospital into community life.

"It's an intensive day treatment program," explained Mizelle, who was on vacation last week, "and the home is on the hospital's grounds. The kids spend the night on the wards, but rom 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. they're in the home."

Dr. Richard Kogel, program director of the children's center, said: "We've long been aware there has been a big gap between programs in the community and for youngsters living in a hospital ward."

"We're trying to move toward an intermediate program, and hope eventually to have 100 to 150 youngsters living in these homes."

He said probably all except about 20 patients would be housed off the hospital grounds in satellite homes in Napa and Solano counties, within a 15 to 20 mile radius so the children could attend school at the children's center.

WOODY MIZELLE
Hospital teacher

The children's center handles youngsters in the hospital. They have all been voluntarily committed, either by their parents or by juvenile courts, and Dr. Kogel emphasized that they are emotionally disturbed, not mentally retarded.

This is a pilot program for state hospitals, with a similar venture being tried at Camarillo State Hospital in Ventura county which serves the southeran one-third of the state — Napa handles the rest of California.

Mizelle said he personally feels the satellite home program is working well — "and I'd like to interest community service organizations in Marin in the program. For instance, I'd love to take the kids to see One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest but we don't have the funds for field trips.

"These kids are emotionally handicapped, not mentally retarded, but for them it's the last chance, it's just beyond the stop sign.

"Most have had some contact with the law and run the gamut of every community agency before they get to the hospital. Some have been into drugs, problems at home, parental conflict, they've faced it all.

"We want them to have the experience of a home situation and dealing with the problems they're going to face outside."

At the moment the nine adolescents in the satellite home do spend most of the day in the hospital wards, but Dr. Kogel said it will be expanded into a 24-hour program.

Mizelle works with a social worker and two psychiatric technicians. Originally from North Carolina, he has a bachelor's degree in psychology and his master's in education from San Francisco State College.

"We do a lot of role playing, drama, high interest reading and practical maths," he said, "everything to develop personal awareness."

The average stay at the hospital for child patients is around a year, said Mizelle. Statistically one third are 12 and younger the remainder 13 to 16.

"They're labeled emotionally handicapped, but they're very adequate kids," said Mizelle. "The adolescent satellite home is called The Rising Sun. That name was given by one of patients, a 16-year-old girl who was on heroin."

Air Base Joint Use Study Ready; Hearing Slated For Wednesday

The Marin County Planning Department has concluded that limited joint military-civilian use of Hamilton Air Force Base would not increase the level of noise, and that the city of Novato should have a voice in all planning of such use.

The study, requested by the county board of supervisors, will be considered Wednesday during a special meeting of the county aviation commission. The meeting is slated for 8 p.m. in Room 332 of the Civic Center administration building.

While concluding that the noise level would not increase significantly, the study does not attempt to answer other environmental questions posed by joint use of the base.

It recommends consultants be hired to delve into matters of air and water pollution, geology, wildlife preservation, economic impact and health and safety.

The county report notes that a recent regional airport study commissioned by the Association of Bay Area Governments concludes that Hamilton could handle more than the 20 civilian flights a day being proposed with only "marginal noise impact."

"We estimate that the 20 flights a day would slightly stimulate the pace of growth at established industrial and commercial areas near Hamilton — not an undesirable effect," the report continues.

"Increases in service and/or new access roads would have a greater economic effect, which would generally be desirable and compatible with present plans. . ."

Joint use of Hamilton has been opposed by some county residents —primarily in Novato who claim their opposition is based on environmental concerns.

The report says traffic to the field would increase by about 4,000 car trips per day over existing roads. "If the Air Force can handle this additional traffic, the existing road system appears adequate for the proposed joint use."

The regional study, the county report continues, "forecasts a demand of 2.5 million civilian passengers at Hamilton in 1985 from Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties for only California destinations.

"Additional demand would likely come from the Richmond area of Contra Costa County and even from the northern edge of San Francisco."

The report adds that if supporting facilities grow to meet the demand of 2.5 million passengers, they should be tightly controlled by local government agencies.

"Our studies to date have clearly indicated that land use, traffic and environmental impact of the joint use will primarily affect the City of Novato," the report said.

"We, therefore, recommend that the city be included in all further planning for and eventual operation of joint use. An appropriate instrument would be a joint powers agreement between the city and the county."

Hike In Meter Rates On Agenda

The Mill Valley City Council will consider for the second time a proposal to increase parking meter charges from a nickel to a dime per hour at its meeting at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The first time the council reviewed the proposal, the matter was referred to the city manager to prepare a comparison of other parking charges throughout Marin County.

Among other items on the council's lengthy agenda will be the second reading of an ordinance which would require beverage merchants to post a sign in their stores encouraging their customers to buy returnable bottles and a public hearing on a proposal to close off the fire trails on the northridge to automobiles by installing gates.

Joint Use Plan Faces Opposition

From 3,200 to 3,500 signatures were obtained Saturday in Novato on petitions opposing commercial use of Hamilton Air Force Base, it was reported today.

The petitions will be presented to the Novato City Council at a special public hearing on joint use of the base at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House.

The North Marin Federation of Homeowner and Improvement Associations and Marin Alert gathered the signatures, according to Joseph Seminario, president of Marin Alert.

Evelyn Johnson of the Homeowners Association and Seminario today are tabulating the number of signatures gathered in a house-to-house canvas of the area and at the supermarkets around the city. A complete tabulation of the number of signatures will not be completed until just prior to the public hearing tonight, he said.

The joint use of the base will also be discussed by the Marin County Aviation Commission at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center.

Phone Survey Repudiated, Then Claimed Legitimate

A Marin telephone survey that has been repudiated by Hamm's brewery officials as not being conducted by them has been claimed by an Oakland woman who reported today that she is conducting the survey for Guidelines, Inc., a New York marketing research firm.

Mary L. Clausen, who has an office at 5215 Shattuck Avenue, Oakland, told the Independent Journal today that she has been conducting the phone survey in Marin for the past week, she is doing it for Guidelines but has no idea of the identity of their client nor the purpose.

She said she has hired 10 Marin women to phone residents at random and elicit their views on beverage preference and beer container preference. Hamms is mentioned frequently by consumers, she said, because of its new container but is not mentioned first by the callers.

Names and addresses are elicited to verify phone numbers obtained in the local phone directory, she said.

The survey has drawn attention since a Mill Valley woman told police her house was burglarized two days after she received such a call. Subsequent reports were received by San Anselmo and Larkspur police from women who said they became suspicious when their names and addresses were asked.

Hamms local distributors issued a statement that neither the brewers nor distributors, were conducting such a survey.

Attack Reported

A gang of youths confronted him on Bay Hills Drive in San Rafael at 11 p.m. Saturday, stuck a pen knife in his stomach and stole his sleeping bag, Scott Hamilton Yates, of 19 Marcos Place, San Rafael, told police yesterday.

Stock Fuss Is Back In Court Tomorrow

Stapower will seek in Marin Superior Court a preliminary injunction stopping Gay from selling his Stapower stock to a third party until the matter is settled in court.

When Gay left Patrick's firm, he still owned stock in Stapower, and a contract was drawn up in which the company agreed to buy the stock for $265,615 in installment payments.

In the meantime, Stapower executives have accused Gay of damaging the value of the stock by making derogatory remarks about the firm. They want the contract rescinded, plus $1 million in damages.

Gay charges, however, that Stapower has not lived up to the terms of the bargain and has missed three payments of $11,067 each this year. He wants more than $31 million damages plus the money still owing on the stock.

Woodacre Bike Rider Injured

A 10-year-old Woodacre boy was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with a broken leg suffered when he and his brother were struck by an auto while riding their bicycles in Woodacre.

The California Highway Patrol said Geoffrey McNew of 212 Railroad Avenue was injured about 10:05 p.m. Friday when he went through a stop sign onto Central Avenue and was struck by an eastbound car driven by Peter H. Berton, 24, of Woodacre. His brother, Kevin, 8, also struck by the car, suffered minor injuries but was not hospitalized.

School Budget Changes Eyed

The Novato Unified School District board will determine if it can change its $10,800,214 publication budget, to provide raises for teachers, at 8 p.m. today at Novato High School's lecture hall.

The budget carries no provision for raises, and teachers have suggested cuts in sports to free the money for raises.

SHAKESPEAREAN EXPERT

Festival Is Very Fortunate

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

When, after seeing Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" six times, a 7-year-old girl says, "Mommy, when can we go again?" you know something unusual is happening in her home life.

The question was asked this summer by Shoshana Colman, whose mother, Dr. Libby Lee Colman of Sausalito, is an authority on Shakespeare.

Mrs. Colman — in private life the wife of Dr. Arthur D. Colman, a psychiatrist, and mother of two other children, Johan, 3, and Ari, 19 months — holds a doctorate in history of drama from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

The Marin Shakespeare Festival was fortunate when she agreed to coordinate and participate in a series of lectures in connection with the festival's current productions of "Twelfth Night" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Dr. Colman has already given one lecture and will give another on Aug. 28 on "The Arc of Our Emotions: Factors Contributing to Audience Response in Shakespeare."

Tonight Dr. Robert Raines will speak on "The Art of Acting: Perspective perspective on the Marin Shakespeare Festival Production of 'Twelfth Night.' " All lectures are given at 8:30 p.m. in the Forest Meadows theater, San Rafael.

DR. ARTHUR D. COLMAN, a psychiatrist, and his wife, Dr. Libby Lee Colman, who is an authority on Shakespeare, write books together. Mrs. Colman is coordinating and participating in a series of lectures in connection with the Marin Shakespeare Festival productions of "Romeo and Juliet" and "Twelfth Night."

WHILE SHOSHANA quietly drew pictures and contributed her own comments occasionally, Dr. Colman, a native of Woodstock, N.Y., explained her background and how she became especially interested in Shakespeare.

"I received my B.A. in English and psychology from Wellesley and took education courses at Smith College and journalism at Syracuse University," she said. "I taught English and journalism and directed school plays in high school in Boyesville before I met my husband, and we came to Sausalito in 1963.

"I'm something of a book worm and decided to go on and get my M.A. in English and American literature at San Francisco State College.

"I also taught freshman compostion at the college at this time and was program director for the Jewish Community Center in San Rafael one summer in 1964.

"A month before taking my final exams, Shoshana was born, and I continued teaching part time afterward for one winter."

DR. COLMAN recalled that, though she had been a member of the Shakespeare Society and acted in plays at Wellesley, her special interest in Shakespeare began at San Francisco State.

"I had to write a term paper on verbal music in Shakespeare, and I became so enthralled and had so much research to do for the paper that I thought I might as well go on for a doctorate."

Then the family moved to Washington, D.C., while her husband was in military service at Walter Reed Hospital. During that time she studied at the Folger Shakespeare Library, which has such large collection of first folios that people come there from England to study.

On completion of her husband's military service, she said, they decided to take a year off and go to Israel before settling down to ever-narrowing professional commitments in this country.

While he was busy at a government hospital in the Judean hills, Mrs. Colman continued her Shakespeare studies at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem under a fellowship grant for a year and wrote her doctoral dissertation there.

Both Jewish, the Colmans learned Hebrew, and this became the first language of their son Johan, who was born after they returned to this country and she completed work on her doctorate at George Washington University.

DR. COLMAN has definite convictions about how Shakespeare should be taught. "It should always be in conjunction with performances," she emphasized. "I give lectures on the evening of performances so that the audience can have about a half hour break before the play begins. It's good to have a discussion with the actors afterward, but by that time most of the people are too tired."

At any rate, she says, "the play should always be read before seeing it. There are always discrepancies between what you think the play is going to be and the actual production. These discrepancies can be explained afterward, and you begin to realize that there are many more possibilities than you thought in how a play can be produced."

Dr. Colman is especially interested in the verbal music in Shakespeare's language. "It has symphonic qualities," she pointedout. "You can actually see opera being born in his plays and music being inteorated with drama."

When the Colmans were expecting their third child, Ari, they decided to write a book together on "Pregnancy: the Psychological Experience."

THEY FEEL that both parents must be aware of the profound significance of having a child and that it really begins at conception, not after they come from the hospital. They are now working on another book which is a developmental study of love and what one needs in order to love another person.

Last year Libby Colman taught psychology at the recently founded new college of Sausalito, and she will teach one course on the history of drama there this fall.

She admits that her home and family come first and says that writing and teaching in college, with its more flexible hours than high school, make the best combination of career and marriage.

"I didn't plan to have a career," she said. "It happened gradually. I had had the experience of being taken seriously as a professional, and my husband took me seriously as a professional. I have chosen things which I can control so that I can choose when to devote my attention to my work. My children know they are number one, and their needs are less intense," she said.

Proper Care's Important For The Swimsuit

Chlorinated swimming pools and the salty sea may be suitable for swimmers, but highly unsuitable for suits. Care needs to be taken of any swimsuit to assure brightness, fit and freedom from mildew.

For daily swimmers, washing the suit isn't necessary after each wearing, but proper rinsing after use is imperative, regardless of color or fabric, according to Virginia White, laundry experts for a laundry products manufacturer.

CHILD CARE

Centers Not The Question In Some Areas Of World

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

In many countries around the world, child care centers are as much an accepted part of every day life as the corner grocery store.

A Monitor survey of seven countries — the Soviet Union, Sweden, China, Israel, France, Britain, and Japan —finds that the question is not, like that in the United States, whether or not there should be a widespread public system of child care, but how to get more facilities quickly and how to improve standards.

Not only is there a shortage of places for children of mothers who must work in most of these countries, but the demand is ballooning as more and more women choose to hold jobs regardless of whether they need the income.

In China, child care is an absolute necessity since almost all women of working age hold full-time jobs. The majority of children are cared for right in the factory where their mothers work. There are no statistics available, but it is believed that in urban regions, most people with children have access to child-care facilities if they need them.

The Soviet Union, too, has an effective, widely developed system of child care which is heavily subsidized by the government. Some 9.4 million children of preschool age, or about 30 per cent of the total, now attend nurseries and kindergartens.

In some cities, including Moscow, the demand for day-care facilities is reportedly met, but in many other areas there are waiting lists. There were more than one million applications that could not be filled at the end of 1971. To meet the growing need the state plans to provide space for another two million by 1975. It is also building preschool centers in all new residential neighborhoods, right along with schools and shops.

EVEN IN Sweden, where day care has been an integral part of the social welfare state for many years, only 40,000 children are accommodated in day-care facilities — less than half of those who are waiting in line to get in. Another 90,000 children from four to seven years old are in nursery schools which accept them for three hours on weekdays.

In Israel two-thirds of all mothers who work outside their homes send their children to day care. All children in Kibbutzim (communal settlements) and 71 per cent in development towns are cared for collectively. However, children in kibbutzim live together permanently in a total communal environment.

In the big Israeli cities, about one-third of children under three years of age attend centers.

In Japan, places for 1.2 million children are not enough to free the number of women needed to take jobs to satisfy the demand in this labor-short country.

IN BRITAIN and France, day care is still taking its first baby steps in terms of numbers. The cry of mothers is, "We want more facilities."

With the exception of China and the Soviet Union, where day care is available to everyone, most of the countries surveyed give priority to children from low-income families where both parents must work, children from single-parent homes, and those children who come from families with personal problems.

In most countries parents pay fees based on their ability to pay.

Child care, in most of the countries investigated, is subsidized by the government. In China, most of the centers have been organized by factories, neighborhood Street Revolutionary Committees, and other industrial organizations.

Jonathan Unger reports that at one large factory he visited in Canton, three-fourths of the 3,000 employees were female. Five hundred of their children aged 1½ to 7 were enrolled in the factory's nursery school. The older children, he was told, were being cared for at home by grandparents.

In China, about 54 days after a child is born, the mother returns to her job, her maternity leave having run out. Her new baby is placed in a nursery ward not far from the factory floor. Several times a day the new mothers take time off from the job to breast-feed and play with their infants. At 18 months the tot joins the regular factory nursery school and at age 7 he enters primary school.

Nursery hours inChinan as in most other countries that have day care, are geared to the parent's work schedules.

It is the urban families that do not have any grandparents available who make use of the wide network of child-care centers in the cities of China.

In Chinese child-care centers, extraordinary emphasis is placed on developing Maoist attitudes toward work. The tots are told stories about devoted little children workers and about adult worker-heroes. They sing songs about the joys of selfless labor for the common good and they are taught simple work tasks.

Similarly, in the Soviet Union, day care prepares children to take their place in a collectivist society by inculcating them with a "communist morality" that focuses on the needs of the group rather than on the individual. An effort is made to instill a love of Lenin and country, a sense of collective mindedness, truthfulness, obedience, and self-discipline.

DR. JOAN Bergstrom, an American expert on child care on the staff of Wheelock College in Boston, who has visited and made a study of both Russian and Swedish day care, said of the Soviet Union: "There seemed to me to be no mention of designing the programs to capitalize upon the children's interests. They were not openended and there seemed to be few materials for experimentation."

Dr. Bergstrom describes what it is like to be in a Russian child-care center:

"I was impressed with the generally high level of maintenance evident throughout the buildings. Many of the rooms were bright and cheerful. Many contained plants, living creatures, bookshelves, and shelves displaying wooden animals, dolls, flat and round wooden toys in bright colors, scissors, fine-tipped paint brushes, and stuffed animals. Materials available depended upon the age group of the children. On the whole the wooden toys were designed and painted in the traditional folk art style and many of them were used in aesthetic education."

Although the overall trend is toward more and better child-care centers, some Soviet experts, like other experts around the world, now are saying that parental care of infants is preferable. They advocate that working mothers stay home until their babies are 2 and 3 and be paid, say, 50 per cent of their regular wages during this time.

There are also some who, out of concern for the nation's declining birth rate, favor paying mothers to stay home in order to encourage them to have larger families.

It is unlikely that Soviet women, who now hold more than half of all jobs, can be persuaded to tie themselves down with more babies, however.

THE DEMAND for day care in Sweden is intense, and it is not cheap.

The amount parents pay varies according to their income and to the number of children they have in day nurseries. It runs from about 20 cents a day to about $7.

Dr. Bergstrom reports that

Sometimes Those Physical Encounters Can Turn Into Emotional Time Bombs

DEAR HELEN:
Why is "infidelity" in marriage always lined with sex?

There's a difference between infidelity and adultery: a man (or woman) can be untrue to a spouse in many more, perhaps worse, ways than sexually.

For example, there's the "faithful" wife who never once refused her husband, but never once understood him either. And how about the man who enjoys the marriage bed but shares no other part of his life with his so-called mate? Selfishness, belittling, ignoring, obvious boredom, lack of sympathy — these rob a marriage of its joy, thus they're a form of "cheating."

Supposedly "true" people commit mental infidelity each day, and this kind hurts the most.

My husband and I are both career persons and are away from home often. When we are separated, I don't expect him to withstand all physical temptations. But so long as they are mere encounters, who cares? I don't quiz him. He doesn't question me. Possible extra-curricular sex leaves us unworried because we have the complete marriage: we are best friends as well as lovers, communicate as equals, have the freedom of trust (where it really matters) and therefore don't bother with jealousy.

What I mean is a little adultery doesn't need to break up a marriage, if it's a cool sampling of something different. But infidelity — with or without sex — can end it because that means shattered faith. — MODERN CAREER WIFE

DEAR MODERN:
True, "cheating" takes many forms, some much less forgivable than sex.

But... what begins as your cool, modern fun-and-games adultery oftentimes becomes faith-shattering infidelity. Are you two sure you can turn off the "passing physical encounters" before they go mental? — H.

DEAR HELEN:
The trouble with traditional marriage is that a mate must be all things to his or her spouse, and one person isn't usually capable of "all things." Some women are good at housekeeping, others at seduction; there are wives who help their husbands in business, can talk to them "man to man," but can't entertain, and are failures with children. Likewise, the man who is best at romance may not be the greatest provider; he could like children but he might fail at managing them.

Seems to me the logical solution is group marriage, or anyway commune living where each person provides one skill and they all combine to make life ideal. — DREAMER

DEAR DREAMER:
Dream on, friend, but in real life, communes or group marriages seldom last long, possibly because participants get typed as "good" housekeepers, child rearers, providers, sexpots, lovers, etc., and only the last two named don't tire of the casting. — H.

DEAR HELEN:
Speaking of unwed mothers, did you hear about the girl who worked as housekeeper for a wealthy childless couple? One day she confessed to her employers that she must resign as she was pregnant. They agreed to adopt the child and let her stay on. A year later, same story, and still later they adopted her third baby, also illegitimate.

Shortly afterward, she again handed in her resignation.

"In trouble again?" they asked.

"No," she complained. "It's just that I'm sick and tired of having to care for such a large family!" — H.R.C.

Vows Said In Chapel At College

St. Mary's College Chapel in Moraga was the setting for the wedding of Regina Ann Peri of San Anselmo to John McLoughlin of San Bruno.

A reception was held afterward at Deer Park Villa in Fairfax.

For the noon ceremony Saturday Regina chose her sister Dominica Peri as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Coleen Nightingale of Kentfield, Pamela Gomez of Atherton, Mrs. Jamie Keith of San Francisco, Marigene Ghiringhelli of Fairfax and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Sheila McQuade of San Carlos.

Hank McLoughlin of San Bruno was his brother's best man. The guests were seated by the bride's brother, Michael Peri of San Anselmo, and Ronald Mick of San Rafael, Michael McQuade of San Carlos, Michael Crain of Orinda, James Silvestri of San Rafael and Tom Keith of San Francisco.

The couple are on a wedding trip to the Grand Tetons in Wyoming. They will live in San Rafael.

An Excellent Guide For Consumer

WASHINGTON — The state of North Dakota has a service that few other states has: a shopping guide to the ingredients in various food and beverage products.

It's not a best seller, even in North Dakota. And its title does not tell much about its contents. Its called simply "Bulletin No. 168." Publisher is the State Laboratories Commission in Bismarck.

Inside, however, is a shopper's delight, including some well kept secrets about what lies inside such products as butter, ice cream, oleo-margarine, breakfast cereals, hamburger, snack foods, fruit juice concentrates, imitation fruit drinks and even water and beer.

NET CONTENTS are also measured and compared to amounts stated on labels. Most states make sure comparisons to see if labels are truthful. But few states go as far as North Dakota in analysing and publishing data not listed on labels and packages.

Most breakfast cereals now list their ingredients in detail as to vitamins, minerals and protein. This bulletin provides a handy listing of most national brands, with detailed content analyses for each.

Among the cereals tested, Kellogg's Special K has the most protein, with 20.1 per cent. Next come Quaker Instant Oatmeal, with 16.0 per cent; Roman Meal, 15.8 Nabisco 100 per cent Bran, 13.2 and Post Grape Nuts, with 11.5 per cent.

Next come Post 40 per cent Bran Flakes, with 11.3 per cent protein; Kellogg's Krumbles, 11.0; Buc Wheats (General Mills), 10.2; Nabisco's Cream of Wheat, 10.1; General Mills' Wheaties and Kellogg's Product 19, both 8.9 per cent.

The cereals listed with the smallest protein percentages are Post Toasties, 7.6 per cent; Country Corn Flakes (General Mills), 7.0 per cent; Count Chocula (General Mills), 6.2 per cent; Quaker Puffed Rice, 6.0 per cent and Cream of Rice, 5.7 per cent.

SNACK FOODS are analysed for proportions of moisture, fat, protein, fiber, ash and salt. The ones with the most protein are Sunshine Cheez-it Crackers, with 13.7 per cent, and Bacon Flavored Thins from Nabisco, with 10.2.

Potato chips generally show less protein and more fat. Cheese snacks average about one-quarter fat, while chips average about one-third fat.

Imitation fruit juice beverages range from about 7 to 15 per cent natural fruit juice. No juice at all is listed for Birds Eye's Awake and Hawaiian Punch from RJR Foods Inc.

The list shows Hi-C from Coca-Cola Co. with 9.9 per cent fruit juice and Del Monte Orange Drink with 9.4 per cent.

Various brands of beer are also analysed for alcohol content. The results show a range from 3.6 per cent(for Black Label) to 5.5 per cent (for Miller's High Life).

Other well known brands and their alcohol percentages are:

Pale Export Olympia Beer, 4.3 per cent; Hamm's Beer, 4.5 per cent; Schlitz, 4.6 per cent; Pabst Blue Ribbon, 4.7 per cent and both Budweiser Lager and Hamm's Preferred Stock, with 5.0 per cent.

Bulletin No. 168 is available to out-of-state residents for $1 per copy. It can be obtained from the State Laboratories Commission, Bismarck, N.D.

one Swedish father she spoke to had one child in a pre-school program and another in an after-school group. Both the man and his wife worked and made good salaries. It was much to the couple's advantage to have a housekeeper who could care for the children and the house.

A housekeeper would be cheaper than day care. But, says Dr. Bergstrom, "This father was convinced that his children should be in a group situation and he said he was willing to do the housework and to help his wife on Saturdays so that they could do without the housekeeper and keep his children in day care."

However, there is deep soul-searching in Sweden about how to improve day care. Every aspect is being scrutinized.

Swedish child-care centers aim to be an extension of the home where children are encouraged to develop their individual personalities as well as a place to learn how to get along with others.

In contrast to the Soviet system, preschoolers in Sweden are urged to make their own discoveries "with as little direct guidance as possible."

Children are accepted into child care at the age of six months and can stay there through their sixth year. Primary school starts9at age 7.

Nursery schools which care for children for three hours a day take children from 3 to 6 years old.

Two-Piece Dress Is The Big News

The big news of the Yves St. Laurent Rive Gauche collection shown in New York last week was the two-piece dress, featuring a softer silhouette.

Pleated or flared skirts are combined with softly bloused tops. For wear in the day or evening, St. Laurent selected cotton voile, crepe de chine and silk shantung for the resort collection. The newest fabric is cotton voile as soft as chiffon, printed with large, muted floral designs.

Why A Special Town Meeting?

By PAT PERRY

Why does a long established town like Corte Madera suddenly need a town meeting?

Because in Corte Madera there is intense citizen interest and involvement in civic affairs. Most town council and planning commission meetings attract large audiences, and never a one goes by without someone standing up and having his say.

There's been a recall movement against the mayor this year, there have been demonstrations and angry words over the controversial Madera del Presidio high-density development near the Koch Luggage plant, and an emergency building moratorium.

More than 100 people attended a residents' roundtable just to plan a town meeting, and it's expected that many hundreds of Corte Maderans will go to the meeting itself, set for Sept. 30 at Redwood High.

"Before we came to Corte Madera I hadn't been interested in local government. But here it involves my own backyard. It's on such a level that my voice makes a difference.

"At my first election here there was a one vote difference, so I know for sure what I vote counts. And it's good to have a government you can go and say hello to on the street. To know that you aren't simply an IBM card."

Mrs. Carlson is on the open space study group for the town meeting, one of four groups researching and developing facts sheets for the all day event. Other subjects for the morning forums include updating the general plan, city services, and improving communications between citizens and government.

Betty Pierce, chairman of the meeting, has lived in Corte Madera for 21 years, and is entirely optimistic about the meeting's potential.

"It will give citizens the opportunity to say what they would like the future of the town to be. Particularly because of the general plan revision people are more apt now, this year, to be interested than a year ago or perhaps next year."

She considers the meeting will be constructive. "You see when someone goes to the town council or the planning commission they usually go to oppose something. Here they can state the positive things they want to see," she said.

The format of the town meeting, to be moderated by Peter Belden, teacher of psychology at Tamalpais High School, will be a morning session at which participants will split up into one of the four subject groups.

After lunch the entire conference will meet to hear reports from the groups. Then they'll make up a list of priorities and make specific recommendations for local government agencies.

When the possibility of a town meeting was first mooted town councilmen were lukewarm to the idea, but their attitudes visibly changed when it became apparent the event was intended to be constructive. Officials, including Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville attended the planning meeting.

"If nothing else the town meeting will serve to educate its citizens," predicted Patricia Rodriguez.

Already the researchers are uncovering surprising areas of ignorance. For instance, many long-time residents of west Corte Madera had no idea that the town east of Highway 101 (which includes 50 per cent of the population) had no park at all.

Similarly it had not occurred to them that it was difficult for east side children to get to the town park by bicycle.

"Corte Madera is sort of at the crossroads," said Donald Adams, "a lot of other towns have lost their chance, but it's not too late for us."

GI Homecoming Dispels Myth Of His Body In Mangrove Swamp

HOUSTON (UPI)—Phillip J. Manning came home this weekend and proved that the skeletal remains found in the bayou near his home last year weren't his.

He was missing for 13 months and police have believed he was dead for 12.

Manning joined the Army June 26 and was soon due for promotion to corporal, he said. He will be 15 on Aug. 31.

During the 13 months Manning motorcycled through 48 states, saw the flood disaster in Rapid City, S.D., and served a short term in the Army. He was considered dead all that time by his family and police.

"I should have listened to my father when he told me it would be rough when I got out into the world," he said after his arrival from Fort Polk, La.

Manning said he plans to go to school both days and evenings until he finishes, then he wants to join the Army again.

He had a lot of trouble getting out of the service. His mother had to go to Fort Polk with Manning's birth certificate, his school records and sign a notarized affadavit that he had lived with the family.

He was released from the service Friday and collected an Army check for more than $300.

Manning joined the Army using a birth certificate under the name of Michael E. Blassingame. He and a friend enlisted at the same time after they had toured the country on motorcycles and had nothing else left to do, he said.

Last week, Manning was one of a busload of soldiers that stopped in Ragley, La., on the way back from Fort Polk. Manning saw a cousin in the bus station.

Jimmy Hollingsworth, the cousin who works at the station, said, "a boy got off the bus—he had Blassingame on his uniform—and asked how Grandma Dunn and Pam (another cousin) were doing."

Hollingsworth didn't recognize Manning, whom he hadn't seen in three years. Later, after he had thought about the incident, he called Mrs. James Dunn of De Quincy, La. and asked if she had a grandson named Blassingame.

She said she didn't but said the description sounded like Manning. She called Manning's parents and Manning's mother called police who in turn called Fort Polk.

They traced Manning and his mother drove to Fort Polk last Wednesday and identified him. The army questioned him and he and his mother were reunited.

"We just ran and grabbed each other," she said. "It was the most wonderful feeling I've ever had in my life. It was so grand to have him back."

Manning's father, Bobby J. Manning, was convinced his son was still alive, Mrs. Manning said, but she wasn't so optimistic until last week.

"I thought it (the skeleton) was him, I really did," she said. "But my husband didn't think so at all — he said he was off bumming around somewhere."

Three Hurt In Fire At Old Hotel

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—When the fire alarm bell clanged in the dead of night at the Barclay Hotel most of the fire-conscious residents were awakened and made their way to the street in quick but orderly style.

The alarm was sounded at 2:05 a.m. today and the hotel was quickly emptied of its approximate 120 tenants, a fire department spokesman said.

It was a general alarm blaze but was confined to the sixth floor. No injuries to residents were reported. Three firemen suffered minor injuries.

The 77-year-old hotel in the downtown area was hit by fire last March. Three persons died and seven were hurt in that fire.

This morning, one tenant, 91-year-old John McCracken was led to safety by a fireman.

"Someone woke me earlier," he said, "but they didn't say anything about a fire."

In addition to sounding the alarm bell, hotel employes telephoned residents and also knocked on doors.

George Schultze, 78, was awake, reading in his room, and suddenly became aware of the noise of fire engines on the street.

"When I saw the ladders go up, I walked out," said Schultze. "I've lived through an earthquake and two fires here. I guess things just happen to me."

A Tax Hike Regardless The Victor

BOSTON (UPI) — Nobel Prize-winning economist Paul A. Samuelson says federal taxes will rise again next year, regardless of who is elected president.

But, overall, he predicted, "1973 will be a good year" economically.

"There will be a tax increase whoever wins in November. It can't be avoided," said Samuelson, head of the economics department at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in an interview with the Sunday Herald Traveler and Sunday Advertiser.

"There will always be trouble with the economy. Things usually get rough a year or two after a recovery period but there is reason to believe that 1973 will be a good year and that whoever is elected will keep going right to the end of 1973."

Samuelson, an economic adviser in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, said tax loopholes will be a main issue in the election campaign.

"The working man doesn't like to see the rich getting tax shelters, such as trusts, citrus groves, beef cattle, and investment tax credits," said Samuelson.

As for the economy in general and Nixon's policies, Samuelson said, "Without question, he has stolen the thunder from his critics."

Clark Asks 'Truth' In Bombing Of Dikes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark urged the U.S. government in a magazine article published Sunday "to demonstrate the truth of its answer" to charges that it is deliberately bombing dikes in North Vietnam.

Clark said in a Life magazine article that he met Aug. 11 with North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong and Dong accused the United States of waging "a war of genocide" in Vietnam and deliberately bombing the dikes.

"I believe in our basic goodness," Clark said. "We will not tolerate this if it is true. I believe our government has the highest duty to demonstrate the truth of its answer to this charge.

The United States has denied that it has intentionally bombed the dikes.

Clark said he viewed bomb damage to five villages, five cities, six dikes, two sluices, six schools, four hospitals and four churches in the six northern provinces, which have not been as hard hit as the southern part of the country.

He described damage to one section of the dike system in the Red River Delta, which is vital to the North Vietnamese to retain water for rice in the dry season and to protect crops and people from inundation by seawater.

"The Lan Sluice is a key water-control facility servicing 48,000 acres of land, according to the minister of water conservancy, and some 600,000 people live in the area affected by its operation," Clark said.

"When I saw it on Aug. 3, it was ringed by bomb craters on the dry-land sides. The concrete was heavily pocked. The superstructure and its steel frames, engine houses, lifts and cables were demolished," he said. "No repairs were under way."

Princess Marries American Student

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A 21-year- old princess of Thailand married an American engineering student during the weekend, saying she was not giving up much in abandoning her royal status.

The daughter of King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit of Thailand, known to fellow students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as Julie Mahidol, married Peter L. Jensen, 21, at All Souls Episcopal Church in a 12-minute service.

TURN THAT CHILD INTO A TOAD!

Slithering and sliding, swooping and snarling, the Wicked Witch in The Wizard of Oz casts a spell of terror over every child who sees the current Marin Shakespeare Festival play. Connie Kennedy of San Diego has brought a new dimension to the witch's role, playing her with feline menace. Her dramatic entrances, complete with flashes of fire and smoke, send shudders up small spines. The musical has been so successful that it's been extended for four additional shows, with afternoon and evening performances set for Aug. 28 and 29 at 2:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Miss Forrester Gives An Exciting Marin Recital

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Canadian controlto Maureen Forrester enchanted an audience of some 900 people yesterday afternoon at the Veterans Memorial Building in the closing concert of the Marin Music Chest summer series.

Her program, which ranged from art songs of the utmost refinement and sophistication to lullabyes and spirituals, marked her debut as a song recitalist in the Bay Area — a notable achievement for te music chest, for this singer is world renowned for her honey-mellow voice and consummate artistry in communicating both dramatic and infinitely delicate shades of meaning.

She has a powerful voice, evenly developed through a wide register — especially thrilling in its lowest range, and she produces it with great freedom and agility, yet controls it smoothly.

A large woman, she has a majestic stage presence, but still manages successfully a folksy charm in songs in which that manner is appropriate. I particularly admired her mastery of the art of gesture and movement, a difficult accomplishment in the static situation of a song recital. Her gestures were not only graceful but suggested to just the right degree the mood of the songs and meaning of the lyrics.

Her opening number, the aria "Ariande Auf Naxos" by Haydn was operatic and her most dramatic selection. This and the following group of 10 Italian poems translated into German and set to music by Hugo Wolf, were sung in polished German. The Wolf lied were a special joy because the words are so perfectly matched to and integrated with the music, and Miss Forrester's ability to vary tonal color achieved a full realization of the changing moods, from terror to playful flippancy.

Very much the same characteristics were revealed in the five "Melodies Passageres," five French poems of Ranier Maria Rilke set to music by Samuel Barber and sung in French.

In a group of four lullabyes by Britten, sung in English, the contralto spun the finest silken pianissimos and contrasted these with the dynamic witch's "Charm" lullabye frov Humperdinck's opera "Hansel and Gretel," a great success because of her flair for comedy.

Miss Forrester closed her program with two delightful French folk songs arranged by Britten and two spirituals from the noted American Negro Roland Hayes "Songs of My People."

As an encore dedicated to the children present Miss Forrester sang an hilarious little song based on an essay by an 8-year-old boy.

Her accompanist was an excellent young pianist from Los Angeles, Martin Katz, who was notable for his ability to adapt his dynamic levels to the singer's powerful voice.

At intermission Marin Music Chest president Mrs. John A. Lesoine introduced four recent $200 scholarship winners, naming the particular scholarships they received. They were cellist Jerry LeClerc, a Caroline Livermore scholarship; pianist Paul Denegri, the Peter Palmer scholarship; violinist Dan Smiley, the Carlos Freitas scholarship, and trumpeter Robert Elkjer, a Caroline Livermore scholarship.

Two girls unable to be present because of performance engagements were Soprano Clairellen Waldeck, the Marin Music Chest Maude Fay Symington Memorial Scholarship and flautisl Laurel Elkjer, the Florence Archibald Memorial scholarship.

A Polished Concert On The Harpsichord

By WILLIAM CLARK

The unusual program, the last presentation of the Inverness Music Festival for 1972, was an illuminating cross-section of musical currents in the last quarter of the 18th Century.

A gem of an early Mozart sonata and the wit and gaiety of a mature Haydn fantasia set off the intensely idiomatic keyboard writing of Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach, the studied polish of his brother Johann Christian Bach, and the introspection and searching of the third son of Johann Sebastian, Wilhelm Friedemann Bach.

Miss Fabrizio, looking the picture of fragile sensitivity, played with a clean and agile technique, effective registrations, warmth, lyricism, and a very great deal of flexibility. There is no doubt of her ability to communicate to an intimate audience in a very personal way.

She was at her best when rapid tempos thwarted a tendency to overuse agogic accents, and her performance of the Haydn was stunning.

A warm and gemutlich slow movement was achieved in the Mozart, and the first movement of the C.P.E. Bach sonata was dashing, almost bravura.

The connection of W. F. Bach's four polonaises with any dance form was, however, not apparent. The moderate and slow movements, while exhibiting sensitive and musical playing, were sometimes marred by a variable pulse which made the continuity of the musical line difficult to follow. Often the relationship of even consecutive phrases was less than clear.

It is perhaps noteworthy that Miss Fabrizio's harpsichord reinforced the period qualities of the evening with its restrained gold trim and delicate roccoco painted figures covering the soundboard.

This event maintained the high standards and thoughtful programming of the Inverness Music Festival, an organization which makes a real contribution to the vitality of Marin music making.

COUNTY FAIR JURY

'Nice' Out; Tougher Art Wins

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Yesterday, as on probably any other day, the National Guard Armory in San Rafael seemed grim. It had the hollow sound of metal doors and backless benches scraping on cement. Nothing softened the dead white walls or the relentless olive drab scattered around the room on truck parts, lockers and machine guns.

Hard, wire-covered ceiling lights glared down at nothing in particular and only indifferently included the lonely, dingy easel standing in the middle of the floor.

Three chairs faced the easel and in them Ralph DuCasse, Mills College Art Department chairman; William Elsner, curator of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, and Hayward King, Bolles Gallery curator, sat silently jurying fine arts for the upcoming Marin County Fair.

They voted by machine with the majority ruling, each occasionally pressing his green electric button for "accept" and more often, the red one for "reject." And they were usually in accord.

Paintings and graphics particularly, had to stand on their own to make it here. No flattering surroundings, familiarity or good lighting bolstered their merits. Nor was there friendly persuasion among the jurors to save them from rejection, indignity and oblivion behind the metal lockers.

The jury was quick and decisive. In fact, to have a painting brought in and placed on the easel, viewed and judged took little more than 15 seconds. And the toll was heavy. Of the 403 paintings and graphics submitted for its approval, the jury selected only 59. Only 7 of 29 sculptures were accepted.

As with every art competition, there were entries of every sort, style, purpose and pretense. But with respectable prize money and with residency requirements expanded this year to include artists throughout the state, the competition was more intense.

The jury ran through work that would have been accepted and hung in smaller, less significant local shows and discarded most of it. "Nice" things just weren't good enough. Instead, they went for the tougher, crisper, leaner works which declared their importance at a glance. And that could mean bright, big-billed jungle birds, or a contoured canvas with teepee stands of color, or a huge mandala, just as long as when you saw it you were impressed that it was there.

Of all the entries, the judges were particularly pleased with the graphics which they termed "excellent." As for the show overall, Fair officials hope one juror's parting words will tumble from the lips of all Marin County Fair visitors when the show is finally hung. He said, "You can be very proud."

A trophy and the $150 best-in-show award for fine art in the 1972 Marin County Fair was awarded to the painting "Five" by Ralph Hilton of San Francisco. Other $100 merit awards announced by Jean Fitzgerald, chairman of the fine arts division, went to Phyllis Thelan, San Rafael; Charlotte Workman Stevenson, San Rafael; Elizabeth Sher, Fairfax; Wesley Chamberlin, Mill Valley, and Tony Costanzo, Santa Rosa.

Honorable mentions were awarded to Fred Herschleb and Sydney Herschleb of Kentfield; Elisa Maria Leptich, San Francisco; Felice Shatz, San Rafael; and Edith B. Geever, Oakland.

The County Fair fine arts exhibit will be held in the Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center fairgrounds, Aug. 31 through Sept. 4.

Critics Rate Britten's Work Best

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seventy-six music critics and publishers who responded to a questionnaire have named Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem" as the most significant composition of the past 25 years.

The two works which were runners-up were "St. Luke's Passion" by Krzysztof Penderecki and "Mass" by Leonard Bernstein, composed for the opening of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, which conducted the poll.

It was done to help the center program a music festival called "The Old and the New," which will be held at the center from Aug. 30 through Sept. 10, featuring more than 30 concerts of 17th, 18th and 20th Century compositions.

The results of the survey, in which questionnaires were sent to 500 critics and publishers, were announced by Julius Rudel, the center's music director who devised the program, and Martin Feinstein, executive director of performing arts.

Britten's "War Requiem" will be heard during the festival with Rudel conducting. "St. Luke's Passion" was not scheduled, since the National Symphony will play it during the fall.

Two other works which placed high in the most-significant poll, "Mass" and "Jesus Christ Superstar," were not included since they recently concluded runs at the Kennedy Center.

Igor Stravinsky received the most votes in two categories of the poll: once as the most influential composer, and again as the composer "you predict would be performed 50 years from now." In the latter category, he tied with Aaron Copland.

After Stravinsky, the respondents picked as most influential composer Karlheinz Stockhausen, John Cage and Pierre Boulez. Others the critics predicted would be played 50 years from now included Britten, Serge Prokofiev and Bernstein.

SAN QUENTIN THRONGED

25,000 Visit Art Show

FIRST-COME, FIRST-SERVED — Art patrons Mr. and Mrs. Terry Quinlan, regulars at most of San Quentin's annual arts and crafts shows, were first in line Saturday morning for this year's show outside the prison walls.

From 20,000 to 25,000 visitors flocked to the annual San Quentin arts and craft show in the shadow of the prison wall Saturday and spent $27,300 on inmates' art work.

Saturday morning's leaden skies may have deterred some would-be art patrons, but after the day turned bright and sunny, the crowds thickened.

Two years ago, the show realized $35,000 from 20,000 visitors.

Attendance last September dropped to 6,000 persons, largely because of the previous month's escape attempt in which George Jackson was killed.

Some 1,400 art works in all media were entered in this year's show, down from the 2,000 works displayed in previous years, and for the first time in the show's 19-year history, no prizes were awarded.

According to Gunther E. Schmid, San Quentin's arts and crafts teacher, there were not enough entries in some categories to have judging. Most of the artists submitted oils. No charcoals or drawings were in the show and only 80 watercolors and pastels.

The reason for the dropoff, Schmid said, was that many of San Quentin's inmates had been transferred elsewhere as part of the gradual phasing out of the prison.

What there was was snapped up quickly, most of it sold by noon.

Many of the paintings were seascapes and landscapes done in a naturalistic manner. Seascapes invariably seemed to be dramatic, showing waves breaking with great force on a rocky shore. By contrast, the landscapes tended to depict pastoral scenes of great calm and serenity, with no human figures to mar the peacefulness.

Most artists showed a taste for rich, flamboyant colors. A portrait of Christ was painted in eye-searing day-glo colors over which a glittering substance had been pasted.

Few abstract paintings were in the show, cuddly animals were not evident, and only one portrait of moppets in the wide-eyed Walter Keane manner was entered.

There was an assortment of bullfight scenes, some erotic nudes, and a stallion rearing defiantly on a wind-swept hillside.

A favorite at Saturday's show was an exhibit of framed bas relief copper plates which included a depiction of the last supper, and also what appeared to be a creature showing a bull's head, bloody fangs, and an insect stinger, described by its artist as "monster and a bug."

Also on display were finely crafted walnut boxes, hand-tooled leather purses and wallets, and a table full of lamps made to look like Conestoga wagons with the canopies made of stain.

Tucked away in one corner of the show was a near-photographic likeness of Angela Davis done in pastels. Facing her was a painting of George Jackson, by a different artist. It was done in a flat, expressionless style, like a religious icon.

Smog Fighters To Eye Clean Point Reyes Air

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO AIRPORT — California smog officials, conceding their knowledge about smog is extremely crude despite years of effort to control it, have launched the first detailed study of the tiny particles that are a key component of air pollution.

Even the bracing air at the Point Reyes Light Station will be analyzed for contaminants by scientists using a mobile laboratory fitted with $350,000 in space-age instruments. West Marin was picked for its relatively clean marine air after no comparably clean air could be found in Southern California.

Contrary to a nature lover's expectation that salt particles would be the only air contaminants at such a remote site, more than half of all particles in the air there may be from belts of contaminants spinning around the earth, the officials predicted.

The tiny particles, or aerosols, are "the least understood phenomena of smog," according to Dale H. Hutchinson, research chief for the State Air Resources Board. Finding the source and dangers of these particles will determine future controls on their emission, he told newsmen at a briefing Friday at San Francisco airport.

These controls inevitably will lead to restrictions on land use and to changes in society, cautioned another leader of the study. Consequences of the study's findings someday are "going to hit each and every one of us," said George Hidy of the North American Rockwell Science Center.

The $1.7-million study, started a few weeks ago, is being conducted by the center, ARB and state Public Health Department. Its findings are due before the ARB in October, 1973.

Hutchinson explained that the study also will distinguish between natural and man-made particles. Complicating the picture, he said, is that a substantial portion of the particles are "secondary aerosols" that form in the atmosphere because of chemical reactions.

Existing knowledge of the particles stresses "very simple properties" such as their weight, said Dr. Terry Loucks, manager of the study for the science center. This approach tends to overlook the smaller particles, which are carried the farthest and are suspected of damaging human health by carrying toxic substances as passengers into the lungs.

Loucks noted that these smaller particles primarily are made by man. Hutchinson observed that suspecting aerosols affect health is one thing, but proving it is difficult.

Besides cutting visibility, aerosols also dirty everything from buildings to clothing and speed corrosion of everything from statues to cars.

The mobile laboratory, a van sprouting a host of odd-shaped probes to sample air that then is analyzed inside by a battery of instruments and computers, will be at Point Reyes in early December.

Transit Proposal On Supervisors' Agenda Again

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meeting tomorrow at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, again will consider endorsement of the Phase II report of the Balance Transportation Program.

Supervisors deferred action on the report two weeks ago after it came under fire as "politically influenced" by a committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin.

The charge, leveled by Supervisor Michael Wornum, came amid questions why expansion of the Golden Gate Bridge and new roadways in Marin had not been recommended.

The report recommends future transit needs in Marin to be met with a fleet of 350 intracounty buses operating on 23 miles of separate bus lanes.

Commuter service would be provided by a sophisticated ferry operation and 300 buses. Rail rapid transit was dismissed as too costly and contrary to the goals of the countywide plan for controlling growth and population.

The board will meet with the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee at 9 a.m. in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice to discuss that committee's activities.

It will then reconvene at 10:15 in its usual meeting room in the administration building.

Other items scheduled for discussion include the proposed crime laboratory, San Rafael's negative response to providing more exterior security to the Civic Center and an appeal of planning commission approval for Unit 5 of the Marinview subdivision master plan.

Marin Assessment Rolls $49 Million Over 1971

Final assessed valuation figures for Marin County have been released showing a $49 million increase over last fiscal year.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said the fiscal 1972-73 total reached $764.7 million from three major categories: secured property, unsecured property and public utilities.

This year's total includes $694.8 million in secured property such as land and improvements, $36.6 million from unsecured property such as boats, planes and other personal possessions and $33.3 million from public utilities.

Mitchell said the total — increased primarily through reappraisals of property and new construction — is a 6.8 per cent increase over last fiscal year's $715.9 million.

The jump is significant, Mitchell said, "but is considerably lower than the average increase over the last 20 years of 11.2 per cent."

(Preliminary figures released in July showed an increase this year of 7 per cent but that figure was revised downward after the public utilities rolls were set by the State Board of Equalization.)

Assessed valuation represents 25 per cent of market (or actual) value as determined by the county assessor's office. The public utilities' roll is based on a 27 per cent figure.

Of Marin's 11 cities, Tiburon led the list with a 15.7 per cent increase over last fiscal year. Its assessed valuation now totals $33.3 million.

San Anselmo, meantime, had the smallest percentage increase at 1.2 per cent for a total assessed valuation of 34.4 million.

Totals for other cities (with per centage increase in parentheses) are:

Belvedere, $20,981,937 (11.7 per cent); Corte Madera, $31,658,821 (3.2); Fairfax, $19,331,010 (14.8); Larkspur, $40,120,262 (8.7); Mill Valley, $50,673,707 (10.2); Novato, $76,947,192 (8.9); Ross, $12,966,624 (2.0); San Rafael, $165,884,749 (8.0); and Sausalito, $39,215,223 (3.0).

In the unincorporated area of the county, the assessed valuation increased 4.6 per cent for a $239,185,774 total.

The assessor's department reevaluated about 30,000 individual parcels of property throughout Marin, according to Assessor Bert W. Broemmel.

The assessments reflected shrinking market value of lands where new construction has been halted by a ban on sewer hookups, restrictions on use of tidelands and building moratoriums to permit open space or other planning.

The City of Tiburon, for instance, was assessed $169,000 less than it would have been with no building moratorium. That translates into about $17,000 of lost tax revenue for the city.

Only one school district showed a decrease in total assessment roll, but it was a whopping 9.9 per cent drop in the Bolinas-Stinson district. The drop was caused when the 1,700-acre George P. Leonard property was taken off the rolls for park expansion.

Other school districts' assessed valuation and percentage increase (in parentheses) are:

ELEMENTARY DISTRICTS — Dixie, $74,512,067 (15 per cent); Fairfax, $22,810,090 (13.0); Kentfield, $51,849,301 (8.3); Laguna Joint, $1,454,214 (3.8); Lagunitas, $8,332,157 (2.5); Larkspur, $46,170,735 (2.4); Lincoln, $1,649,735 (7.1); Mill Valley, $95,407,513 (8.5); Nicasio, $3,428,305 (10.1); Reed, $69,794.301 (11.3); Ross, $15,101,951 (3.3); San Anselmo, $42,919,395 (1.2); San Rafael, $146,780,973 (4.4); Sausalito, $44,541,050 (3.6) and Union Joint, $439,671 (0.1).

UNIFIED DISTRICTS — Novato, $106,074,195 (8.2); Shoreline, $21,367,855 (3.7).

HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICTS — San Rafael, $221,293,040 (7.8); Tamalpais, $412,486,218 (6.2) and Petaluma Joint, $3,543,620 (4.8).

COLLEGE DISTRICTS — Marin Community, $761,221,308 (6.8) and Sonoma Junior, $3,543,620 (4.8).

Moratorium On Building Due Review Tonight

A special joint meeting of San Rafael's city council and planning commission will precede the regular council meeting at 7 o'clock tonight at city hall, according to Marion A. Grady, city clerk.

The early meeting is for a discussion of the city's emergency building moratorium ordinance, and a proposal to extend it for an eight-month period.

At the regular meeting, scheduled to start at 8 p.m., there will be a public hearing on the moratorium extension, at its meeting on Aug. 8 the planning commission unanimously approved the extension, stating it should be strengthened and clarified if necessary.

Other public hearings include an appeal by American Savings and Loan against the planning commission's refusal of a tentative map of Peacock Gap unit 5.

The city council will also set the tax rate for fiscal 1972-73.

SUMMONS NO. 2
No. 63442

Superior Court of California, County of Marin Hall of Justice, Civic Center, San Rafael, California 94903

ELMER W. MARTINELLI and HAZEL MARTINELLI, his wife, WALDO G. GIACOMINI, JEANETTE GIACOMINI, DAVID GIACOMINI, ROBERT GIACOMINI and RICHARD GIACOMINI, and MARKHAM CORPORATION, a corporation, Plaintiffs, vs All of the Heirs at Law of CATHERINE A. KEYS, deceased, Namely, GEORGE T. KEYS, JOHN M. KEYS, JAMES W. KEYS, ELIZABETH M. KEYS, EDITH A. KEYS and MINNIE M. KEYS, and DOE ONE through DOE ONE HUNDRED, and all persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the Complaint, adverse to plaintiffs' ownership or any cloud upon Plaintiffs' title thereto, Defendants.

TO THE DEFENDANTS: A civil complaint has been filed by Plaintiffs against you. If you wish to defend this lawsuit, you must file in this Court a written pleading in response to the complaint within thirty (30) days after this summons is served on you (except that if the action is against the State of California pursuant to Section 738.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure, within one hundred eighty (180) days). Otherwise, your default will be entered on application by the Plaintiffs and the Court may enter a judgment against you for the money or other relief requested in the complaint. The real property which is the subject of this action is located in the County of Marin, State of California, and is referred to and described specifically in the complaint on file herein as follows:

PARCEL NO. 2: All that certain strip of land 75 feet in width, lying equally 37.5 feet on each side of the following described center line: BEGINNING at the intersection of the boundary line between land now or formerly of Galen Burdell and C.A. Keys, with the originally located center line of the North Pacific Coast Railroad Company (now Northwestern Pacific Railroad Company) at Engineers' Station 790 plus 09; thence in a westerly and northerly direction along the said center line following the courses and curvature thereof, a distance of 5,941 feet to a point on the southerly line of land now or formerly of R.L. Grandi, et al. at Engineers' Station 849 plus 50, containing an area of 10.20 acres, more or less. Being all of that strip of land conveyed by deed dated June 20, 1874, C.A. Keys to North Pacific Coast Railroad Company, recorded July 1, 1874, in Liber M. of Deeds, Page 34. TOGETHER with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in anywise appertaining, and the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, rents, isuues and profits thereof. TO HAVE AND TO HOLD all and singular the said premises, together with the appurtenances, unto the said second party and to his heirs and assigns, forever.

The above described real property is also described as follows, in that certain Joint Tenancy Deed dated August 21, 1949, from FLORA MARTINELLI, ELMER W. MARTINELLI and HAZEL MARTINELLI, his wife, and recorded in Official Records of Marin County in Volume 658 at page 723:

All right, title and interest of grantors in and to that portion of that certain property described in Deed from Northwestern Pacific Railroad Company to Elmer W. Martinelli, dated August 5, 1935, and recorded September 23, 1935, in Liber 304 of Official Records, at page 352, records of Marin County, which lies outside of the boundaries of that certain property described in Deed from Olympia Grandi et vir to Flora Martinelli, dated November 1, 1923, and recorded November 17, 1923, in Liber 30 of Official Records, at page 354.

The object of this action is to quiet title to such real property in Plaintiffs, and that it be adjudged that the Plaintiffs are the owners of said real property in fee simple absolute, and that their title to said real property be established and quieted.

If you wish to seek the advice of an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your pleading, if any, may be filed on time.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Neck Pain Causes Range From Poor Posture To Arthritis

Neck pain is as common as was low back pain 30 years ago. It stems from many causes, varying from poor posture to arthritis of the neck vertebrae.

Football accidents, falls, and whiplash injuries may sprain or dislocate a vertebra or fracture the spine. In other instances, the nerves, muscles, or connective tissues are affected. The disks between the vertebrae may also herniate or rupture.

ASPIRIN, physical therapy, exercise, and traction are standard remedies. Special collars are also helpful, especially when the victim is up and about. These vary from a thick piece of felt that encircles the neck to a chest device that holds up the chin.

The thick felt collar is the least expensive. It should be wide enough to hold up the head and to restrict neck movements. The collar is held in place with laces in front.

X-rays may demonstrate changes in the vertebrae, especially when there is arthritis or a ruptured disk. These conditions often result from years of stress and strain associated with constant activity including sudden jolts and twists. Such wear and tear is more common in the obese and in those whose occupation creates unusual strain on this part of the body.

NOW AND THEN distress develops long after a neck injury. The initial damage may have occurred years before while playing football, falling on the head or while sitting in a car that was struck forcibly from the rear. Slouching may do the same and may in time lead to dowager's hump.

Nervous tension also produces pain in the neck. Prolonged contraction of the muscles is responsible and the individual is so uncomfortable during periods of anxiety that cause and effect are obvious. The condition is similar to tension headache but distress is located lower down. Heat, massage and muscle relaxants are most helpful.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

MOUTH ULCERS

Mrs. D. writes: What are the possible causes of mouth ulcers in a 5-year-old boy? Could it be allergy to toothpaste or mouth washes? Or, is it more likely to be due to an internal condition?

REPLY

Irritation from dentifrices or mouth washes may cause cold sores, but it is unusual. Our leaflet on this subject which covers various other possibilities can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

PSYCHOSOMATIC ILLS

W. T. writes: What is a psychosomatic disease and what is the cure?

REPLY

Psycho refers to the mind and soma to the body. Psychosomatic is a fancy term for a neurosis and treatment centers about the emotional causes of the bodily symptoms. In other words, the doctor concentrates more on the psycho and less on the soma.

SPIKE HEELS

J. writes: Do you think wearing high heels damages the body?

REPLY

No, but they raise cain with the metatarsal arches by forcing improper distribution of weight on the front part of the foot. When used as a weapon for defense, the heel does as much damage as a hammer.

DRAINED GALLBLADDER

D. P. writes: If a gallbladder is drained only, will it have to be removed eventually?

REPLY

Yes, provided infection remains in the gallbladder. Removing stones eliminates only part of the disease and this is why most surgeons recommend that the gallbladder and the stones be removed.

APPENDICITIS

REPLY

No. The most common cause is obstruction of the lumen of the appendix by various kinds of debris.

SHRUNKEN OVARIES

A. W. writes: At what age do the ovaries shrink?

REPLY

At about age 47 they become the size of a prune.

IN SHOCK

N. A. writes: How does a person act when he has a heart attack?

REPLY

There is not much action, except to clutch the chest in an effort to relieve the feeling of constriction. Many sit or lie quietly, afraid to move or talk. They look anxious, the skin becomes ashen, and beads of perspiration form on the brow. Others collapse and become unconscious due to an irregularity or stoppage of the heart.

Nixon Booster Tells Of $500,000 Gift

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—W. Clement Stone has no qualms about telling people how much he contributed to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

The Chicago insurance executive said Sunday night he has given $500,000. "I gave the same amount in 1968," he added.

Rustling Trial Due In East Bay

Robert L. Sweeden, 30, San Leandro, was arrested on a charge of rustling last March 17 after police found the carcass of a calf in Sweeden's home and traced the "Lazy L" brand to a Livermore ranch.

Sweeden said he purchased the calf, but investigators said they found a calf hide and entrails in the suspect's car along with a high-powered rifle.

Cattlemen in the area have reported that more than $50,000 worth of prime beef is lost annually to motorized rustlers.

Suit Asks Benefits For Pregnancy

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A class action suit demanding State Disability Insurance benefits for pregnancy and pregnancy-related illnesses has been filed with the California Supreme Court.

The action, brought by three women — including a Novato telephone operator — and the San Francisco Waitresses Union Local 48, contends the Unemployment Insurance Code discriminates against women "solely on the basix of sex."

The petition for a hearing was filed by California Rural Legal Assistance against Sigurd Hansen, director of the State Human Resources Agency.

It quotes the code as saying that "in no case shall the term 'disability' or 'disabled' include any injury or illness caused by or arising in connection with pregnancy."

The suit held that "it is arbitrary to contend that . . . pregnancy-related injuries and illnesses . . . are not disabilities" and says that 200,000 women each year are denied disability benefits in connection with pregnancy and pregnancy-related illnesses.

Denying such benefits violates the equal protection clause of the Constitution's 14th Amendment, the suit held.

The three women who brought the action are Elizabeth B. Johnson, a Novato telephone operator; Augustina D. Armendariz, a Gilroy secretary, and Jacqueline Jaramillo of Oakland.

Lodge Talks Of Ending Race Bars

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The grand exalted ruler of the Fraternal Order of the Elks said here most members of a committee of past national Elk leaders are on record as favoring the admission of blacks.

But Francis M. Smith of Sioux Falls, S.D., national leader of the 1.5 million member organization, said blacks can be admitted only if the Elks constitution is altered.

"If there is to be a change, it must be voted on by the membership," Smith said.

Piper Park Plan To Be Reviewed

Chef Didn't Go Down With Ship

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI —Diners at the Galley restaurant were calmly enjoying their seafood when they heard the call to abandon ship.

The pumps on the barge, converted to a restaurant on the Sacramento river, gave way Saturday night and water began seeping into the dining room.

"I got on the public address system and told everybody that we had a slight emergency and everyone would have to leave slowly by the side ramp," said Mrs. Hal Schultz, wife of the restaurant owner.

She said the 150 customers took their plates of seafood with them and watched on the bank as the barge sank to the river bottom.

The last ones to leave the barge were two dishwashers, who were told to mop up the water until firemen arrived.

Don't Hurry To Draw Trumps If Your Hand Has A Problem

Despite the use of transatlantic cables and communication satellites, some parts of the world have not yet heard about Sheinwold's Law: "Be it known to all men (and women) that a bridge player who has a problem should not be in a hurry to draw trumps." Defiance of the law cost one expert a slam in a match between Austria and England some years ago.

WEST OPENS

At both tables, West opened the ten of clubs. The play proceeded in the same way for a few tricks.

South took the king of clubs, cashed the king of hearts and entered dummy with the king of spades to discard the diamond on the ace of hearts. Next came a trump to the ace.

At this point the two declarers parted company. The Austrian drew a third round of trumps with the queen. He then cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club with dummy's last trump.

CLUBS NOT ESTABLISHED

Unfortunately for the Austrian player, the clubs were not established and he was in the dummy. He could get back to his hand with his last trump, but then he had to give up a club trick and the ace of diamonds. In fact, he was lucky to be down only one trick.

The English declarer avoided drawing that fatal third round of trumps. Istead, he first ruffed a low club with dummy's nine of trumps. Only then was it time to lead a third round of trumps to his queen. The clubs were not established, but at least South was in his own hand.

TAKES THE ACE

Now South could take the ace of clubs and give up a fourth club to the nine. South still had a trump and two good clubs, and could therefore easily make the rest.

Saturday's Answer

Policeman Wins Disability Pay

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 31-year-old policeman whose partner was shot and killed in 1967 has won a disability pension of about $580 per month on grounds that his work caused him "emotional distress."

The City Retirement Board approved the pension for Patrolman William Owens after a five minute hearing. It amounts to half his regular monthly salary.

Owens joined the force seven years ago and has been off active duty for a year because of "debilitating fear" for his safety.

Brundage, Rhodesians Meet To Stop Olympic Walkout

MUNICH (UPI) — Avery Brundage, working on one of his knottiest problems in the closing days of his Presidency of the International Olympic Committee, met today with the Rhodesians and the African nations in an effort to prevent an Olympic walkout.

Pressure —in the form of a statement from the whole United States track and field team and behind-the-scenes action by the German Olympic Committee —is mounting for the I. O. C. to reverse its position and expel Rhodesia from the Games starting Saturday.

MEETING

Brundage met twice with the Rhodesians and then went into a conference with the African nations. A news conference at which some announcement concerning the situation was expected was set back.

The Ethiopian team, the only one which has given formal notice of intention to withdraw, had reservations on a late afternoon plane for Rome en route home to Addis Ababa.

INDICATIONS

Indications were that Brundage's efforts were not meeting with initial success. Willie Daume, chairman of the German Organizing Committee, wore a gloomy expression and declined comment on progress.

The failure of the Africa nations actually to go through with their threats was first taken by many to indicate a lack of sincerity in the threats. Now many are guessing that the Africans haven't left because they think they are going to win the dispute.

RESOLUTION

The U.S. track and field team, including black and white members, held a formal meeting Sunday with Clifford Buck, President of the U.S. Olympic Committee, and approved a resolution which — according to one track official —had actually been phrased by George Wilson, team manager of the track team.

"It was a straightforward statement that in effect many of the athletes and staff of the U.S. track team are concerned with Southern Rhodesia's participation in the Olympic Games, which caused many other nations to withdraw," the official said.

The official said that Buck has agreed to relay the statement to the I.O.C.

He stressed that the statement does not contain any "threat or demand," but just "explains what we are thinking about."

The existence of a behind-the scenes move by the German Olympic Committee to settle the dispute one way or another became known Sunday. It was learned that the Germans were not seeking to have the Rhodesians formally expelled, but wanted official permission to approach the Rhodesians and ask them to withdraw voluntarily in the name of harmony.

GERMAN CONCERN

The Germans are concerned that the 12 African nations will withdraw, that the black athletes of the United States may walk out in sympathy, and the Games thereby lose a great deal of lustre.

The U.S. blacks refused to compete Saturday in a pre-Olympic tune-up meet at Kempten, Germany, because Rhodesia was entered. Another and more important tune-up meet is scheduled on Wednesday and Rod Milburn, a black hurdler from Southern University, said he thought the team would hold another meeting before then to consider the situation at the time.

OLGA CONNOLLY

In a dispute within the U.S. Olympic team, former women's Olympic gold medallist Olga Connolly said more than half of the women's team supports her in her battle against team "instructions" limiting interviews with newsmen.

Mrs. Connolly, 39-year-old mother of four who first won the Olympics as a competitor for Czechoslovakia and will be competing this year in her fifth Olympics, said on arrival here she thinks she has won her "test case" against the rule by speaking out last week.

"I think the simple fact that I was not punished and the Olympic Committee could not find that I had done something wrong, shows that the rule was wrong and should be taken off the books."

Mrs. Connolly also asserted that the women's team had a "poor training camp" at which there was emphasis on "surface things like your dress" instead of "basic things like the athlet's preparedness."

A's Fall Into 1st Place Tie

DETROIT (UPI)—The Oakland A's had a co-tenant in first place and an angry manager as they moved into Detroit for a battle with the tough Tigers tonight.

Chicago meanwhile split with Boston to wind up the afternoon in a flat tie in the American League West with the A's with both teams showing 67-48 marks.

WILLIAMS

Manager Dick Williams said that he was unimpressed with Cleveland pitcher Dick Tidrow, who got the win over an ineffective Ken Holtzman, and the fiery A's pilot again blasted umpire Hank Morganweck.

"Tidrow didn't particularly impress me," he said. "Am I supposed to be impressed just because he beat us? We didn't impress ourselves with our offense. We beat us, not Tidrow. We and that umpire, Hank Morganweck, held us to one run."

Williams blasted Morganweck earlier this season which drew a harsh reaction from league president Joe Cronin, but Sunday the A's skipper was at it again.

'INCOMPETENT'

"I don't care," he said. "Morganwick is incompetent. Hell, we should have had the bases loaded with none out."

That was in the fifth inning when Oakland trailed 3-0 and had Ted Kubiak on second and Campy Campaneris on first with none out. Angel Mangual hit a chopper to shortstop Frank Duffy, who bobbled the ball before tossing to second.

Morganweck called Campaneris out on the force. Campaneris remained on second for a half-minute before learning he had been called out. Then a mighty rhubarb involving Campy, Williams and Morganweck followed.

"I called him everything I could think of," said Williams.

The ruling stood and Joe Rudi then hit a deep fly to score the lone A's run, but their chances for the big rally were gone.

But the A's had many other chances to score and it was not any close calls by umpires that frustrated their chances. They just didn't get the hits when they needed them.

Giants' Happiness Is Taking 4th Spot

15-Game Deficit Wiped Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Happiness for the San Francisco Giants at the moment is a tie for fourth place in the National League West.

Manager Charlie Fox said he is "pleased with our position in the standings" as a result of Sunday's 5-3 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"This is not really a last place ball club. It's not a fourth place ball club either, except we are going through a transition period with the greater emphasis on youth," Fox said.

The Giants haven't been as high as fourth place since April 29 and at one time were 15 games out of fourth.

Ken Henderson hit in his 17th straight game Sunday and had a pair of singles to give him an amazing 31 hits in his last 68 at bats.

"Because of the poor start we got, I think you'd have to say it is satisfying to be up in fourth place now," Henderson said.

Dave Kingman, who got a big two-run homer in the second inning to give the Giants a lead they never lost, said he wasn't surprised that the Cardinals failed to give him an intentional walk.

"The way I've been hitting, I would have pitched to me, too," said Kingman. "They just threw the ball over the plate, right over the plate, and dared me to hit it."

Kingman suffered from an ankle injury for nearly a month and because of that and a batting slump he has been hitting eighth in the batting order.

Sue Beatty of Tiburon was beaten in girls 16 singles finals by Valerie Mendoza of Sunnyvale, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0, also at Harbor Point. Leslie Airola of Tiburon succumbed to Susan Brown of Oakland in girls 18 singles at Marinwood Community Center, 6-0, 6-2.

Chuck Ashowrth also had three hits, as the Knicks' eighth and ninth batters in the order accounted for six of their eight safeties. Bueler struck out nine, and reliever Lenny Hoffman six.

SAN FRANCISCO TITLE TO GREENBRAE NETTER

John Zwieg of Greenbrae played steady tennis yesterday to defeat young Dave Lucky of Alameda, 6-4, 6-1, and win the San Francisco City championship at Golden Gate Park.

Zwieg, 25, used his superior experience to defeat Lucky, an 18-year-old who will attend the University of Pennsylvania this fall.

Zwieg experienced trouble early as the first set was tied, 2-2, and he was trailing in the fifth game, love-15, but smashed four straight winners to take a 3-2 lead and eventually win, 6-4.

The Greenbrae netter and teammate Gil Howard were defeated in the semi-finals of the men's doubles by Rich Anderson and Steve Cornell, 6-2, 6-3. Rich Andrews and Peter Hultgren beat Anderson and Cornell in the finals, 7-5, 0-6, 6-4.

Olympic Swimmer To Move To Marin

Robin Backhaus, a member of the United States Olympic swimming team from Redlands, Calif., will move to Marin County next month to compete for the Marin Aquatic Club, the Independent-Journal learned Saturday.

Backhaus, a butterfly specialist who is also extremely proficient in the other four strokes and the individual medley, will live with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Keck of San Rafael. Backhaus' parents will not be moving up to Northern California.

The 6-foot, 185-pounder will attend San Rafael High School.

"This is the first time in the four years I've been here that somebody has moved to Marin County just to swim," coach Don Swartz of the Marin A.C. said.

"The family sought me out at the Olympic trials (in Chicago earlier this month) as our program had been recommended to them," by the University of Southern California Swim Coach, Peter Daland.

"This is very exciting," said San Rafael High coach Bill Ranney, anticipating a stronger team next spring because of Backhaus. "Don (Swartz) has a policy of having his swimmers work out with him and not with the high school, but this is fine with me."

Backhaus has outstanding best times 51 plus seconds for the 100-yard butterly, 1:51.0 for the 200 fly, 1:57 plus in the 200 I.M., 48.2 in the 100 free, and 1:42.1 in the 200 free.

He qualified second for the Olympic team in the 200-meter butterfly behind world record holder Mark Spitz of Arden Hills, Calif., in 2:03.3.

Football Practice

All students at Marin Catholic High School who wish to play interscholastic football should be present for practice at the school at 10 a.m. tomorrow, regardless of whether or not they have received letters of invitation, head coach Bruno Banducci announced.

Suyderhoud Retains Ski Crown

I-J Special Report

SEATTLE, Wash. — Starring despite an injured knee which required a brace, Mike Suyderhould of Petaluma retained his men's over-all title yesterday in the National Water Ski Championships, although he was divested of his jumping crown.

Mrs. Thelma Salmas of Bel Marin Keys finished second over-all in the senior women's division, and Bob La Point of Novato was third in boys over-all after retaining his slalom title.

Suyderhoud finished second in all three events to rack up 2,847 points, barely ahead of the 2,832 compiled by Ricky McCormick of Independence, Mo. McCormick won jump with 157 feet, while Suyderhoud was second at 150. Robbie Kempton of Tampa, Fla., won men's tricks with 5,390 points to Suyderhoud's 5,093.

What was good enough for Suyderhoud was not good enough for Mrs. Salmas, who likewise finished second in three events. Unfortunately, Mrs. Barbara Cleveland of Hawthorne, Fla., finished ahead of her each time and recorded 3,000 points to Mrs. Salmas' 2,134.

La Point passed 51½ buoys in his slalom, edging Wayne Grimditch of Hillsboro Beach, Fla., who passed 51. Grimditch won the over-all title easily with 2,990 points, while Ohio's Chris Redmond had 2,373 and La Point 2,336.

San Rafael Lad 4th

DiMaggio Crown To Italian Club

Turning on the power when it counted, the Italian Club defeated the Ukiah Elks in two games out of three over the weekend to win the North Bay Region Joe DiMaggio baseball league tournament at San Rafael's Albert Park.

Don Bianchini, the tourney's most valuable player, and Jim Caito unloosed two-run homers in the final game to give the Marin County representatives a 4-2 victory and launch them into the state championship tournament starting Wednesday night in Vallejo. Bianchini's first homer of the tourney on Saturday had sparked the Italian Club to a 7-6 come-from-behind victory, which Ukiah partially avenged in yesterday's first game, winning 5-4 in extra innings.

On Saturday, with Italian Club and Ukiah both coming off first round victories chalked up Friday night, the Elks led 5-0 going into the bottom of the sixth. After Matt Gondak, who had clobbered a pair of home runs the game before, led off with a walk, Bianchini found the range in left field to make it 5-2.

The next and final inning the Marin team scored five times on five hits and two walks to

White Sox Get Tie For First

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

In 1959 they were dubbed the "Go Go Sox" while fashioning a Punch'n Judy attack of base hits and stolen bases and no one, including their owner Bill Veeck, really believed they could win it.

This time, however, things are different on Chicago's south side as the White Sox are back from the dead, fighting for a pennant and just about everybody in the Windy City expects them to win it.

LONG BALL

Maybe it's because the White Sox' freewheeling '72 style specializes in the long ball in contrast to the scrappy '59 pennant formula, but after splitting a doubleheader with Boston Sunday, the 29,497 fans at White Sox Park were still chanting 'We're No. 1' even though their heroes owned only a half-share of first place in the AL west.

Pat Kelly's dramatic three-run homer with two out in the ninth earned the Chisox a 9-7 first game victory over Boston before the Red Sox came back to cop the nightcap 5-4. The Oakland A's, however, allowed Chicago to gain a share of the lead in the west by dropping 3-1 decision to Cleveland. Elsewhere it was Detroit 11, California 9, Minnesota over Baltimore 4-1, Kansas City on top of Milwaukee 2-1 and the New York Yankees over Texas 2-0.

'BEST FANS'

"We've got the best fans in all of baseball," Chicago manager Chuck Tanner said after the twinbill which saw White Sox overall attendance balloon to 957,631 for the season as compared to 653,000 at the same point last year. "I love 'em. Our fans have been very instrumental in our winning at home the way we have (46-16 thus far)".

"They say there isn't any such thing as a home field advantage," Tanner continued. "But there is—they've supported us all year and now I just hope we can win it for them."

A three-run homer by Bobby Darwin sent the Orioles down to their fifth defeat in the last six games as Ray Corbin won for the Twins with a four-hitter.

The Tigers maintained their slim hold on first place in the AL east when Aurelio Rodriguez capped an eight-run sixth inning with a two-run homer after starting it with a double. The Angels, who blew 9-2 laad, had previously put together a nine running inning in the fourth.

LYLE RESCUES

Once again it was relief ace Sparky Lyle who came to the Yankees' rescue. Lyle picked up his fifth win of the season after scoring the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning. Lyle, who came on in relief of starter Rob Gardner, opened the 10th with a single and advanced to third after Horace Clarke was hit by a pitch and Thurman Munson delivered a sacrifice bunt. Lyle then scored on an infield grounder.

Syd O'Brien and Johnny Briggs rapped out run-scoring singles to propel the Brewers over Kansas City.

Astro Wilson Fans 14 Phillies In Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Don Wilson wasn't trying to be fancy Sunday afternoon but the Philadelphia Phillies were impressed nevertheless.

Wilson turned in a 14-strikeout performance as the Houston Astros topped Philadelphia, 3-1, with Jesus Alou driving in the winning run in the seventh inning.

The veteran right-hander struck out 11 Phillies over the final five innings including the final three batters he faced in the last of the ninth.

'STRUGGLING'

"After struggling with breaking pitches the first couple of innings, I decided the hell with being fancy and fired it," Wilson said. "That's when I started striking people out."

With the score tied 1-1, Helms led off the seventh with a single and tallied on Alou's hit. Alou then scored the final run of the game on Larry Howard's single.

Wilson gained his 10th victory against eight losses. The only Phillies run came in the fourth on Greg Luzinski's 12th homer of the season.

OTHER SCORES

In other National League games, Cincinnati ripped New York 8-1, Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from San Diego, 9-3 and 5-2, Chicago beat Los Angeles 5-3, San Francisco topped St. Louis 5-3, and Montreal blanked Atlanta 1-0.

Pete Rose pounded out three hits and drove in two runs and the Reds Reds capitalized on a series of fielding lapses by New York in trouncing the Mets.

GULLETT TOUGH

Don Gullett blanked the Mets over the first seven innings and upped his record to 5-7 before giving way for a pinch-hitter as Clay Carroll mopped up, yelding New York's only run in the ninth.

Bob Robertson and Richie Hebner cracked homers in the nightcap to lead Pittsburgh to a sweep of their doubleheader with San Diego after Willie Stargell drove in three runs with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly in the opener.

Jim Hickman cracked a two-run homer and Ron Santo went 4-for-5 to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Santo's three singles and a double drove in one run and set up another as the Cubs tagged Claude Osteen with only his second loss in his last six decisions.

Devlin Wins Golf Tourney

Devlin, the master plumber from Australia who likes to dabble in golf course architecture, methodically sank four straight birdies midway through the final round Sunday to walk away from the field in the $200,000 USI Classic at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

ELDER SECOND

Napa's Ron Cerrudo finished with a 287.

Mahaffey, in his first full year on the tour, qualified for the USI as the fifth and last alternate and got to play only because Orville Moody had a bad back.

There was no taking it away from Devlin Sunday. He shot a three-under-par 69 and finished the tournament with 275, a record-tying 13 under for 72 holes while claiming the $40,000 in first place money.

Devlin's game was steady throughout the four days as he shot rounds of 69-68-69-69.

MAHAFFEY

But it was Mahaffey who caught the fancy of the gallery of 42,340 with an up-and-down exhibition that took him on one occasion to within one stroke of the lead before Devlin wrapped it up.

The pressure, Mahaffey realized, was his undoing. He's sure he can overcome that sinking feeling.

DEVLIN'S STORY

Devlin, who plans to leave the tour for a three-month business and pleasure trip to the southwest, Japan and Australia, said his string of birdies on the eighth, ninth, 10th and 11th holes "tells the story."

"I guess I snuck away with a three or four-shot lead right there," he said. "Then I just wanted to get in as quickly as I could." He shot his way out of the rough on the 10th hole and made the green in two shots, then two-putted on the tough, 530-yard 11th hole.

For Devlin, too, it was the biggest payday since he joined the tour in 1962.

Mrs. Cann Favored In Champs' Tourney

(Last in a Series)

Having won in her two previous tries, Mrs. John Cann will be favored to make it three-for-three next Wednesday in the fifth annual Marin County Women's Tournament of Champions golf match at Mill Valley.

For 14 straight years the women's club champion at Meadow Club in Fairfax, Laura Cann won the tourney of champs in 1969, and again the following year. She might have taken it last year had she not gone to Europe with her children for the summer.

A long ball hitter with a seven handicap, Mrs. Cann is wary of the Mill Valley course, where she had not played in 10 years prior to a practice round last week. "The lies are very difficult, the terrain very hilly," she says. "And since my long game is my strong point, I'm going to have to do a little practicing."

Her opponents for the tourney will include Cookie Baer of Peacock Gap in San Rafael, Nancy Gapinski of San Geronimo, Tillie Gondak of Marin Country Club in Novato, Peg Williams of Novato's Indian Valley and Joan Wheeler of Mill Valley.

"Nancy Gapinski has always been my toughest competition," says Mrs. Cann, "but I would say Joan Wheeler has an edge over all of us. Local knowledge counts very much on that course."

Mrs. Cann has been playing golf for "about 20 years," 17 of them at Meadow Club. Her husband is an anesthesiologist at St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco. The couple has four children; Jacqueline, 20; Bill, 19; Jane, 15; and Robert, 10.

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Namath Forecast Proves Invalid Against Giants

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Novice soothsayer Joe Namath looked straight into his crystal ball to foretell the winner of this year's game between New York's two pro teams and came up with a lousy prediction.

Namath, who predicted the New York Jets' 1969 Super Bowl triumph over Baltimore, called the New York Giants "a terrible team" earlier this week and figured the Jets would have no trouble in handling their cross-town rival in Sunday's National Football League preseason game. But the Giants not only proved Namath wrong but they rubbed it in by intercepting five of his passes to engineer a 31-31 tie with the Jets at New Haven, Conn.

"I guess you'd have to say they're not terrible," said Namath laughing. "They played a helluva game.

NAMATH RECORD

Despite the five interceptions, Namath completed 12 of 24 passes for 340 yards and three touchdowns, hitting Don Maynard on scoring passes of 20 and 87 yards and Eddie Bell on a 45-yarder.

The Giants actually had a chance to win the game but blew it when Pete Gogolak, who kicked a 10-yard field goal to tie the game with 7:31 remaining, missed a 37-yarder with 52 seconds left that would have given the Giants the victory.

Ron Johnson gave the Giants a 7-0 lead when he dashed 63 yards for a TD on the second play of scrimmage. Quarterback Randy Johnson took the Giants 80 yards in eight plays after the second half kickoff capping the drive with a 12-yard pass to Bob Tucker, who finished with eight receptions for 104 yards.

OTHER SCORES

New England topped Chicago, 17-14, and Detroit mauled Cleveland, 34-7 in the only other Sunday exhibiton games.

In Saturday night action, Oakland beat Los Angeles, 34-9, Houston whipped Green Bay, 20-3, San Diego edged San Francisco, 17-16, St. Louis topped Denver, 17-13, Miami ripped Cincinnati, 35-17, Pittsburgh romped past Atlanta, 31-17.

Quarterback Greg Landry rifled a 24-yard touchdown pass to Earl McCullough with the game only 3:52 old and then hit All-Pro tight end Charlie Sanders with a six-yard scoring pass as the Detroit Lions mauled the Cleveland Browns.

Jim Plunkett completed 17 of 28 passes for 254 yards, including a 66-yard scoring pass to Randy Vataha and a seven-yard touchdown toss to Reggie Rucker to give the New England Patriots a win over the Chicago Bears.

PASTORINI

Dan Pastorini threw two touchdown passes and Mark Mosely kicked a pair of field goals to lead Houston past the Packers. Pastorini, a second year quarterback, hit tight end Alvin Reed with a 48-yard strike early in the first period and connected again with wide receiver Ken Burroughs midway in the final period.

Quarterback Tim Van Galder came off the bench in the second half to lead St. Louis over Denver. Van Galder replaced Gary Cuozzo with the Cardinals trailing 13-0, moved the Cards 36 yards in 11 plays on his second series in the game and Jim Bakken kicked a 24-yard field goal.

GRIESE PASSES

Bob Griese passed for three touchdowns and 161 yards and led the Dolphins over Cincinnati. Griese hit Paul Warfield with a 13-yard pass and Marlin Briscoe with a 19-yard pass for Miami touchdowns.

Backup quarterback Terry Hanratty, taking over the injured Terry Bradshaw, guided Pittsburgh to three touchdowns in little more than five minutes in the second quarter as the Steelers ripped Atlanta.

Mike Montgomery scored one touchdown and set up another and placekicker Tony Fritsch added 12 points to lead unbeaten Dallas to triumph over the New Orleans Saints and the Cowboys to their fourth preseason victory.

Two Marin Stars In Swim Meet

Miss Campion won three first places and racked up 51 points in the girls 13-14 age bracket, recording personal lifetime bests of 1:08.8 in the 100-meter butterfly, 1:02.4 in the 100 freestyle and 2:28.1 in the 200 fly.

Keck racked up 54 points in the boys 11-12 bracket, winning the 50, 100 and 200 freestyles. He and Miss Campion each placed four other times.

Santa Clara Swim Club won the meet with 640 points, while Pleasant Hill Swim Club was second at 605. Marin A.C., which took eight swimmers was eighth with 156.

RAMS LOOK DISMAL

Raiders Sharp In Victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders ooked in mid-season form and the Los Angeles Rams looked for the most part like they were sorry they showed up for the game.

Three Oakland quarterbacks —Ken Stabler, Daryle Lamonica and rookie Don Milan—put on a rather dazzling display of passing and threw a total of four for touchdowns Saturday night to beat the Rams 34-9.

It was the third straight pre-season victory for the Raiders while the Rams now are 1-2.

GABRIEL DEBUTS

Roman Gabriel, No. 1, Ram quarterback, made his first appearance of the year. He threw accurately enough, completing five of eight passes for 65 yards but could not get the Rams a touchdown.

The Ram scoring against the Raiders was the exclusive work of placekicker David Ray. He kicked three field goals—24, 40 and 41-all in the first half. Forty-four-year-old George Blanda booted a 27-yarder for Oakland in the first quarter and a 23-yarder in the third period.

SMITH SCORES

The Rams had a 9-3 lead at 14:02 in the second period when Stabler flipped a screen pass to Charlie Smith, who ran through the Ram team for 30 yards and a touchdown. Blanda's conversion made it 10-9 for the Raiders at the intermission.

Lamonica connected for two in the second half — a 29-yard pass to Fred Biletnikoff and a 23-yarder to speedy Cliff Branch, a rookie from Colorado.

Milan, a newcomer from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, hit another rookie, Mike Siani of Villanova, with a five-yarder for the final touchdown at 13:43 of the last quarter.

BRANCH CATCH

The Raiders lost rookie running back Ray Jamieson in the first quarter when he tackled Phillips, who was returning a punt. His injury was diagnosed at Mt. Sinai Hospital as a fractured dislocation of the neck.

"It's very hard to talk about a ball game when something happens like it did to Jamieson," said Raider coach John Madden.

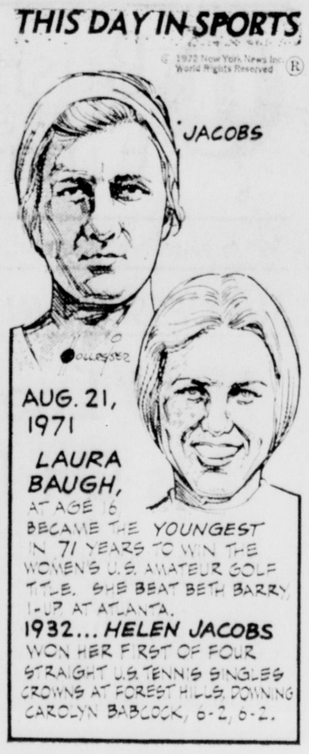

Jamieson regained some functioning in the neck and is "improving," a spokesman at Mt. Sinai Hospital said Sunday.

The hospital spokesman said Jamieson had been transferred to a private room and probably would remain there for some time. His wif has flown to Los Angeles to be with him.

The Raiders hit on 20 of 39 passes for 318 yards—four td's —with one interception.

Black Hawks File Suit To Keep Superstar Hull

CHICAGO — The Chicago Black Hawks have filed suit to keep their superstar Bobby Hull from playing for the New World Hockey Association Winnipeg Jets, a spokesman for the Hawks said today.

Cook County Circuit Court judge Francis T. Delaney, who will hear the case Wednesday, will be asked to enjoin Hull from playing for anyone but the Hawks.

The suit charged Hull with breach of contract. The club said the team still had an option on Hull's services for the 1972-73 season.

"It appeared that Davies turned and that Conley went right under him," said Bob Ballinger, racing chairman.

pull out the victory. John Billings and Daryl Edralin struck doubles in the rally, and Steve Sherry had a triple. Bianchini added a single, his third hit of the game.

Ukiah came back to escape elimination in yesterday's first game, breaking a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the eighth when Lou Goring lifted a sacrifice fly to center with the bases loaded to score pinch hitter Greg Alexander.

The man he hit for, Rod Dockins, went the eight innings for the victory, and pitched a total of 14 innings in the tournament, seeing action in four out of five games. He was also the winning pitcher in Ukiah's opener, when he beat Loleta of Eureka with five innings of superb relief.

When both pitching staffs depleted, Italian Club coach Dan Abballo went with lefthander Mark Ruggles in the final game, and he responded with a complete, seven-hit performance for the win. Ruggles, who also had seen a lot of action as a starter Saturday and reliever in yesterday's first game, exhibited supreme control, not walking a man, and that made the difference for him. He gave up only single runs in the first and third innings.

Bianchini gave his team the lead in the second inning, when after leadoff batter Matt Gondak was hit with a pitch, he belted a tremendous home run to straight away leftfield. Coincidentally, it was to the same spot where Gondak hit the second of his two home runs on Friday when Italian Club opened the tourney with a 9-1 win over Fortuna of Eureka.

Caito's blast, which broke a 2-2 tie, came in the fourth inning, again with Gondak aboard. Like Bianchini's, it was a towering shot to left.

Bianchini, who collected five hits and six runs-batted-in for the tourney, led an all-tourney team composed of Gondak, Ruggles, Billings, Gene Frey and Steve Sherry of the Italian Club, Dockins, Goring, Marshall Brandt, Tony Shimitz and Tom Walker of Ukiah, Dale Biondini and Dennis Wood of Loleta and Dennis Pricer Fortuna.

Chargers Defeat 49ers; Injuries Hit Both Teams

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers' 17-16 exhibition victory over San Francisco Saturday night may have been one of the costliest in the club's history and the 49ers are hurting, too.

Charger middle linebacker Tim Rossovich, acquired only a few weeks ago for a first round draft choice, appears lost for the season with torn knee ligaments. Six other Chargers sustained lesser ailments.

49ER INJURIES

The 49ers lost fullback Ken Willard with a sprained knee and defensive backs Jimmy Johnson and Mike Simpson with shoulder separations. Coach Dick Nolan said he hoped they would be ready for the season opener against San Diego Sept. 17, but would not know until X-Rays were taken.

"I think it will be all right," Willard said as he hobbled from the dressing room on crutches.

MORAL VICTORY

San Francisco scored a moral victory as they played without quarterback John Brodie. San Diego had to call starter John Hadl off the bench inthe fourth quarter to overcome a 16-10 49ers lead.

He guided the club 67 yards in nine plays and culminated the drive with a three yard scoring pass to Jerry Levias with 56 seconds left. Steve Spurrier then brought San Francisco to San Diego's 30, but Bruce Gossett missed the last field goal.

SCORING PASSES

Hadl also connected with fullback Cid Edwards on a 39 yard scoring screen pass play, while Larry Schreiber scored the 49ers' only touchdown on a seven yard pass from Spurrier.

Schreiber, who came in for Willard in the first quarter, gained 73 yards on 13 runs.

Gary Garrison made his first appearance for San Diego early in the second quarter and caught a 30 yard pass from Wayne Clark. Four plays later he and Simpson collided going for a pass. Garrison writhed on the ground for a minute but escaped with a mild concussion while Simpson suffered the more severe injury.

The Chargers visit New Orleans this week while the 49ers host Denver.

Hamilton's Wells Praised By Bobick

MUNICH (UPI) — Nick Wells, who fights out of Hamilton Air Force Base, has been called by someone who should know the second best amateur heavyweight boxer in the United States.

Duane Bobick, the best amateur heavyweight in the U.S. and the likely successor to George Foreman as Olympic heavyweight gold medal winner, made the remark yesterday. "Wells is a tough fighter," said Bobick, who beat him on a three round technical knockout in an Olympic trials match at Forth Worth, Tex. "He's the second best (amateur) heavyweight in the United States."

Bobick, in training for the Olympics, is typically unconcerned about the next few days.

He just hopes that when he wins the championship — with Bobick there is no such thing as "if I win" — he defeats a worthy opponent.

There is no seeding (an estimation of who is best, second best, etc.), but only a blind draw," said Bobick. "I just hope the Cuban is in the other bracket from me.

"I think the Cuban ought to get to the finals. I think we are the best two here."

The Cuban Bobick referred to is Teoilio Stevensen, a talented slugger who has met Bobick before and lost.

Bobick comes into the Olympics with a string of 60 straight wins — the last few of those coming in the trials at Forth Worth, Tex., and West Point, N.Y.

And one of those fights has brought a little bitterness into the usually calm frame of the handsome slugger from Bowlus, Minn.

"I'm sorry I didn't get to fight Nick Wells again," Bobick said, "After what he said. He said he thought he was beating me when they stopped that fight in Fort Worth. He was so tired he could barely stand up. He would have never lasted the third round."

The Wells-Bobick fight came in the finals of the preliminary Olympic trails. Both boxers were bloodied during the fight, but a cut over Wells' eye was judged so deep that he was not allowed to come out for the third round.

Wells was selected by the Olympic boxing committee to serve as a special challenger to Bobick at the boxer's camp in New York, but the cut over Wells' eye did not heal quickly enough. So Larry Holmes was picked to fight Bobick in that bout, and as expected it was no contest.

The selection of special challengers — something which is done in every weight class — is another thing that sticks in Bobick's throat.

"If there is a worthy opponent that is different," Bobick said. "Wells would have been a worthy opponent. But he could not fight. What if I had been cut or something against Holmes?"

Bobick is just about over the effects of the long trip to Munich and has his girl-watching talents back in tune but in between describing the obviously splendid attributes of a particular Miss over in the dining hall, Bobick suggested one of the reasons he is so confident.

It has to do with the complicated international scoring system in amateur boxing.

Plant Shop, Gallery-Gift Shop To Join Lark Creek Development

A plant and garden supply shop and an art gallery-gift shop will join the growing list of businesses at Lark Creek Shoppes in Larkspur, next to Lark Creek Inn.

Sommer & Ryan Enterprises of 234½ Magnolia Avenue, which manages the Lark Creek Shoppes, announced that the total number of shops has expanded to 12.

Opening tomorrow is The Plantery at 276 Magnolia, carrying a large selection of house plants, indoor garden supplies, and decorative plant containers from all over the world including mainland China.

The Plantery is owned and operated by Neil Jones of Ross, a former Peace Corpsman who has a bachelor of fine arts degree from California College of Arts and Crafts and four years experience as a professional garden consultant.

Opening Sept. 6 at 246 Magnolia is The Meadowlark, an art gallery and gift shop. It will offer paintings, prints, pottery, and decorator items of a handcrafted nature.

The Meadowlark will be owned and operated by Sally-Jean Shepard, Karin Battat, and Joy Kuhn, all of Tiburon, and Helen DeBerry of Belvedere. Mrs. Battat, Kuhn and DeBerry are well-known for their art in Northern California.

Roger Barbaer's antique shop at 242 Magnolia has just expanded by one-third. He said that growing interest in Oriental and English antiques among his Marin clientele prompted the expansion. Fine gifts and exclusive dinnerware are other specialties of Barber.

Roger Barber has been in the gift and antique business for 30 years and opened his Lark Creek shop a year ago.

MARIN PROPERTY Owners Association moved last Friday to new and expanded quarters at 818 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael. It was formerly located at 1330 Lincoln Avenue. Executive director of the association is Edward W. Colthurst.

Temby Rewoldt

ROBERT GWYNNE TEMBY of Belvedere has been named San Francisco regional sales manager by American Building Maintenance Co.

Before his appointment, Temby was vice president of Easterday Supply Co. of Northern California, a subsidiary of American Building Maintenance Industries, of which ABM Co. is the contract cleaning division. Temby joined Easterday in 1955 and was named manager of the company's Portland office in 1961. He returned to San Francisco in 1964 as manager of Easterday sales operations in Northern California.

DO YOU HAVE the best broker or financial institution managing your money? Or should you change, and if so, to whom?

Finding answers to these questions is a specialty of a unique new Marin firm called Roberts Reports Inc. of Box 155 Tiburon. President is Robert Rewoldt, who was with General Motors investment division from 1960 to 1963 a d has since been a private consultant with automobile manufacturers.

Rewoldt said he has a computerized system fo analyze, compare and rate the performance of the stock broker, investment adviser or financial institution that manages your investment.

"Our system can compare the performance of your broker with the performance of other brokers in any of 18 investment categories," said Roberts. Every 90 days, the computer prepares a report, rating the various brokers and investment counselors, ranking them in order.

Rewoldt said that a broker who does poorly in one investment category might be a whiz in another, and this information is constantly updated.

At the end of nine months, the client gets a tax planning report to show whether he should buy or sell for tax purposes. At year end, he gets a complete year-end accounting. Roberts Reports' fees start at $99 per year and increase with the type, size and activity of the investment account.

Rafael Carpets carries top name brands including Armstrong, Alexander Smith, Barwick and Monarch. The store, located in the J. B. Rice Center across the street from Graham Lumber Co., is open six days a week.

Behrendt has been in the carpet installation business in Marin and San Francisco for the past nine years.

ROCK ISLAND Line Organic Foods Store at 1915-A Bridgeway in Sausalito may be sold to new owners about Sept. 1.

Nancy Coner and Henry Abramson, who have owned the store for the past year and a half, are negotiating to sell the shop to Marilyn Turkel and Brenda Nawi of Berkeley.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold Loews Stock; It Is On Increase

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have seen no comment in your column on Loews Corp. At the time of the Lorillard merger I received warrants which I would like to exchange now. Could you give me some information on this company? — T.F.

A. These warrants enable you to purchase Loews common at $35 a share until Nov. 29, 1972, and at $37.50 for the next four years. Since the warrants are trading at $21.00 you would pay $56 for shares listed on the NYSE at $50. Thus the ASE-listed warrants trade at a 12 per cent premium in a cash purchase but at no premium if the 6⅞ per cent debenture is exchanged for the shares. Sale of the warrants and outright purchase of the common shares, which incidentally return 2 per cent in dividend income, would be more practical. Better still, if income is not vital, just hold the warrants which move in line with underlying common shares.

Corporate changes in recent months have attracted considerable speculation about Loews' future plans. Not only has the company sold its 20 per cent interest in Franklin New York Corp., a Long Island bank, for $40 million but it has also sold a candy company for $5.5 million. Other streamlining in the corporate structure includes the sale of three hotels, leasing of four others and the $16 million sale of a 48-unit theater chain. Shares of a 50 per cent-owned real-estate developer will be offered to the public at $21 per share.

Shareholders Will Ballot On Merger

Shareholders of the Bank of Marin will meet in special session on Aug. 29 to vote on a proposal to merge it with two other banks under a three-bank holding company called Independent Bankshares Corporation. The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at the Bank of Marin, 1108 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael.

A Bank of Marin spokesman said that combining the resources of the three banks gives the banks more flexibility in all areas of banking.

If the proposal is approved, the Bank of Marin, Bank of Sonoma County, and the First National Bank of Cloverdale would become banking subsidiaries of Independent Bankshares Corp. Shares of the three banks would be exchanged for shares of Independent Bankshares.

For each share now held, shareholders of Bank of Marin would get 1.63 shares of Independent Bankshares Corporation; shareholders of Bank of Sonoma County would get one for one; and shareholders of the First National Bank of Cloverdale would receive 2.75 shares.

Each bank will continue to maintain its own identity and management.

Market On Mixed Side At Final Bell

The market moved higher at the outset, carrying over the momentum from Friday's gain. But this petered out and the list turned mixed and lower after midsession. Analysts said there was no news in the background to spark much action.

Some said investors are concerned about the White House pressure on the auto industry not to raise 1973 prices. The industry generally has compromised but a stalemate looms, analysts said.

Department store issues generally were lower most of the day. Losers included S. S. Kresge, Sears-Roebuck, J. C. Penney, Mays Department Stores and Federated Department Stores.

Gold mining issues were lower from the outset, bucking the early market trend. On the easier side were American-South African, Campbell Red Lake and Dome Mines.

American Telephone & Telegraph remained strong most of the session.

Surprise in Safest Automobile Color

Crocker Bank's August auto newsletter reports it is white.

These are findings of an extensive scientific test using a newly developed optometric instrument, called a color meter, and a number of "test persons" with certified "normal" eyesight.

The findings contradicted several previous tests which apparently were based more on emotional than scientific factors.

Sharp Rise Reported For Chrysler Sales

DETROIT — (BW) — Chrysler Corp. reported Tuesday record sales of 35,880 new passenger cars during the first selling period of August, a 38 per cent increase over the 25,988 units delivered by dealers in the comparable period a year ago and the highest volume for the period since the like period in 1968 when sales reached 35,182 units.

The daily selling rate of 3,987 in the period compared with 3,249 in the like 10-day period in 1971, an increase of 23 per cent.

San Rafael Firm Shows Earnings

American Pacific Life Insurance Co. of 1050 Northgate Drive, San Rafael, showed earnings of $144,000 in the first half of this year, as compared with losses of $54,000 and $290,000 for the years 1971 and 1970, respectively.

Insurance in force increased from about $160 million in June of last year to $300 million this year.

Brandy Sales Are At All Time High

Total brandy sales in the United States moved to an all time high during 1971 and are headed for another record year.

More than 5.2 million cases were sold last year, an increase of nearly six per cent over 1970. Three quarters of these sales were California brandy, with the remaining fourth foreign brandies.

GOP Opens Orderly Convention In Miami

McCloskey Foiled On Bid For Backer

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The Republican party met for the 30th time in presidential convention today, to renominate President Nixon and to give Vice President Spiro T. Agnew a boost that could make him the presidential candidate four years from now. (See related stories, page 2).

The party that sprang from Abraham Lincoln in the shadow of the Civil War gavelled its 1,348 well-groomed and governed delegates to order in the same flag-decked convention hall where the Democrats held their free-wheeling conclave last month.

Three hours before Chairman Robert J. Dole gaveled the convention to order, convention leaders handed a final rebuff to liberal, antiwar dissident Paul N. McCloskey.

The Credentials Committee refused to seat a delegate from New Mexico supporting the California congressman, ending probably the last chance that any dissent will be raised against Nixon from the floor of the three-day meeting.

The renomination of both Nixon and Agnew was a formality to be made official on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. For Agnew it was also a potential first step on the road to his own presidential nomination—a trail devoid for now of potential challengers and free of any full scale effort to give the party a more liberal base.

Agnew did nothing to dampen the hopes of many party conservatives that he might capture the presidential nomination in 1976 just as Nixon inherited it from Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1968. He said he was "pleased" at the speculation.

The Republican squabbling was mere shadow boxing compared to the savage infighting between Democrats Hubert H. Humphrey and George S. McGovern which shook this tropical spit of land six weeks ago.

The White House worked to keep the feud backstage but the liberals threatened to carry it to the convention floor before the news-hungry eyes of television.

But confidence flowered anew in the August heat with the arrival of two respected polls showing Nixon's margin over McGovern widening and 30 to 40 per cent of registered Democrats declaring themselves ready to vote Republican.

Only six appeared Sunday when Mayor Edward Bivens Jr. of Inkster, Mich., a Negro, called a caucus of the 56 black delegates and 84 alternates with the intention of demanding the resignation of GOP National Chairman Robert Dole on grounds he was indifferent to women and blacks. Even fewer showed up at a second meeting.

Outside the pastel Fontainbleau Hotel, 500 anti-establishment protestors tried to disrupt Sunday night's $500-a-ticket gala honoring First Lady Pat Nixon.

An army of troopers and police scattered them after they struck out at, kicked, spat on and cursed party-goers in fancy dress.

"They wanted to kill me," protested an outraged Anna Maria Alba of Beverly Hills, Calif., the Argentine-born owner of a cosmetics firm.

She showed reporters the torn sleeve of her lace gown. "They called me a pig—a Nixon lover," she said. "They threw eggs on me. It's embarrassing."

The festivities went on anyway, raising $800,000.

Tonight, Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, the Senate's only Negro, Mrs. Anne Armstrong, party co-chairman, and youthful Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis are to deliver three keynote addresses followed by actor Jimmy Stewart's tribute to Pat Nixon.

Nixon will be renominated Tuesday and Agnew Wednesday.

Agnew, arriving Sunday, was met by a throng of youthful supporters.

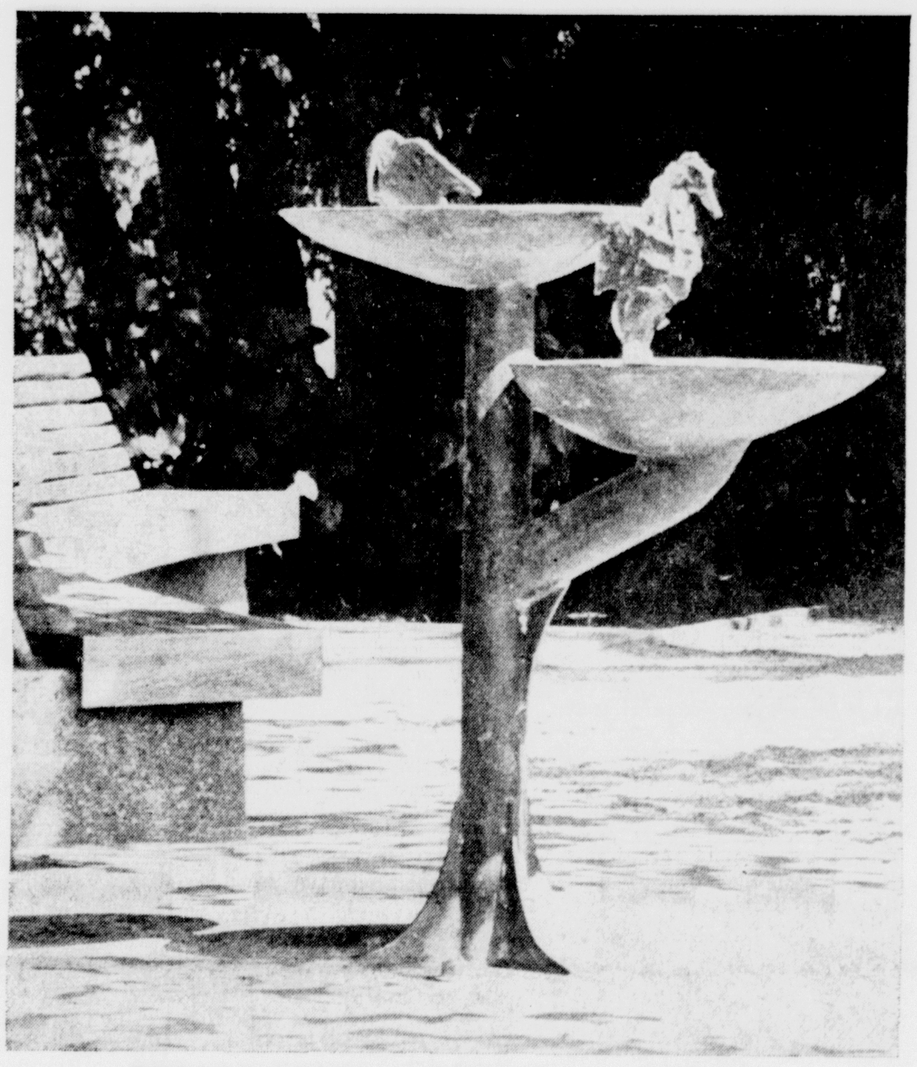

He told reporters he was "pleased" with a Miami Herald poll showing him the favorite among 36 per cent of delegates expressing a preference for a 1976 candidate.

"This doesn't mean that I've decided to seek the presidency," Agnew said. "But I'm keeping the options open."

Another conservative, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who will be 65 in 1976, kept the door open to a candidacy then. "I don't think you kiss anybody off because they're too young or too old," he said.

Against this competition, the liberals and moderates named

CESARE BETTINI FOUNTAIN STOLEN

This 300-pound, cast bronze fountain dedicated to the memory of Cesare Bettini stood until this weekend in San Rafael's Gerstle Park. The elaborate work, from which water spouted from sea horse figurines, was taken by thieves who loosened its base bolts, according to Scott Tilden, parks supervisor. The fountain, valued at about $1,000, was dedicated six years ago to the late Gerstle Estate gardener, father of San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

AT CAMP DAVID

Nixon, Kissinger Confer; San Diego Visit Planned

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, planning to do some post-convention politicking, will stop in San Diego for an airport rally Thursday en route to the western White House, it was learned today.

According to a White House official, Nixon will land at San Diego airport rather than the El Toro Marine Air Station, his usual landing field on trips to San Clemente.

Earlier in the day Nixon is scheduled to address the American Legion convention in Chicago and dedicate the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School in Utica, Mich.

Nixon will remain at San Clemente until Labor Day with the exception of a two-day side trip to Honolulu to meet with Japanese Prime Minister Tanaka.

Kissinger flew to Camp David after arriving in Washington Saturday from talks last week in Paris with Hanoi's peace negotiator, Le Duc Tho, and in Saigon with South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Radio Hanoi reported Sunday that Kissinger's trip to Saigon was a "cunning trick" to give the illusion that major changes were developing at the peace talks.

Between meetings with Kissinger, Nixon enacted a bill providing $1.6 billion in disaster relief for victims of tropical storm Agnes, the most widespread natural disaster in U. S. history.

"The job yet ahead requires persistence, courage and cooperation," Nixon said in a statement. "I know the citizens of the badly demanded communities have all of these."

The measure, approved by Congress last week, includes $1.3 billion for low-interest loans to an estimated 115,000 homeowners and 6,000 businessmen in the seven eastern states hit hardest by flooding in June.

Nixon also put the finishing touches on the acceptance speech he will deliver to the Republican National Convention Wenesday, and telephoned First Lady Pat Nixon before she left the White House Sunday for Miami Beach.

"Meet as many people as possible," Mrs. Nixon quoted her husband. "And tell the young volunteers how much I appreciate their efforts."

McGovern Hits Nixon On Flood Handling

McGovern, contending that the administration had been sluggish in responding to housing needs of devastated communities in the East, planned to inspect the damage here and in nearby Kingston. He will meet with angry Pennsylvanians who claim the federal government has been slow in meeting their needs.

McGovern earlier wrote to Wilkes-Barre City Manager Bernard J. Gallagher charging that the administration was "quick to bail out the Lockheed Corp. and the Penn Central Railroad, yet unwilling to serve the immediate needs of Pennsylvania's flood victims."

President Nixon signed a $1.6 billion bill Sunday at Camp David to provide aid to victims of tropical storm Agnes in the East and flood victims in South Dakota.

Starting the third week of his campaign, McGovern also planned to set foot in Illinois and Texas today as he struggled t narrow a large deficit in public opinion polls in his race with Nixon.

Following an airport rally in Decatur, Ill., the Democratic nominee will fly to Austin, Tex., for a reunion Tuesday with former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson, despite his bitter clash with McGovern over the Vietnam war when he was in the White House, endorsed McGovern last week.

Wednesday McGovern will be in Chicago for what he hopes will be a reconciliation meeeting with Mayor Richard J. Daley.

McGovern said today if the United States would suspend the Vietnam War for two days it could rebuild the flood-destroyed areas of Wilkes-Barre.

"We are bombing dikes in Haiphong when we should be building dikes in Pennsylvania," the Democratic presidential candidate told a young couple outside their home in the suburb of Kingston.

"One or two days of the war could rebuild this area."

McGovern made the remark as he stood in front of the Kingston home of Vincent Goulston. Three-fourths of the home had collapsed into a crater. The home was a few hundred feet from a dike on the Susquehanna River, which overflowed during tropical storm Agnes last June.

"It's like a war, but thank God there is no loss of life," McGovern said.

Red Troops Launch Da Nang Offensive

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops backed by tanks and accurate 130mm long-range artillery moved up the Que Son Valley closer to Da Nang and the huge American airbase today. U.S. planes retaliated in waves to try to stop the advance and a possible attack on South Vietnam's second largest city.

Military spokesmen said American fighter-bombers destroyed two Communist tanks 15 miles south of the city Sunday, while other warplanes bombed four of the 130mm guns —the largest artillery piece in the Communist arsenal. The guns, which have a range of 17 miles, were spotted about 30 miles south of Da Nang.

Neither tanks nor the big guns had been seen in the Da Nang area until the Communists Saturday overran the valley Saturday, capturing the district (county) capital of Que Son, 30 miles southwest of the city, and nearby Fire Base Ross.

Five waves of American B52s dumped almost 375 tons of high explosives on suspected Communist positions in the Que Son Valley but results of the strikes were not known.

(In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim linked the Communist drive with the U.S. presidential campaign. "With the election campaign nearing," he said, "we expected there would be some attempt by the enemy to influence it. We believe we may be

A $16 Million Grant Approved For Ferries

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A $16,478,270 grant to the Golden Gate Bridge District to build the first new ferry fleet on San Francisco Bay in 46 years was approved today.

The approval by Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe came only hours before the expiration of the low bid by a San Diego shipyard to build the initial fleet of three ferries.

Bridge district directors approved the construction contract on Aug. 11 subject to approval of the grant covering two-thirds of the $24 million total cost of the ferries and terminals in Larkspur, Sausalito and San Francisco.

The $12.6 million ferry construction contract with Campbell Industries calls for delivery of the first ferry in April 1974, with the next two to be delivered within the following eight months.

The bridge district has been working for almost two years to get the grant. Strong opposition to the grant came from Harbor Carriers, private operator of ferries on the bay.

Bridge District officials, however, convinced Volpe's staff late Friday that the district will cooperate with Harbor Carriers. Specifically, the district will share its float at the new San Francisco terminal with Harbor Carriers, will continue its feeder bus service to the Tiburon ferry operated by Harbor Carriers, and include the Tiburon ferry service in district publicity and schedules.

Carlos C. Villarreal, administrator of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration under Volpe, said the success of the district's single Sausalito ferry "has proved the impact of water transit in the Bay Area."

Villarreal said the new ferry system will deposit Marin commuters "virtually at their office doors without adding to downtown congestion. This is the kind of service the Nixon administration had in mind when it proposed to upgrade mass transit throughout the nation."

He praised the bridge district's plans for the ferry system as "an outstanding example of a creative, dynamic approach to solving a transit problem. Our objective is to move people, not vehicles."

According to district plans drafted over the past five years, the three aluminum-hulled ferries and the existing

Smoker Naps —Is Saved From Blaze

Walter D. Wilcox of Apartment 20 at 95 Midway Road told firemen he awoke in bed about 11:20 p.m. with flames all around him. He rushed to the kitchen where he was overcome by smoke.

Frances P. Zimmerman, occupant of Apartment 15, smelled smoke, summoned firemen and rushed into the burning apartment. He found Wilcox in the kitchen coughing and choking and led him to safety, according to San Rafael Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci.

Ten firemen and three units responded, extinguishing the fire in about two hours. At no time were the remaining 39 units or nearby homes endangered the chief said.

Most of the apartment dwellers had already evacuated by the time firemen arrived, according to the chief, many of them standing around in nightgowns and pajamas.

Fire, smoke and water damage was estimated at $10,000 to the apartment and $3,000 to the contents.

$500,000 Bail Set In Seattle Hijacking

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)— Frank M. Sibley, 43, stood in tennis shoes before a U.S. magistrate today and heard the jurist set his bail at $500,000 after being charged with air piracy for commandeering a 727 jetliner and demanding the largest ransom in U.S. skyjacking history.

Despite bullet wounds in his shoulder and leg, Sibley walked easily into the courthouse with one arm in a sling but with handcuffs on.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Blast From Humphrey

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today that President Nixon's veto of an education bill came at a time when "American education is in deep trouble"

Nixon vetoed the $30.5 billion bill to fund the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare last week with a message that it was inflationary.

"The Nixon administration is not the friend of American education. It has always recommended too little, too late," said Humphrey in a speech prepared for the 56th annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

Humphrey said some goals for the federal government should be to finance at least one third of public schools costs, a national collective bargaining law for teachers and federal standards and guarantees for teacher pension and retirement benefits.

Will Cleaver Return?

COMPTON (UPI) — Fugitive Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver may return to the United States rather than remain in Algeria, which is clamping down on refugee radicals, according to Cleaver's wife.

"The life of Eldridge Cleaver is in danger. He has been threatened prior to this with a very bad fate," Kathleen Cleaver told newsmen during the weekend.

Cleaver fled the United States while free on bond on a charge of carrying a weapon, a violation of parole for earlier crimes, which included robbery and rape.

His departure set off a series of killings within the party. Police described them as the result of a bitter power struggle between followers of Cleaver and those of his former ally, Huey Newton, who took over the Panthers.

Mrs. Cleaver did not give details of her statement that Cleaver's life is in danger in Algeria, and said she was unsure when — and if — Cleaver would return.

Labor Vote Prediction

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson predicts that President Nixon will get the biggest labor vote any Republican presidential candidate has won for the past 40 years.

For one thing working people are better off than before, Hodgson told a news conference yesterday. For another, he said Democratic candidate George McGovern's supporters turned their backs on organized labor at the Democratic national convention.

Hodgson said he was "enormously proud" of the labor plank in the Republican platform, with its open appeal for labor support and its lack of the GOP's traditional opposition to union shops. He said the President agreed with its contents "in substance."

Nixon Ahead In Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — President Nixon has a 26 point lead over Democratic presidential candidate GeorgeMcGovern, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

Nixon leads McGovern by 57 to 31 per cent.

The poll was taken Aug. 4 through Aug. 6, beginning the weekend Sargent Shriver was named by McGovern as his choice to replace Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton as his vice presidential candidate.

It shows a 1 per cent decline in McGovern's popularity from the previous poll, conducted after Eagleton disclosed that he had suffered from depression and had received shock treatments, but before he resigned the nomination.

The previous poll showed Nixon leading by 57 to 32 per cent.

Viet Settlement Seen

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers predicts that there will be a negotiated settlement to the Vietnam War by the end of the year.

"I think that either we will have a negotiated settlement before the election, which I think is a possibility, or we will have one very soon after President Nixon's reelection," Rogers said in a copyrighted story in yesterday's edition of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Ex-Naval Chief Dies

For accomplishments as chief of naval operations, Stark received the Navy's Distinguished Service Medal with a citation that noted his "responsibility for building and administering the largest peacetime Navy in the history of the country."

A native of Wilkes Barre, Pa., Stark was graduated in 1903 from the U.S. Naval Academy and, after two years at sea, was commissioned ensign. During World War I he was commander of the Torpedo Flotilla in the Asiatic Fleet and earned another Distinguished Service Medal.

He became chief of naval operations in 1939, only one month before Hitler invaded Poland and triggered World War II in Europe. He served in that post until March 1942.

First Lady To Be Honored At Opener Tonight

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Pat Nixon will have her moment of glory tonight when she steps up on the platform at the Republican National Convention to receive the accolades of hundreds of delegates.

It will be a history-making appearance for the First Lady. Never before has a President's wife been so spotlighted at a political conclave, or accorded so much attention.

Mrs. Nixon is the star of a film to be shown in the bunting-draped convention hall tonight, and the special tribute will be narrated by Hollywood star James Stewart. The movie is made up of film clips of the first lady on her travels to Africa, China and Russia as well as her active life at the White House.

Afterwards she will address the convention briefly while her two daughters and sons-in-law, the Edward Coxes and David Eisenhowers are spectators in the presidential box.

It was as if the time had come to give her special recognition.

Nothing has amused Mrs. Nixon more than to see these buttons saved as "collector's items" and ressurrected for this occasion by the faithful 12 years later.

"They knew I'd be back," she said with satisfaction.

Mrs. Nixon had a busy day ahead of her, armed with farewell orders from the President who telephoned her from Camp David, Md. when she left Washington to say: "Meet as many people as possible."

She planned to attend a breakfast honoring women candidates. Then she scheduled visits to state delegations, dividing up the caucuses with her daughters and hoping to touch base with as many as possible.

Protesters Give Guests Hard Time

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — "Keep the rich out!" spitting and shoving demonstrators shouted at Republicans arriving at Miami Beach's Fontainebleau Hotel for a $500-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

Mrs. Willard Marriott, wife of the multi-millionaire restaurant and motel chain owner, was furious.

"I had to climb a fence," she said.

The dinner Sunday night on the eve of the opening of the Republican National Convention raised $800,000 for GOP congressional candidates. The Republicans sold 1,600 tickets for the affair, but the diners had to run a gauntlet of about 500 antiwar protesters.

The demonstrators blocked Miami Beach's main street in front of the hotel for about a half hour befoe they were dispersed by club-swinging police.

"They want to kill me," said the Argentine-born cosmetic firm owner. "They called me a pig...a Nixon lover. They throw eggs on me. It's embarrassing."

Guilford Dudley, former ambassador to Panama and a self-described friend of President Nixon arrived in a Lincoln limousine.

"I guess that was a mistake," he said. "They jumped on top of the car and tried to rock it."

But Clare Boothe Luce, the former ambassador to Italy, wasn't stopped. She arrived on the arm of columnist William Buckley.

Hassan Foe Says Reforms Needed Now

RABAT, Moroçco (UPI)—An opponent to King Hassan's regime put it quietly but firmly: "Our people demand reforms immediately or the only solution may be more violence."

Such was the mood today among the legal political parties in Morocco following the king's hint in a speech Sunday that he may find it necessary to suppress one-third of Moroccan society in order to save the other two-thirds.

The king blamed the nation's labor unions and political groupings, which both openly oppose him, for a climate that resulted in two bloody attempts in 13 months against his life.

But one member of the Union Nationale Des Fotces Populaires (UNFP) party said in an interview, "It's the method of the king that engenders the military adventures."

The politician who spoke freely but preferred to remain anonymous is typical of a segment of educated young Moroccans. His girlfriend was garbed in a miniskirt rather than the conservative clothes and veil traditionally worn by Arab women.

A member of another party, Istiqlal, which is slightly more conservative than the UNFP, said in his office, "the people are pessimistic."

After the July, 1971, attempt on his life, King Hassan gave his people a new constitution. But a promised coalition government including the two parties and a parliament never came about. General elections now are set for April, 1973.

Istiqlal publishes its own newspaper — occasionally censored—and, the party member said, "We teach the people to respect democratic institutions. We negotiated with the king for six months. Nothing happened. Now the youth criticize us."

The Communist party is illegal in Morocco and its ideology has little open following, the politicians said. After the attempted August 16 attack, some political tracts appeared on the streets.

One hears on all sides that the king is not overwhelmingly popular. One opponent said, "It's not so much the monarchy as the person of Hassan himself that we don't like.

"He plays golf, he gets up late, he does not tend to work, he is egotistical."

Government spokesmen replied that Morocco has advanced under Hassan. The Moroccan Bank of Foreign Trade announced Sunday that Morocco's growth rate for 1968 to 1972 was planned at 4.3 per cent annually but climbed to 5.1 per cent.

But 75 per cent of the country's 14 million residents are illiterate, the government said.

Reagan Flattered By Poll Pointing To '76

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan, insisting he should not be "kissed off" merely because of advancing age, left the door open slightly for another Presidential bid in 1976 as he led California delegates today into the Republican convention.

"I don't think you kiss anybody off because they're too young or too old," said the tanned former actor, who looks much younger than his 61 years. "I don't intend to feel too old myself in the next few years."

Reagan said he was "flattered" by a poll Sunday which showed that 17 per cent of the Republican delegates nationwide preferred him for the 1976 presidential nomination. He told newsmen he has no political plans after 1974, when he steps down as governor of the nation's largest state.

While most California delegates went to the beach or partied, Reagan made the convention rounds with all the aura of a presidential candidate — surrounded by grim-faced body guards, waving to supporters and occasionally being serenaded by bands playing "California Here I Come."

Reagan, who ran for the GOP nomination in 1968 and is an enthusiastic advocate this time of President Nixon's re-election, was to preside tonight and Tuesday afternoon as temporary convention chairman. He planned to sharply criticize Democratic nominee George McGovern in a speech tonight.

Reagan accused McGovern Sunday of "irresponsibility" for "injecting himself into negotiations" with North Vietnam.

He also sided with smaller states against larger ones in a battle over representation at the 1976 convention. He said smaller states' independence should be protected.

The poll, by the Miami Herald, showed that 36 per cent of the delegates feel Vice President Spiro T. Agnew would make the best GOP candidate in 1976. Reagan ranked second in popularity with 17 per cent, followed by Texan John Connally, the Nixon Democrat, with 9 per cent.

But the newspaper said party leaders seldom mentioned Reagan's name as a potential nominee because he will be 65 in 1976.

Asked for a comment, Reagan sidestepped saying whether he would consider running again and told a news conference:

"As far as I'm concerned, the only election that concerns me is the one that's coming up in 1972. My mind does not go beyond Nov. 7 and getting the President re-elected.

"It's flattering," he continued, "to think that 17 per cent of the people feel that way. I'm happier about that than those others who said that I was getting too old."

Reagan is chairman of the 96-member California delegation, the largest in Miami Beach. Nearly 1,000 Californians— delegates, alternates, party leaders and hundreds of Young Republicans—arrived in shifts during the weekend from San Francisco and Los Angeles.

One chartered bus carrying arrivals to the delegation's Americana Hotel headquarters was pinched for speeding.

The Republican delegates were a far different breed from the California Democrats who came here six weeks ago. Instead of quarreling over credentials, Republicans were in a celebration mood. Displacing "Boycott Lettuce" and "Stop the Bombing" placards were red, white and blue "Love It or Leave It" signs. And fashionable sports coats and pants suits replaced the bluejean and braless look.

Reagan predicted Nixon will carry California in November. But like other California party leaders the governor said, "we will be running scared" because of a 3-2 Democratic voter registration advantage.

FISCHER-SPASSKY

Draw In 16th Game; More Protests Fly

REYKJAVIK (UPI)—In the corridor Eyfim Geller and Nikolai Krogius, two of world champion Boris Spassky's seconds, waited more than an hour in their raincoats. Inside the dark hall on the brightly lighted stage, the champion and challenger Bobby Fischer played on and on.

"Are they crazy? It has been a dead draw since the 33rd move," Krogius said and glanced at the closed circuit television screen where the moves piled up.

Geller smiled and chatted with Larissa, Spassky's wife. He was not chain-smoking, a sure sign the champion was not in trouble.

Finally after the 60th move Fischer looked up from the board, nodded and offered his hand. Spassky pressed it and the 16th game in the $250,000 world chess championship ended in a draw.

Although Fischer picked up another half-point and inched closer to the 12.5 points he needs to win, grandmasters said the challenger's standard had fallen in the last couple of games.

"I don't know if Fischer is trying to play safe," said Icelandic grandmaster Fridrik Olafsson" but the score is even with a win each and four draws in the last six games. There was not much punch in his play today."

But what the 16th game lacked in excitement on the board, Fischer provided between the moves.

Three times the temperamental chess genius snapped out of his $470 swivel chair and stalked across the stage to German arbiter Lothar Schmid.

"First time Bobby complained about people coughing in the auditorium," Schmid said later.

"Then twice he demanded that I move the game to a private table tennis room backstae because of the noise. I refused and told him the noise-level was not sufficiently high to warrant such a drastic move. There was no real disturbance."

Watching the record crowd of 3,000 persons filing out of the hall Schmid said "I think people were good today although I had to admonish a few during the game."

After eachrefusal, Fischer shrugged and walked back to the table without pulling out the written protest, U.S. sources said he stuck in his pocket before going to the hall.

The Icelandic Chess Federation issued a statement during the game protesting being named coplaintiffs in a $1.75 million lawsuit movie producer Chester Fox filed against Fischer.

The statement, signed by the five committee members, said "we deeply regret that seeds of suspicion have been thrown against us and we are unable to explain how this happened. It has never been the slightest intention of the federation to sue Mr. Robert Fischer for huge amounts."

Fox, who returned from New York early Sunday, said: "All the legal aspects are in the hands of my lawyers. All I know is that Fischer has prevented me from fulfilling my exclusive contract with the federation by refusing to allow cameras into the hall."

The 17th game is scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT Tuesday with Spassky playing the white pieces and moving first.

MIDDLEBURG HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI)—Thirteen cars of a 52-car Baltimore & Ohio freight train derailed and plunged 30 feet into a ravine Sunday, taking with them track, ties and part of the grading. No injuries were reported.

SENIORS SWITCH TO COMMERCE

Senior citizens and helpers busily spruce up the San Anselmo Bus Depot in readiness for Friday's opening of Bustop, Marin Senior Coordinating Council's first boutique. Arts and crafts made by seniors will be sold on a consignment basis, and seniors will also staff the shop, which will be open six days a week from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Edward T. Ryken, council executive director, said the boutique will also sell items made by members of tha Family Mix, a nonprofit educational co-op in San Anselmo. Outside the depot a barren hillside will be completely landscaped with flowers and shrubs by the two groups, assisted by youngsters from the Marin Volunteer Bureau. It's all part of seniors' efforts to keep the depot open despite a revenue loss since the Golden Gate Transit District took over commute bus runs. (Independent-Journal photo)

Judge Sets Argument Date In Fraud Trial

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Judge Douglas Amdahl has given both sides until Sept. 8 to submit final arguments in the consumer fraud trial against Holiday Magic Inc.

Testimony ended Friday in Hennepin County District Court in the case against the California cosmetics firm and two of its distributors.

Judge Amdahl also gave the state until Wednesday to submit special arguments supporting its efforts to introduce excerpts from a news film in which a Holiday Magic distributor was interviewed by WCOO-TV.

The state contends the firm and two distributors—James A. Solem of St. Paul and James A. Russell of Waconia, Minn.— violated a 1971 Minnesota law prohibiting multilevel distributorships.

Judge Amdahl said he would not permit the film or a transcript of it to be presented in evidence until he rules on the company's claim that its distributors are independent contractors and not employes.

He has taken under advisement a company motion challenging the law's constitutionality on the grounds that it is "vague, indefinite and imprecise."

The final witnesses called by the defense were Solem and Russell, who were arrested in a raid directed by the attorney general's office at the company's distribution center in Bloomington.

Both insisted they were general distributors and not company employes.

Solem said he joined the firm while a University of Minnesota student in 1968 and rejoined in 1971 after serving in the Navy and as an insurance agent.

Russell said he had been an Air Force pilot and radar control officer and had been employed by the Ralston Purina Co. for 10 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Markowski of Bloomington testified earlier they had made more than $35,000 by recruiting other distributors in the three years they had been in the company's selling program.

Mrs. Markowski said, however, that retail sales accounted for a good share of their earnings and that in one month had come to $1,150.

375 Reported Dead In S. Korea Floods

SEOUL (UPI) — Huge mounds of rocks, mud and debris were piled high today at the scene of an avalanche set off by the torrents of rain which produced South Korea's worst floods in more than a half century.

Police said 375 persons had been killed, 81 were missing and 410 were injured in the floods throughout South Korea.

Rescue workers retrieved 13 more bodies today at the avalanche site in Pyongchang-dong, a northern sector of Seoul. Police said that brought to 87 the number of bodies that had been recovered following the avalanche and that more bodies were doubtlessly buried under the mud, the rocks and the debris.

The avalanche was the largest of 50 avalanches and mudslides touched off by the disastrous rains which pounded central South Korea Saturday. The rains were the worst in the 65 years the weather bureau has been making official observations, officials said.

The Pyongchang-dong landslide occurred when a rain-soaked slope of a mountain collapsed on the northern outskirts of Seoul. The mud, which broke down in torrential rains, picked up speed and snowballed, rolling down 500 yards and engulfing 13 earthen brick and wooden shanty houses clustered along the valley.

Kim Ok-Hi, 35, who survived the disaster, said, "It took place in a matter of minutes. I heard a thunderous sound of something rolling down and moments later my house was gone." She said she was outside her house at the time of the accident to pick radishes for breakfast.

"There was no chance to escape the avalanche," she said. She lost her husband and four children.

Lee Yong-Hun, 33, a government official, said he received a phone call from his wife just before the accident but arrived too late. "When I arrived, I could see nothing but mud and debris," he said. "There was no sign of survivors." He lost his family of four.

Most of the landslides were reported in Seoul and its vicinity where at one time about two inches of rain fell in an hour.

The storm, which dumped 18 inches of rain in less than 30 hours, wrought havoc in Seoul, flooding at least one third of the city and crippling almost all utility services.

The outlying and lowland areas of the capital were almost submerged under water, turning crowded streets into lakes. Makeshift rafts were seen in the hearts of the city.

In Seoul alone, more than 250,000 persons were left homeless. The flood victims were temporarily sheltered at schools, churches and public offices.

President Park Chung-hee today ordered the mobilization of all national resources to repair damages which may run well over $10 million.

Tax Rate Will Be Set Tonight

Corte Madera Town Council will set the tax rate for fiscal 1972-73 tonight when it meets at 7:30 at the town hall.

The final 1972-73 budget total of $1,271,163 passed in July called for a tax rate of $1.35 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of 32 cents over this year's rate of $1.03.

However, at tonight's meeting Treasurer Frank Bigley will recommend that the council consider increasing the tax rate still more to provide reserves.

Councilmen will also be informed that a hike in the county library rate will call for an extra two cents on the Corte Madera rate.

Opera Opener Crowds Grove

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— More than 22,000 persons jammed Sigmund Stern Grove Sunday to celebrate the Golden 50th season of the San Francisco Opera.

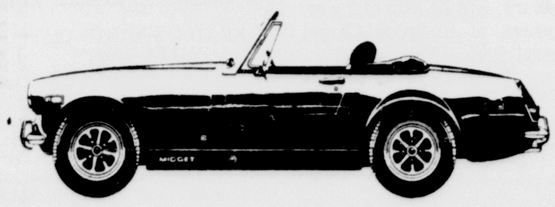

Artists from the opera's first year sat alongside stars of 1972 during the performance of "Prince Orlofsky's Garden Party" based on "Die Fledermaus."

A treat for those who have followed the San Francisco Opera since its beginning were performances by such veterans as Lauritz Melchior, Licia Albanese, Lucine Amara, Dorothy Warenskjold and Frederick Jagel.

Pregnancy Pay Issue Sparks Welfare Suit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A suit by a Novato woman and two others, aimed at forcing the state to pay disability in cases of pregnancy related illness has been filed with the Court of Appeal in Sacramento.

The suit, first filed last week with the State Supreme Court, was transferred to the Third Appellate District, Sacramento.

The suit seeks to force Sigurd Hansen, director of the State Department of Human Resources Development, to make payments in pregnancy related disabilities, currently excluded.

The suit was filed by Augustina D. Armendariz of Gilroy who suffered a miscarriage; Elizabeth B. Johnson of Novato who was operated on for a tubal pregnancy; and Jacqueline Jaramillo of Oakland who is currently pregnant, and the San Francisco Local of the Waitresses Union.

The suit said that 2 million women and 3 million men come under the state disability insurance plan and that 200,000 women per year are denied disability payments because of the exclusion of pregnancy related disabilities. On the other hand, the suit said, payments are made for "such disabilities as sex change operations, attempted suicides, circumcision, menopause, (prostate operations), and cigarette-caused lung cancer."

The suit asks that Hansen be prohibited from enforcing the regulation, that the regulation be declared void as unconstitutional and that the department be required to adopt interim regulations.

seeing the beginning of that.")

Military spokesmen said they feared the North Vietnamese planned to attack Da Nang, a city of 300,000 nestled between the South China Sea and jungled mountains to the south and west. It is 345 miles north of Saigon.

A U.S. airbase housing 5,000 Americans is two miles south of Da Nang. The last American ground combat unit was sent home from the area 10 days ago.

In other war action:

Fourteen waves of American B52 bombers attacked Communist troops in Quang Tri province, which the South Vietnamese have been trying to recapture since June 28. The bombers, along with South Vietnamese fighter-bombers, also destroyed six Communist tanks in the area.

Also in Quang Tri, A Communist force led by tanks was believed to have wiped out an 80-man South Vietnamese paratrooper unit two miles west of the provincial capital, Quang Tri City. Although there was no official casualty report, officers said they feared most of the government soldiers had been killed or wounded. However, a government spokesman said 147 Communists were killed in scattered battles around the city and near Hue, 32 miles to the south, one day earlier.

A spokesman said 37 Communists and six South Vietnamese were killed in a battle in Kien Hoa province 45 miles south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta.

In the air war over the North, the U.S. command said that Navy fighter-bombers attacked a military storage area one-half mile from the port city of Haiphong, while Air Force jets hit the Kep missile support facility 31 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Da Nang has been attacked so often by Communist rocket teams firing from the nearby mountains that its nickname is "Rocket City." But it never has been under direct assault.

The area is defended by about 25,000 South Vietnamese —mostly Rangers, with a number of infantry units and militiamen. About 5,000 of the defenders, however, are members of the rebuilt South Vietnamese 3rd Division—the unit which was routed by the Communists last spring in Quang Tri province.

no opponent. But the name of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, a millionaire former businessman, was mentioned most often as "the type" of liberal who might oppose Agnew at the next convention.

These were among developments:

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller went before the Ohio delegation to urge it and other urban states to support his plan that could give more proportionate delegate strength at the next convention than smaller rural areas would have. His plea set off lively debate.

The Rules Committee sought to work out a compromise on the delegate strength question to prevent it from emerging on the floor and shifting the focus of attention away from Nixon's renomination. It reached no conclusion in a 2½ hour morning session and recessed until later in the day.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic adviser, said the White House was staying clear of the delegate strength question. But he was somewhat critical of the tight control on dissent at the convention because, for one reason, he said it allowed McCloskey to "grandstand."

Watts Festival Draws 20,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A crowd of 20,000 relaxed under balmy summer sun Sunday and watched the seventh annual Watts Summer Festival parade with Academy Award winning singer-composer Isaac Hayes as grand marshal.

The procession began winding through the streets of Watts at about noon with a host of bands, celebrities, drill teams and floats.

Many clubs and businesses from the Watts area were represented and drew lively response from the spectators.

Wagner Expects McGovern Unity

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former New York City mayor Robert Wagner predicted Sunday that the divided state Democratic party will mend its wounds and unite behind Senator George McGovern.

"I have spoken to the party's various groups, both reform and regular, and progress is good for a united effort," Wagner said. "Everyone wants to see the McGovern-Shriver ticket elected."

Wagner, chairman of the state's McGovern campaign, made the statement in a televised interview.

Hawaii Is Fastest Growing US Land

HONOLULU (UPI)—The island of Hawaii is the fastest growing part of the United States because of the activity of two volcanoes, Mauna Loa and Kilauea, which periodically add enormous quantities of lava to the island's mass.

The 1969-1971 flow of lava from Kilauea's east rift zone was the longest and most voluminous flank eruption in the volcano's history.

Heavy Stargazer Satellite Lofted From Cape Kennedy

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—A space telescope named Copernicus rocketed smoothly into a perfect orbit and passed its kirst critical tests today to give man his most powerful view into the universe.

The $82 million observatory will study the life and death of faraway stars and may reveal some early secrets of the universe. Its instruments also will zero in on the mysterious pulsars that emit X-rays at regular intervals like cosmic lighthouses.

Engineers at the Satellite Control Center at Greenbelt, Md., reported three hours after launch that the spacecraft had successfully stabilized itself with a minimum expenditure of control gas. A spokesman said other operations were normal and controllers were "happy as clams."

The Space Agency reported that Copernicus was in a flawless orbit 460 miles high. Once it separated from its spent rocket, the silvery satellite unfolded its two big wing-like solar panels and began what engineers called its "survival phase"—a critical 12 hours of careful checks to be sure the craft is safely stabilized.

"It's a terribly exciting adventure into astronomy," said Dr. Lyman Spitzer, astronomer in charge of the satellite's main telescope. "We hope if the equipment works the way we expect it, we'll find all sorts of extremely exciting new things."

He said Copernicus's first astronomical observatoins would begin next week when all systems have been checked out.

Copernicus is the heaviest and one of the most complicated and costly unmanned spacecraft every launched. Scientists hope it will help revolutionize space astronomy.

The 4,900-pound satellite was launched at 6:28 a.m. EDT and its Atlanta-Centaur rocket propelled it into orbit 12 minutes later. The last Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (OAO) was lost in 1970 when its nose fairing failed to separate, but the fairing fell away smoothly from today's satellite.

The bat-like observatory was named after the 16th century Polish scientist who recognized in the 16th Century that it was the sun and not the earth that was the center of what was then believed to be the universe.

Watching the spectacular predawn blastoff were Witold Trampczynski, Poland's ambassador to the United States, and a large group of American dignitaries of Polish descent.

Young Cyclist Dies In Larkspur Crash

A 23-year-old motorcyclist was killed in Larkspur yesterday when his motorcycle veered on to loose gravel on the shoulder of Magnolia Avenue, throwing him against a speed limit sign.

Larkspur Police said John David Betz of 1308 Dakota Avenue, San Mateo, apparently died instantly at 10:50 a.m. as he crashed into the sign, snapping it off. His crash helmet disintegrated on impact, reported police.

Betz, reportedly a comparatively new motorcyclist, was taking part in the third annual Poker Run organized by Road Riders of Marin.

Alvin Dean Garcia of 1411 Casa Buena, Corte Madera, William M. Bogue of San Lorenzo, and Croft V. Jervis of Hayward, told police they were all in a group on the run's first leg with Betz.

Witnesses said Betz had just turned onto Magnolia from Bon Air Road, travelling at about 30 miles per hour, when his 1972 Norton veered onto the shoulder.

Some 260 motorcyclists, according to Mrs. Foss, competed in a leisurely run all over Marin County, collecting poker chips at designated points. At the run's end at Novato, those with the best poker hand from their chips won awards.

Foss said the club is starting a memorial fund for Betz.

Betz's death was the 22nd traffic fatality in Marin county this year compared to 23 by this date last year.

Police Nab Three Burglary Suspects

Acting on a resident's report of a suspicious vehicle in the vicinity, Novato police yesterday morning arrested two young men and a boy from San Francisco on suspicion of burglary.

The three were connected with four burglaries and possibly two more. Stolen items valued at $461 were discovered in their car, officers reported.

Arrested were Robert Albert Larkin, 19, of 712 Girard Street, and the 14-year-old boy, Michael D. Edwinson, 18, of 722 Girard Street, turned himself in at police headquarters later in the day, police said.

Edwinson and Larkin were booked into Marin County jail with bail set at $1,500 each and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court. The boy was sent to Juvenile Hall.

Officer Roger Speerschneider reported he saw one of the youths, later identified as Edwinson, carrying an object across Center Road at Wilson at 7:15 a.m. yesterday.

Edwinson then disappeared on Buena Vista, but Speerschneider saw a car with a license number given by the resident, he reported.

Inside the car, the officer said, were Larkin and the juvenile, tool boxes, stereo tape player, stereo tapes, two fishing rods, tackle box, basketball and numerous hand tools, electric hand tools, and a 10-speed bicycle.

Edwinson, who wasn't in the car, appeared at the Novato Police Department at 1:15 p.m.

Youth Is Caught In Theft Act

Returning to their parked car on Cain Street, Larkspur, at 12:52 a.m. Saturday, a South Dakota couple found a youth taking a stereo speaker from the car, Larkspur police reported today.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knight told the youth to put the speaker back, said police, but when they discovered more of their personal property in his car, Knight grabbed him while Mrs. Knight telephoned for the police.

The juvenile — whose identity was withheld on orders of Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson — was arrested on suspicion of grand theft and placed in Juvenile Hall.

Police said the Knights, of Yankton, S. Dakota, were visiting relatives on Cane Street, and had been for a walk before discovering the theft.

HERE'S HEALTH! by JUNE EMBURY

Foot specialists warn that rigid footware, such as the "in" platform shoes, keep feet from functioning flexibly as nature intended. Which emphasizes the beautiful purpose served by the BIRKENSTOCK "footprint" sandals, now a way of life for people everywhere, who say they're the next best thing to going barefoot.

Actually, they're better than barefoot, because their patented contour, made of flexible cork, cushions against the impact of hard, smooth surfaces. Yet the sandals mold themselves to each individual foot and stimulate the toes to grip, which helps strengthen leg muscles and ligaments and encourages improved posture.

We feature the BIRKENSTOCK line in several styles for adults and children. You're invited to try on our samples and discover why one wearer was inspired to write us this unsolicited testimonial: "My feet thank you from the bottom Of their soles."

Law Inconsistent, But Not Lawyers

We often hear complaints about inconsistencies of the law; but there is nothing inconsistent about lawyers — anyhow, not where their own fees are involved.

The American Bar Association proved that at its convention last week in San Francisco.

Several sections of the ABA had urged it to take a stand in favor of no-fault automobile insurance. The ABA's board of governors had proposed that it postpone any action on the subject

SO WHAT DID the lawyer delegates do?

The essence of no-fault auto insurance is that it requires an underwriter to pay the medical bills for injuries suffered in auto accidents by those it has insured. Under the system that presently prevails, the responsibility for payment lies with the insuror of the driver who was to blame in the accident. Where more than one driver is involved, these leads to arguments between attorneys for their insurors — and frequently, to court.

No-fault's purpose is to speed up payments, keep accident insurance claims out of court, and thus reduce insurance costs.

THAT IT WORKS has been proved in Massachusetts, where a no-fault plan has been in effect for two years. Cost of basic insurance required under Massachusetts law dropped from $117 in 1970 to $74 this year. And in June, the Massachusetts Supreme Court ordered insurance companies to refund 27.6 per cent of premiums paid because they constituted excess profits.

But keeping claims for whiplash injuries, mental suffering, etc., out of the courts definitely does not benefit lawyers. What it does to them was described in a recent New York Times Magazine article on the experience in Massachusetts:

"The hallways of the Suffolk Superior Courthouse in Boston, once jammed with tort lawyers, are now relatively empty . . . 'Ninety per cent of tort cases are gone,' explains Mrs. Kathleen Ryan, president of the Massachusetts Trial Lawyers' Association."

AND SO THE ABA convention came out for a plan which would require the insuror to pay the medical bills for those he insured — but permit the injured party to sue anyhow in an attempt to collect more.

The obvious result: Quicker medical payments, but no reduction in lawyers' fees — nor in insurance costs.

Louis W. Niggeman of Kentfield, chairman of the board of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, nailed this "compromise" for what it is: not no-fault at all. It does not, he noted, eliminate "any of the wastes and costs of the tort liability system. The only way premiums can be contained or lowered is by restricting lawsuits."

Skunks Can't Jump

With our Marin evenings warmer and more suitable for wild animal observation, we are seeing more of Brother Skunk. In many ways, he is admirable. He never seems to be rushed. At his fastest, he seems to go at a stiff legged trot. He can't jump like a cat or a raccoon, and his feet are not equipped for climbing. Brother Skunk walks fearlessly with his feet firmly planted on the ground. He is unafraid. And we all know why.

SMOG DISTRICT REPORT

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto suggested last week that a $45,000 management study of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District may have been tainted by "ulterior motives."

How right he was!

The study was triggered last spring by a bitter dispute between the district's chief administrator and its attorney. Attorney Matthew S. Walker charged that his boss, D. J. Callaghan, systematically had coddled polluters over the years.

THANKS TO A SPLIT 18-member board of directors, the dispute was shelved pending the $45,000 study by Cresap, McCormick and Paget Inc. of San Francisco. Walker subsequently resigned to take a federal job, but the board has remained split, with Callaghan retaining support by a bare majority.

The consultants thus had to work an elaborate way around Callaghan in their analysis of the district's many ills. They hardly could have recommended firing him. Consultants, like many others, traditionally live by the mot that the path to success is paved with satisfied customers.

The consultants, seeing their charge from the board, thus recommended a heavy dose of aspirin and bandages and ignored the possibility of need for surgery.

THE RESULT of their tortuous circumvention was a series of recommendations that would strip Callaghan of many key powers and create a number of subsidiary hubs of power. It would be rather like a wheel wobbling along on several hubs.

The consultants went even further astray from reality. They said that holding together this wierd administrative contraption will demand much more work by the board of directors. That's asking a lot from a board which commonly musters little better than a quorum, regards a punctual lunch as the most important business of each meeting, and harbors many who understand neither air pollution nor what they are supposed to do for their $50 a session.

By the time Callaghan and his cohorts on the board get through tinkering with the consultants' recommendations, we expect little will be left besides a $45,000 receipt.

CALLAGHAN'S PRIDE in the report apparently explained his reluctance to release it to the public. He knowingly flouted a state law that made the report a public record when it was delivered to the district office. Callaghan refused requests for public viewing of the report for two days, giving in only when board chairman Robert B. St. Clair interceded and ordered him to release it.

Even this order from St. Clair got twisted by Callaghan. Instead of making the 130-page report available on the next afternoon, as St.Clair ordered, Callaghan sat on it until 4 p.m. This generous act gave the public one hour to glimpse the report before the district pulled up its drawbridge for the night.

What did the taxpayers get for their $45,000?

"I'm Beulah. How about flying me to Miami?"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Reader Wants Help On Canine Problem

Help! Do you suppose any of your readers can solve my problem? It is quite simple — stopping a neighbor's dog urinating all over our garbage can. Please do not laugh — I am absolutely serious. All the commercial products emphasize that training with the noxious spray or stakes which they promote must be tied in with voice commands — at least they are honest in promoting their products; problem: we never see the beast "sprinkling" the can — so how can we voice train him? We do know that it is the same hound, since we hear pitterpat overhead our bedroom — and when we rush out, the deed is done and the beast is sautering up the road with a smug expression on his face. Please, readers, no unproven nostrums — only well tested and workable products would be appreciated.

Research Statement On Fluoridation

I have read with interest the letters regarding the fluoridation controversy recently and would like to submit a quotation which is very pertinent to the subject. The following is taken from the National Academy of Sciences Publication No. 1694 and is by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council.

"Fluoride is present in small but widely varying amounts in all soils, water supplies, plants, and animals and thus is a normal constituent of all diets. Highest concentrations in mammals are found in bones and teeth. Fluoride is incorporated in the structure of teeth and is necessary for maximal resistance to dental caries. For these reasons, it is considered to be an essential nutrient.

"Standardization of water supplies by addition of fluoride to bring the concentration to one part per million has proved to be a safe, economical, and efficient way to reduce the indidence (sic) of tooth decay — a very important nutritional public health measure in areas where natural water supplies do not contain this amount.

"The Food and Nutrition Board recommends fluoridation of public water supplies where it is needed because of low fluoride concentration."

Boardwalk Solves Environment Problems

I would like to suggest a proposal in wholehearted agreement with your editorial on walking. While public promenades are in shortage here, creating them will still mean that people drive from their neighborhood to special sites, in order to go for a pleasant stroll. I think this makes a natural thing artificial and further fragments already compartmental living. Walking (or rowing, or bicycling) can and should be an integral part of daily living. Here on the Greenbrae Boardwalk, no one has to make a choice about whether to walk "for his health," or to be more expedient and drive. Everyone must walk, in all seasons and all weather. From our house it is ⅓ of a mile to the mail boxes and parking. The salt marsh which graces one side of the boardwalk never seems less than a jewel of God's handiwork, always rewarding the small extra time and effort for footwork.

May I suggest that Marin County's developers consider building more such boardwalks. For example, on the quarry site in Corte Madera, a group of dwellings on a single plane near the upper rim, would be in scale with the site and leave the entire lower area as a park . . .

There has been much talk recently about lower and moderate income housing in Marin. If the auto is no longer afforded such a large share of each lot and building, low-moderate housing could become more than the crackerboxes now possible (many retired or low income people live here in really unique and comfortable homes). Boardwalk homes, in addition to benefitting the health and peace of individuals, go far toward restoring the "lost sense of community" so often lamented. They also tend to become homes where "porch sitting" can be done in privacy and quiet . . . May I suggest boardwalk communities, with porches, as a cure for many of Marin's, and man's, dwelling problems.

Zenovich Clarifies Shoreland Use Bill

Your paper recently ran an article about my Senate Bill 742, which was labeled a bill which would overturn recent court decisions which granted public access to beaches, lakes, and rivers. I am afraid your readers may have received the erroneous impression that this measure was designed to prevent public access to such resources, so I would like to clarify the situation by providing the background for this legislation.

The Gion-Dietz decisions, to which the article refers, held that the owner of property which has been continuously used by the public for more than five years must either affirmatively prove that he granted a license to use his land to the public or demonstrate that he vade a bona fide attempt to prevent public use in order to negate a finding of intent to dedicate his land to the public. The burden of producing evidence is placed on the property owner.

The fear that their property would be dedicated to the public because they neither granted the public a license nor attempted to keep the public off their land prompted property owners to begin actively prohibiting public use of their land. This was corrected by urgency legislation I coauthored last session which allowed property owners to open their land to public use without the fear of it being dedicated permanently to the public.

This measure, though, only applied to current and future public use. The question still remained as to whether a property owner could be dragged into court and be forced to produce evidence showing that there was no intention to dedicate his land to the public at some time in the past in order to keep his land from being so dedicated. . .

My legislation would merely require anyone claiming that private land should be dedicated to the public based on past public use bring into court evidence, not just allegations, to support that claim . . .

TODAY'S WORLD

"Every time we get a billion miles out in space, it's time for dinner."

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Nixon Planning Cabinet Changes To Build Up Future Candidates

MIAMI BEACH — President Nixon does not plan to give Spiro Agnew a free ride to the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

He does not wish and he does not intend to propel his two-time running mate to a point where he could be the only contender.

This does not mean that Nixon is downgrading Agnew. It does mean that he wants to help prepare the way for an open and vigorous contest among a number of Republicans, and he aims to help them come to the fore during his second term — if he is re-elected.

TO THIS END there will almost certainly be numerous cabinet changes in a second Nixon administration.

One objective is to give maximum visibility to attractive Republican leaders who are potential presidential candidates.

Nixon is not ruling Agnew out. He simply wants to rule others in and he sees this as important for the health and vitality of the GOP.

Nixon has no inclusive list of Republican figures he has in mind. It is open-ended.

He expects that the biggest Democrat-for-Nixon, former Sec. of the Treasury John Connally, will be a self-proclaimed Republican and he will certainly be returning to a top post in the cabinet. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be coming to Washington.

THE PRESIDENT is very high on Donald Rumsfeld, former congressman from Illinois who has been serving as executive director of the Cost of Living Council. He is one of the brightest — a doer as well as a thinker — of the younger Republicans. Nixon will likely put him further to the front. He is also high on the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, George Bush.

Nixon expects the Senate to provide additional leadership potential —such as Senators Charles Percy of Illinois, Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio and Howard Baker of Tennessee. Sec. of Defense Melvin Laird of Wisconsin and presidential aide Robert Finch of California may also be in the Senate by 1974.

Vice President Agnew would still figure prominently but not exclusively in Nixon's plans to build a stronger Republican Party. He would continue to give Agnew important and visible assignments, but he has in mind something like a Republican constellation in which each can have a chance to shine.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ban on a President serving more than two elected terms makes it easy for Nixon to move in this direction. Perhaps he would have done so anyway, but it is noteworthy that during his four elections President Franklin D. Roosevelt never encouraged — really never allowed — any of his administration colleagues to rise very far above the surface. This discouraged many of them from becoming serious challengers to his renominations.

Nixon cannot be nominated for a third term. Therefore he has no temptation to keep the spot open for himself. He has every incentive to build up other Republicans, and it is apparent that he intends to do so.

He sees it as strengthening his own administration — if he wins — and strengthening his party.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Republican Black Caucus Great Contrast To Democrats

MIAMI BEACH — In order to call attention to the fact that a few of them are present, the black delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention are going to get together in a tight little group and hold what they call a strategy caucus.

They may not use the Doral Hotel room assigned to Paul Jones, the executive director of the black voter division of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. But they could if they wanted to, because they would all fit in.

It will be fascinating to compare this gathering to the black caucus at the Democratic convention, and you can be sure that your media favorites will, as one way of nudging the Grand Old Party to see if it is here live or only on film. And assuming that the motivation that unites the caucus is a common desire to re-elect Mr. Nixon, the contrast will be great indeed.

THE BLACK DEMOCRATS caucused in a big ballroom at the Fontainebleau, where Afro hairdos, dashikis and talk too straight to quote in a family newspaper surrounded a procession of presidential candidates. The only way the black Republicans can fill a big ballroom is to send out for help, which they may quite likely do, and the all-star cast that Jones has on his black voter division list is a lot heavier on bankers' gray flannel and clerical collars than Afro styles.

What puzzles most, though, is what a caucus of black Republicans committed to Mr. Nixon's re-election can think of to say to convince each other and blacks across the country that that is a wise commitment to make. The best clues are in the speeches Jones himself has been making as he trqvels the country on the President's behalf.

Jones, a 44-year-old former Peace Corps official and community relations specialist, is a convert from the Democratic Party where most blacks (at least 85 per cent in the 1968 election) still feel most comfortable. He switched just in time to take his current political assignment. So, as one who has been the route, he should know what to tell other blacks who might be considering conversion. BY GOING so heavily Democratic last time, blacks were throwing away their votes, Jones says. "Black voters told both parties that there was no need to work for black goals since the black vote was already in the back pocket of one party. We . . . lost a chance to gain leverage, to put a few IOUs from the candidates in the black hand." This year blacks should decide on the basis of candidate and performance, not party and promises, he maintains.

As evidence of performance, he lays heavy emphasis on Mr. Nixon's "black capitalism" promises of 1968, backed up with increased funds for minority business enterprise since then. He says the "exciting years" of civil rights legislation "are behind us," and points to the President's funding of civil rights enforcement.

He gives this administration credit for the reduction in the percentage of black children attending segregated schools, and the increase in the number of black generals in the services.

And all this, in Jones' version, was straight out of Mr. Nixon's heart, because the President "had no electoral mandate to help blacks — no mandate at all except his conscience telling him that we deserved a larger share of America's affluence."

"We blacks," he concludes, "can now liberate ourselves from our bondage to one political party. We now realize that our fidelity to that party has been unrewarded."

BUT ONE WONDERS to whom he is talking. In his rationale there is more about mysterious programs like MESBIC (minority enterprise small business investment companies) than about welfare, for example. Without pretense, he is pitching to the black borgeoisie rather than the ghetto proletariat. And since black businessmen are a minority within a minority, that does not appear to be sensible political strategy.

It is, however, from two viewpoints: Any tiny cut into the black bourgeoisie for Mr. Nixon will be a net gain to combine with greater net gains in other minority groups —and most importantly, out among the great white middle class where the votes are, it is far smarter for the GOP to appeal to and be represented on convention television by respectable preachers, college presidents and undertakers than by wild-haired activists who scare Middle America half to death.

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Jones both know that.

Manipulating The Seasons For Our Artificial Sports

Sporting events have lost all sense of season. Played under astrodomes on chemical grass, they threaten to become as artificial as flowers sealed in plastic.

Football, the game that's supposed to go with frost on the pumpkin and falling leaves, now thunders sweatily onto the turf — whoops, the Astroturf — in August or even July. And by World Series time, basketball and hockey are taking over.

Well, just wait. When the domed stadium really covers the country, pennant races can be adjusted to climax just before Christmas — if, by then, Christmas is still there.

The final abstracting of sports takes place in the Little Electronic Box — on the 21-inch screen representing in "living" color all that plastic grass. The prototypical sportsman of 1972 may be the broadcaster: the Man in the Glass Booth, stuffed with earplug phones, one eye on his monitor, surrounded by playback gadgets, stop-action cameras, and slow-motion reruns — to say nothing of those taped commercials.

THE EVOLUTION of the sports broadcaster parallels the evolution of sports, and perhaps even the evolution of American character. Red Barber has described today's sports broadcaster as "a 'faceless' voice that comes in with a sentence, then disappears for the 'former-great-star expert'" burbling on with his color commentary, his endless I-remember- whens.

It was not always so, as Barber — one of the masters of sports broadcasting for nearly 40 years — well knows. Early stars — Graham McNamee, Ted Husing, Bill Stern — were flamboyant characters who filtered their reports through rather awesome egos in rhetorical styles that combined the vocal flourishes of a road-company Hamlet and a snake-oil salesman. The TV broadcaster must stand aside — technology's handmaiden, neutral, well-behaved, deferring to the machine, to the camera's eye.

The radio broadcaster was the eye. He gave the listener not the game but the game as he chose to see it. His product was excitement — no matter how dull the event itself. An old-time sports broadcaster had a ramance going with actuality. He invented heroes. He contrived drama. He self-generated controversy.

Accuracy? Alas, it often came in second. Or third.

Bill Stern, a near-hysterical announcer with a racing-to-Apocalypse delivery, used to solve his problem of mistaking the ball carrier by inventing phantom laterals until the football ended in the right hands. Once Stern — legend has it — uncharitably gloated over Clem McCarthy, the horse-racing broadcaster, for calling a close finish wrong. "Well," said old Clem in mild rebuttal, "you can't lateral a horse."

IF 1972'S SPORTSCASTER is the plugged-in Man in the Glass Booth, the old-timer, in Barber's favorite phrase, was a sort of pop-poet in the catbird seat — a self-taught strolling minstrel with a carbon microphone and a saga to improvise on the spot.

Tangles in wires, parlayzed by inhibitions. living with a lie detector in the shape of a camera peering over his sholder, the erstwhile romancer has been forced to turn into a cautious maker of small talk: "All right, here's young Lancelot — a real good prospect for the Round Table. He's got those big hands. He knows all the moves. He just could be one of the great ones. Here's what his coach, King Arthur, had to say about him in a pre-joust taped interview: 'I'm telling you, Howard, once this kid matures a little emotionally. . . '"

And so on.

Hard days for romantics. Sports always has been a business, but now the business is too visible. The cash register's ring drowns out the play-by-play. Howard Cosell, ombudsman of the disillusioned, goes around complaining that all the Kings of Swat have no clothes.

And the seasons get manipulated.

IT IS TIME for a little nostalgia in sports broadcasting? As a "No, No Nanette" starter, who wants to produce an LP called "The Best Malapropisms of Dizzy Dean"? — including, of course, a few runners who "slud" back to their "respectable" bases.

Or is nostalgia the ultimate crassness?

STEP BACKWARD

NAACP Leaders Hit Bus Policy

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— Southern California NAACP leaders Sunday called antibusing legislation approved by the House of Representatives last week a "racist political attack" and a deliberate step backward.

The bill, supported by President Nixon, now goes to the Senate, where its fate is uncertain. It passed the House by a vote of 282-102.

Following the third quarter conference of leaders from 25 Southern California branches, the NAACP issued a statement condemning "the Congress and Richard Nixon for their racist political attack on the right of black children to quality education, in exchange for votes in the 1972 election."

"We feel passage of the Nixon anti-busing bill by Congress is a deliberate step backward from the position that the rights of all children to a quality education are constitutionally protected," said Mary Harper, conference president.

"The faith and hope of black Americans in the efficiency of law as an instrument of change has been badly shaken by the presidential and congressional action knowingly taken to undermine justice in the federal courts," she said.

The bill would severely limit busing as a tool to achieve racial balance in schools, but stops short of prohibiting it altogether. Under its provisions, all other remedies would have to be exhausted before turning to busing, and then students could be shifted only to the second-closest school to their homes, banning cross-city movements. Its terms would cover busing programs already established as well as future cases.

Storm Pounds War Gas Storage Island

HONOLULU (UPI) —Johnston Island, storehouse of America's 13,000 tons of lethal war gas, was bombarded for six hours Sunday by Hurricane Celeste's towering waves and roaring winds.

A Navy reconnaissance plane flew over the atoll later in the day to evaluate the onslaught of 45-foot waves and 150 mile-per-hour winds that hit the top-secret military base.

The island's residents and 580 servicemen were evacuated before the storm lashed the 3,000-foot-long atoll located 800 miles southwest of Honolulu.

The reconnaissance plane did not land but reported to officials that it appeared there was "minimum wind damage and no water damage."

"We have no reason to believe there are any extensive damages to equipment or facilities on the island," a spokesman said.

Photos were taken and after they were evaluated, further decisions will be made toward returning personnel, the spokesman said.

Residents of Johnston were evacuated to Honolulu because "to remain would be too great a risk." They awaited word on when they could return to the mid-Pacific island.

As Hurricane Celeste headed northward, the howl of the wind and the pounding of the surf subsided, and the National Weather Service reported clear skies over the island. A spokesman said Celeste intensely lashed the tiny dot in the Pacific for six hours.

The nerve and mustard gas, stored in earth-covered steel and concrete bunkers called "igloos," was brought to Johnston from Okinawa aftar residents of Guam and Alaska protested upon learning their areas were being considered as storage sites.

Johnston, one of the remotest spots owned by the United States, is also jammed with top secret military equipment, including missile tracking facilities, storage areas for nuclear devices, launching pads for rockets, airfield refueling facilities and accommodations for those working there. The facilities are shrouded in mystery, and newsmen are not allowed.

The Air Force said "all munitions and equipment was secured to the maximum extent possible prior to evacuation" of the men. At first, the Air Force said there would be no evacuation because "facilities are adequate." Finally all but 10 men were removed and, as the hurricane picked up ferocity, everyone was evacuated from the tiny dot in the Pacific.

While the military evaluated the effects of Celeste on Johnston Island, clean up operations were underway on the Island of Hawaii after tropical storm Diana. Mayor Shunichi Kimura declared one section an emergency area where most of the $200,000 in storm damage occurred.

China-Burma Flight Veterans Convene

Demos Oppose Property Initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —In a broad-based state party platform, California Democrats have declared their opposition to the Watson property initiative and the death penalty proposal on the November ballot.

"We believe in the basis of the decision of the California Supreme Court which declared the death penalty a cruel and unusual punishment," the party said in a resolution adopted by delegates at a platform meeting Saturday.

In opposing the Watson measure, which limits property taxes, the convention called the initiative a "regressive measure" that would provide tax relief for big businesses at the expense of the average taxpayer.

The Democrats also took stands on several other controversial initiatives on the November ballot, including support of a measure to tighten control of California's coastline and to restrict the governor's veto power on state employes' pay increases.

The delegates also endorsed an initiative requiring the state to match highway patrolmen's salaries with those of top local police agencies.

The convention declared its opposition to an initiative prohibiting farm product boycotts and require secret ballots for farm labor union organizations.

The delegates took no stand on an initiative legalizing marijuana possession for adults but declared in a resolution that they opposed felony prosecutions for the use or personal possession of the weed.

Bob Ashford, statewide coordinator of the marijuana initiative campaign, issued a statement Sunday from San Francisco charging the Democrats with "ducking the issue" by failing to take a stand on the measure.

The convention also defeated a motion by Leslie Craven of Azusa, a congressional candidate, to remove from the platform a plank supporting the use of busing to achieve racially integrated schools.

Craven said 80 per cent of Californians opposed busing. But Rep. James Corman said the convention must take a stand on busing because the issue is "a matter of great national importance."

Navy Kudos To Mill Valley Man

John S. Berray of 11 Circle Way, Mill Valley, has been awarded the Navy Meritorious Civilian Service Award on his retirement as superintendent of the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard Mechanical Group.

It marked the second time that Berry received the award — the first was when he was a young leadingman sheetmetal worker at Hunters Point in April 1946.

Berray was cited for his work in leading the combined federal campaign at Hunters Point to 123.5 per cent of its preassigned goal, and for his recent accomplishments in meeting the due dates on the carriers Enterprise and Ranger while the shipyard was undergoing a large reduction in force.

Beauty Queen Quits, Calls Role 'Degrading'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Miss California-World of 1972, Patricia Kinne, 18, resigned her title during the weekend, complaining that she had been treated "like cattle...like a product."

"I felt degraded," said the San Gabriel girl, who won the title three weeks ago. The first runnerup, Miki Garcia of Sacramento, will represent California at the Miss World-USA contest next month in Hampton, Va.

Precious Film's Return Is Asked

New York Times Idled By Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Times was forced to suspend publication of today's morning editions because of a work stoppage Sunday night by members of the New York Mailers Union.

A spokesman for the newspaper said the mailers, who handle the printed newspapers from the presses to the delivery trucks, walked off the job just as the first edition press run began about 9:30 p.m.

The mailers claimed the newspaper violated its contract with the union by changing mailroom work conditions that could result in the elimination of 24 jobs. A newspaper spokesman said the action was in compliance with the contract and that "any issues could be resolved under the existing terms of the contract."

The spokesman said the newspaper was able to print only about 1,000 copies out of its average press run of 850,000.

Teacher Aids First Step Outside A Mental Ward

Woody Mizelle of 105 A Marinero Circle, Tiburon, is a teacher. He has only nine pupils, and school begins each day with a business meeting at which the teenagers decide what they're going to do.

"If any child wants a group — say he had a bad weekend — he can choose which others he would like to talk to about it. He can set a time limit on the group," said Mizelle.

The pupils are all 13 to 16 year-old patients in the Children's Center at Napa State Hospital. Mizelle is teaching in an experimental satellite home prograv which is intended to alter radically the sudden transition children face when they're discharged from the hospital into community life.

"It's an intensive day treatment program," explained Mizelle, who was on vacation last week, "and the home is on the hospital's grounds. The kids spend the night on the wards, but rom 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. they're in the home."

Dr. Richard Kogel, program director of the children's center, said: "We've long been aware there has been a big gap between programs in the community and for youngsters living in a hospital ward."

"We're trying to move toward an intermediate program, and hope eventually to have 100 to 150 youngsters living in these homes."

He said probably all except about 20 patients would be housed off the hospital grounds in satellite homes in Napa and Solano counties, within a 15 to 20 mile radius so the children could attend school at the children's center.

WOODY MIZELLE
Hospital teacher

The children's center handles youngsters in the hospital. They have all been voluntarily committed, either by their parents or by juvenile courts, and Dr. Kogel emphasized that they are emotionally disturbed, not mentally retarded.

This is a pilot program for state hospitals, with a similar venture being tried at Camarillo State Hospital in Ventura county which serves the southeran one-third of the state — Napa handles the rest of California.

Mizelle said he personally feels the satellite home program is working well — "and I'd like to interest community service organizations in Marin in the program. For instance, I'd love to take the kids to see One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest but we don't have the funds for field trips.

"These kids are emotionally handicapped, not mentally retarded, but for them it's the last chance, it's just beyond the stop sign.

"Most have had some contact with the law and run the gamut of every community agency before they get to the hospital. Some have been into drugs, problems at home, parental conflict, they've faced it all.

"We want them to have the experience of a home situation and dealing with the problems they're going to face outside."

At the moment the nine adolescents in the satellite home do spend most of the day in the hospital wards, but Dr. Kogel said it will be expanded into a 24-hour program.

Mizelle works with a social worker and two psychiatric technicians. Originally from North Carolina, he has a bachelor's degree in psychology and his master's in education from San Francisco State College.

"We do a lot of role playing, drama, high interest reading and practical maths," he said, "everything to develop personal awareness."

The average stay at the hospital for child patients is around a year, said Mizelle. Statistically one third are 12 and younger the remainder 13 to 16.

"They're labeled emotionally handicapped, but they're very adequate kids," said Mizelle. "The adolescent satellite home is called The Rising Sun. That name was given by one of patients, a 16-year-old girl who was on heroin."

Joint Use Plan Faces Opposition

From 3,200 to 3,500 signatures were obtained Saturday in Novato on petitions opposing commercial use of Hamilton Air Force Base, it was reported today.

The petitions will be presented to the Novato City Council at a special public hearing on joint use of the base at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House.

The North Marin Federation of Homeowner and Improvement Associations and Marin Alert gathered the signatures, according to Joseph Seminario, president of Marin Alert.

Evelyn Johnson of the Homeowners Association and Seminario today are tabulating the number of signatures gathered in a house-to-house canvas of the area and at the supermarkets around the city. A complete tabulation of the number of signatures will not be completed until just prior to the public hearing tonight, he said.

The joint use of the base will also be discussed by the Marin County Aviation Commission at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center.

Phone Survey Repudiated, Then Claimed Legitimate

A Marin telephone survey that has been repudiated by Hamm's brewery officials as not being conducted by them has been claimed by an Oakland woman who reported today that she is conducting the survey for Guidelines, Inc., a New York marketing research firm.

Mary L. Clausen, who has an office at 5215 Shattuck Avenue, Oakland, told the Independent Journal today that she has been conducting the phone survey in Marin for the past week, she is doing it for Guidelines but has no idea of the identity of their client nor the purpose.

She said she has hired 10 Marin women to phone residents at random and elicit their views on beverage preference and beer container preference. Hamms is mentioned frequently by consumers, she said, because of its new container but is not mentioned first by the callers.

Names and addresses are elicited to verify phone numbers obtained in the local phone directory, she said.

The survey has drawn attention since a Mill Valley woman told police her house was burglarized two days after she received such a call. Subsequent reports were received by San Anselmo and Larkspur police from women who said they became suspicious when their names and addresses were asked.

Attack Reported

A gang of youths confronted him on Bay Hills Drive in San Rafael at 11 p.m. Saturday, stuck a pen knife in his stomach and stole his sleeping bag, Scott Hamilton Yates, of 19 Marcos Place, San Rafael, told police yesterday.

Stock Fuss Is Back In Court Tomorrow

Stapower will seek in Marin Superior Court a preliminary injunction stopping Gay from selling his Stapower stock to a third party until the matter is settled in court.

When Gay left Patrick's firm, he still owned stock in Stapower, and a contract was drawn up in which the company agreed to buy the stock for $265,615 in installment payments.

In the meantime, Stapower executives have accused Gay of damaging the value of the stock by making derogatory remarks about the firm. They want the contract rescinded, plus $1 million in damages.

Gay charges, however, that Stapower has not lived up to the terms of the bargain and has missed three payments of $11,067 each this year. He wants more than $31 million damages plus the money still owing on the stock.

Woodacre Bike Rider Injured

A 10-year-old Woodacre boy was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with a broken leg suffered when he and his brother were struck by an auto while riding their bicycles in Woodacre.

The California Highway Patrol said Geoffrey McNew of 212 Railroad Avenue was injured about 10:05 p.m. Friday when he went through a stop sign onto Central Avenue and was struck by an eastbound car driven by Peter H. Berton, 24, of Woodacre. His brother, Kevin, 8, also struck by the car, suffered minor injuries but was not hospitalized.

School Budget Changes Eyed

The Novato Unified School District board will determine if it can change its $10,800,214 publication budget, to provide raises for teachers, at 8 p.m. today at Novato High School's lecture hall.

The budget carries no provision for raises, and teachers have suggested cuts in sports to free the money for raises.

Air Base Joint Use Study Ready; Hearing Slated For Wednesday

The Marin County Planning Department has concluded that limited joint military-civilian use of Hamilton Air Force Base would not increase the level of noise, and that the city of Novato should have a voice in all planning of such use.

The study, requested by the county board of supervisors, will be considered Wednesday during a special meeting of the county aviation commission. The meeting is slated for 8 p.m. in Room 332 of the Civic Center administration building.

While concluding that the noise level would not increase significantly, the study does not attempt to answer other environmental questions posed by joint use of the base.

It recommends consultants be hired to delve into matters of air and water pollution, geology, wildlife preservation, economic impact and health and safety.

The county report notes that a recent regional airport study commissioned by the Association of Bay Area Governments concludes that Hamilton could handle more than the 20 civilian flights a day being proposed with only "marginal noise impact."

"We estimate that the 20 flights a day would slightly stimulate the pace of growth at established industrial and commercial areas near Hamilton — not an undesirable effect," the report continues.

"Increases in service and/or new access roads would have a greater economic effect, which would generally be desirable and compatible with present plans. . ."

Joint use of Hamilton has been opposed by some county residents —primarily in Novato who claim their opposition is based on environmental concerns.

The report says traffic to the field would increase by about 4,000 car trips per day over existing roads. "If the Air Force can handle this additional traffic, the existing road system appears adequate for the proposed joint use."

The regional study, the county report continues, "forecasts a demand of 2.5 million civilian passengers at Hamilton in 1985 from Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties for only California destinations.

"Additional demand would likely come from the Richmond area of Contra Costa County and even from the northern edge of San Francisco."

The report adds that if supporting facilities grow to meet the demand of 2.5 million passengers, they should be tightly controlled by local government agencies.

"Our studies to date have clearly indicated that land use, traffic and environmental impact of the joint use will primarily affect the City of Novato," the report said.

"We, therefore, recommend that the city be included in all further planning for and eventual operation of joint use. An appropriate instrument would be a joint powers agreement between the city and the county."

Hike In Meter Rates On Agenda

The Mill Valley City Council will consider for the second time a proposal to increase parking meter charges from a nickel to a dime per hour at its meeting at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The first time the council reviewed the proposal, the matter was referred to the city manager to prepare a comparison of other parking charges throughout Marin County.

Among other items on the council's lengthy agenda will be the second reading of an ordinance which would require beverage merchants to post a sign in their stores encouraging their customers to buy returnable bottles and a public hearing on a proposal to close off the fire trails on the northridge to automobiles by installing gates.

SHAKESPEAREAN EXPERT

Festival Is Very Fortunate

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

When, after seeing Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" six times, a 7-year-old girl says, "Mommy, when can we go again?" you know something unusual is happening in her home life.

The question was asked this summer by Shoshana Colman, whose mother, Dr. Libby Lee Colman of Sausalito, is an authority on Shakespeare.

Mrs. Colman — in private life the wife of Dr. Arthur D. Colman, a psychiatrist, and mother of two other children, Johan, 3, and Ari, 19 months — holds a doctorate in history of drama from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

The Marin Shakespeare Festival was fortunate when she agreed to coordinate and participate in a series of lectures in connection with the festival's current productions of "Twelfth Night" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Dr. Colman has already given one lecture and will give another on Aug. 28 on "The Arc of Our Emotions: Factors Contributing to Audience Response in Shakespeare."

Tonight Dr. Robert Raines will speak on "The Art of Acting: Perspective perspective on the Marin Shakespeare Festival Production of 'Twelfth Night.' " All lectures are given at 8:30 p.m. in the Forest Meadows theater, San Rafael.

DR. ARTHUR D. COLMAN, a psychiatrist, and his wife, Dr. Libby Lee Colman, who is an authority on Shakespeare, write books together. Mrs. Colman is coordinating and participating in a series of lectures in connection with the Marin Shakespeare Festival productions of "Romeo and Juliet" and "Twelfth Night."

WHILE SHOSHANA quietly drew pictures and contributed her own comments occasionally, Dr. Colman, a native of Woodstock, N.Y., explained her background and how she became especially interested in Shakespeare.

"I received my B.A. in English and psychology from Wellesley and took education courses at Smith College and journalism at Syracuse University," she said. "I taught English and journalism and directed school plays in high school in Boyesville before I met my husband, and we came to Sausalito in 1963.

"I'm something of a book worm and decided to go on and get my M.A. in English and American literature at San Francisco State College.

"I also taught freshman compostion at the college at this time and was program director for the Jewish Community Center in San Rafael one summer in 1964.

"A month before taking my final exams, Shoshana was born, and I continued teaching part time afterward for one winter."

DR. COLMAN recalled that, though she had been a member of the Shakespeare Society and acted in plays at Wellesley, her special interest in Shakespeare began at San Francisco State.

"I had to write a term paper on verbal music in Shakespeare, and I became so enthralled and had so much research to do for the paper that I thought I might as well go on for a doctorate."

Then the family moved to Washington, D.C., while her husband was in military service at Walter Reed Hospital. During that time she studied at the Folger Shakespeare Library, which has such large collection of first folios that people come there from England to study.

On completion of her husband's military service, she said, they decided to take a year off and go to Israel before settling down to ever-narrowing professional commitments in this country.

While he was busy at a government hospital in the Judean hills, Mrs. Colman continued her Shakespeare studies at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem under a fellowship grant for a year and wrote her doctoral dissertation there.

Both Jewish, the Colmans learned Hebrew, and this became the first language of their son Johan, who was born after they returned to this country and she completed work on her doctorate at George Washington University.

DR. COLMAN has definite convictions about how Shakespeare should be taught. "It should always be in conjunction with performances," she emphasized. "I give lectures on the evening of performances so that the audience can have about a half hour break before the play begins. It's good to have a discussion with the actors afterward, but by that time most of the people are too tired."

At any rate, she says, "the play should always be read before seeing it. There are always discrepancies between what you think the play is going to be and the actual production. These discrepancies can be explained afterward, and you begin to realize that there are many more possibilities than you thought in how a play can be produced."

Dr. Colman is especially interested in the verbal music in Shakespeare's language. "It has symphonic qualities," she pointedout. "You can actually see opera being born in his plays and music being inteorated with drama."

When the Colmans were expecting their third child, Ari, they decided to write a book together on "Pregnancy: the Psychological Experience."

THEY FEEL that both parents must be aware of the profound significance of having a child and that it really begins at conception, not after they come from the hospital. They are now working on another book which is a developmental study of love and what one needs in order to love another person.

Last year Libby Colman taught psychology at the recently founded new college of Sausalito, and she will teach one course on the history of drama there this fall.

She admits that her home and family come first and says that writing and teaching in college, with its more flexible hours than high school, make the best combination of career and marriage.

"I didn't plan to have a career," she said. "It happened gradually. I had had the experience of being taken seriously as a professional, and my husband took me seriously as a professional. I have chosen things which I can control so that I can choose when to devote my attention to my work. My children know they are number one, and their needs are less intense," she said.

CHILD CARE

Centers Not The Question In Some Areas Of World

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

In many countries around the world, child care centers are as much an accepted part of every day life as the corner grocery store.

A Monitor survey of seven countries — the Soviet Union, Sweden, China, Israel, France, Britain, and Japan —finds that the question is not, like that in the United States, whether or not there should be a widespread public system of child care, but how to get more facilities quickly and how to improve standards.

Not only is there a shortage of places for children of mothers who must work in most of these countries, but the demand is ballooning as more and more women choose to hold jobs regardless of whether they need the income.

In China, child care is an absolute necessity since almost all women of working age hold full-time jobs. The majority of children are cared for right in the factory where their mothers work. There are no statistics available, but it is believed that in urban regions, most people with children have access to child-care facilities if they need them.

The Soviet Union, too, has an effective, widely developed system of child care which is heavily subsidized by the government. Some 9.4 million children of preschool age, or about 30 per cent of the total, now attend nurseries and kindergartens.

In some cities, including Moscow, the demand for day-care facilities is reportedly met, but in many other areas there are waiting lists. There were more than one million applications that could not be filled at the end of 1971. To meet the growing need the state plans to provide space for another two million by 1975. It is also building preschool centers in all new residential neighborhoods, right along with schools and shops.

EVEN IN Sweden, where day care has been an integral part of the social welfare state for many years, only 40,000 children are accommodated in day-care facilities — less than half of those who are waiting in line to get in. Another 90,000 children from four to seven years old are in nursery schools which accept them for three hours on weekdays.

In Israel two-thirds of all mothers who work outside their homes send their children to day care. All children in Kibbutzim (communal settlements) and 71 per cent in development towns are cared for collectively. However, children in kibbutzim live together permanently in a total communal environment.

In the big Israeli cities, about one-third of children under three years of age attend centers.

In Japan, places for 1.2 million children are not enough to free the number of women needed to take jobs to satisfy the demand in this labor-short country.

IN BRITAIN and France, day care is still taking its first baby steps in terms of numbers. The cry of mothers is, "We want more facilities."

With the exception of China and the Soviet Union, where day care is available to everyone, most of the countries surveyed give priority to children from low-income families where both parents must work, children from single-parent homes, and those children who come from families with personal problems.

In most countries parents pay fees based on their ability to pay.

Child care, in most of the countries investigated, is subsidized by the government. In China, most of the centers have been organized by factories, neighborhood Street Revolutionary Committees, and other industrial organizations.

Jonathan Unger reports that at one large factory he visited in Canton, three-fourths of the 3,000 employees were female. Five hundred of their children aged 1½ to 7 were enrolled in the factory's nursery school. The older children, he was told, were being cared for at home by grandparents.

In China, about 54 days after a child is born, the mother returns to her job, her maternity leave having run out. Her new baby is placed in a nursery ward not far from the factory floor. Several times a day the new mothers take time off from the job to breast-feed and play with their infants. At 18 months the tot joins the regular factory nursery school and at age 7 he enters primary school.

Nursery hours inChinan as in most other countries that have day care, are geared to the parent's work schedules.

It is the urban families that do not have any grandparents available who make use of the wide network of child-care centers in the cities of China.

In Chinese child-care centers, extraordinary emphasis is placed on developing Maoist attitudes toward work. The tots are told stories about devoted little children workers and about adult worker-heroes. They sing songs about the joys of selfless labor for the common good and they are taught simple work tasks.

Similarly, in the Soviet Union, day care prepares children to take their place in a collectivist society by inculcating them with a "communist morality" that focuses on the needs of the group rather than on the individual. An effort is made to instill a love of Lenin and country, a sense of collective mindedness, truthfulness, obedience, and self-discipline.

DR. JOAN Bergstrom, an American expert on child care on the staff of Wheelock College in Boston, who has visited and made a study of both Russian and Swedish day care, said of the Soviet Union: "There seemed to me to be no mention of designing the programs to capitalize upon the children's interests. They were not open-ended and there seemed to be few materials for experimentation."

Dr. Bergstrom describes what it is like to be in a Russian child-care center:

"I was impressed with the generally high level of maintenance evident throughout the buildings. Many of the rooms were bright and cheerful. Many contained plants, living creatures, bookshelves, and shelves displaying wooden animals, dolls, flat and round wooden toys in bright colors, scissors, fine-tipped paint brushes, and stuffed animals. Materials available depended upon the age group of the children. On the whole the wooden toys were designed and painted in the traditional folk art style and many of them were used in aesthetic education."

Although the overall trend is toward more and better child-care centers, some Soviet experts, like other experts around the world, now are saying that parental care of infants is preferable. They advocate that working mothers stay home until their babies are 2 and 3 and be paid, say, 50 per cent of their regular wages during this time.

There are also some who, out of concern for the nation's declining birth rate, favor paying mothers to stay home in order to encourage them to have larger families.

It is unlikely that Soviet women, who now hold more than half of all jobs, can be persuaded to tie themselves down with more babies, however.

THE DEMAND for day care in Sweden is intense, and it is not cheap.

The amount parents pay varies according to their income and to the number of children they have in day nurseries. It runs from about 20 cents a day to about $7.

Dr. Bergstrom reports that

Proper Care's Important For The Swimsuit

Chlorinated swimming pools and the salty sea may be suitable for swimmers, but highly unsuitable for suits. Care needs to be taken of any swimsuit to assure brightness, fit and freedom from mildew.

For daily swimmers, washing the suit isn't necessary after each wearing, but proper rinsing after use is imperative, regardless of color or fabric, according to Virginia White, laundry experts for a laundry products manufacturer.

Sweaters, Hats Due Back In Fall

Plaids are in for both men and women. Dresses are important. The chemise is updated and the layered look adds versatility.

Phosphate Gum

A new phosphate chewing gum that helps prevent tooth cavities is being tested on several hundred willing children in Florida. The National Institute of Dental Research is making the tests. Earlier results on animals showed success.

Sweeping The Country

What is the most talked-about fragrance fashion sweeping the country? Unquestionably, it is musk oil. Like so many other beauty and fashion trends, the craze for Musk started with today's vibrant, attractive youth, and is quickly captivating women of every age with its intoxicating exotic, mysterious appeal.

Sometimes Those Physical Encounters Can Turn Into Emotional Time Bombs

DEAR HELEN:

Why is "infidelity" in marriage always lined with sex?

There's a difference between infidelity and adultery: a man (or woman) can be untrue to a spouse in many more, perhaps worse, ways than sexually.

For example, there's the "faithful" wife who never once refused her husband, but never once understood him either. And how about the man who enjoys the marriage bed but shares no other part of his life with his so-called mate? Selfishness, belittling, ignoring, obvious boredom, lack of sympathy — these rob a marriage of its joy, thus they're a form of "cheating."

Supposedly "true" people commit mental infidelity each day, and this kind hurts the most.

My husband and I are both career persons and are away from home often. When we are separated, I don't expect him to withstand all physical temptations. But so long as they are mere encounters, who cares? I don't quiz him. He doesn't question me. Possible extra-curricular sex leaves us unworried because we have the complete marriage: we are best friends as well as lovers, communicate as equals, have the freedom of trust (where it really matters) and therefore don't bother with jealousy.

What I mean is a little adultery doesn't need to break up a marriage, if it's a cool sampling of something different. But infidelity — with or without sex — can end it because that means shattered faith. — MODERN CAREER WIFE

DEAR MODERN:

True, "cheating" takes many forms, some much less forgivable than sex.

But... what begins as your cool, modern fun-and-games adultery oftentimes becomes faith-shattering infidelity. Are you two sure you can turn off the "passing physical encounters" before they go mental? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The trouble with traditional marriage is that a mate must be all things to his or her spouse, and one person isn't usually capable of "all things." Some women are good at housekeeping, others at seduction; there are wives who help their husbands in business, can talk to them "man to man," but can't entertain, and are failures with children. Likewise, the man who is best at romance may not be the greatest provider; he could like children but he might fail at managing them.

Seems to me the logical solution is group marriage, or anyway commune living where each person provides one skill and they all combine to make life ideal. — DREAMER

DEAR DREAMER:

Dream on, friend, but in real life, communes or group marriages seldom last long, possibly because participants get typed as "good" housekeepers, child rearers, providers, sexpots, lovers, etc., and only the last two named don't tire of the casting. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Speaking of unwed mothers, did you hear about the girl who worked as housekeeper for a wealthy childless couple? One day she confessed to her employers that she must resign as she was pregnant. They agreed to adopt the child and let her stay on. A year later, same story, and still later they adopted her third baby, also illegitimate.

Shortly afterward, she again handed in her resignation.

"In trouble again?" they asked.

"No," she complained. "It's just that I'm sick and tired of having to care for such a large family!" — H.R.C.

Vows Said In Chapel At College

An Excellent Guide For Consumer

WASHINGTON — The state of North Dakota has a service that few other states has: a shopping guide to the ingredients in various food and beverage products.

It's not a best seller, even in North Dakota. And its title does not tell much about its contents. Its called simply "Bulletin No. 168." Publisher is the State Laboratories Commission in Bismarck.

Inside, however, is a shopper's delight, including some well kept secrets about what lies inside such products as butter, ice cream, oleo-margarine, breakfast cereals, hamburger, snack foods, fruit juice concentrates, imitation fruit drinks and even water and beer.

NET CONTENTS are also measured and compared to amounts stated on labels. Most states make sure comparisons to see if labels are truthful. But few states go as far as North Dakota in analysing and publishing data not listed on labels and packages.

Most breakfast cereals now list their ingredients in detail as to vitamins, minerals and protein. This bulletin provides a handy listing of most national brands, with detailed content analyses for each.

Among the cereals tested, Kellogg's Special K has the most protein, with 20.1 per cent. Next come Quaker Instant Oatmeal, with 16.0 per cent; Roman Meal, 15.8 Nabisco 100 per cent Bran, 13.2 and Post Grape Nuts, with 11.5 per cent.

Next come Post 40 per cent Bran Flakes, with 11.3 per cent protein; Kellogg's Krumbles, 11.0; Buc Wheats (General Mills), 10.2; Nabisco's Cream of Wheat, 10.1; General Mills' Wheaties and Kellogg's Product 19, both 8.9 per cent.

The cereals listed with the smallest protein percentages are Post Toasties, 7.6 per cent; Country Corn Flakes (General Mills), 7.0 per cent; Count Chocula (General Mills), 6.2 per cent; Quaker Puffed Rice, 6.0 per cent and Cream of Rice, 5.7 per cent.

SNACK FOODS are analysed for proportions of moisture, fat, protein, fiber, ash and salt. The ones with the most protein are Sunshine Cheez-it Crackers, with 13.7 per cent, and Bacon Flavored Thins from Nabisco, with 10.2.

Potato chips generally show less protein and more fat. Cheese snacks average about one-quarter fat, while chips average about one-third fat.

Imitation fruit juice beverages range from about 7 to 15 per cent natural fruit juice. No juice at all is listed for Birds Eye's Awake and Hawaiian Punch from RJR Foods Inc.

The list shows Hi-C from Coca-Cola Co. with 9.9 per cent fruit juice and Del Monte Orange Drink with 9.4 per cent.

Various brands of beer are also analysed for alcohol content. The results show a range from 3.6 per cent(for Black Label) to 5.5 per cent (for Miller's High Life).

Other well known brands and their alcohol percentages are:

Pale Export Olympia Beer, 4.3 per cent; Hamm's Beer, 4.5 per cent; Schlitz, 4.6 per cent; Pabst Blue Ribbon, 4.7 per cent and both Budweiser Lager and Hamm's Preferred Stock, with 5.0 per cent.

Bulletin No. 168 is available to out-of-state residents for $1 per copy. It can be obtained from the State Laboratories Commission, Bismarck, N.D.

one Swedish father she spoke to had one child in a pre-school program and another in an after-school group. Both the man and his wife worked and made good salaries. It was much to the couple's advantage to have a housekeeper who could care for the children and the house.

A housekeeper would be cheaper than day care. But, says Dr. Bergstrom, "This father was convinced that his children should be in a group situation and he said he was willing to do the housework and to help his wife on Saturdays so that they could do without the housekeeper and keep his children in day care."

However, there is deep soul-searching in Sweden about how to improve day care. Every aspect is being scrutinized.

Swedish child-care centers aim to be an extension of the home where children are encouraged to develop their individual personalities as well as a place to learn how to get along with others.

In contrast to the Soviet system, preschoolers in Sweden are urged to make their own discoveries "with as little direct guidance as possible."

Children are accepted into child care at the age of six months and can stay there through their sixth year. Primary school starts9at age 7.

Nursery schools which care for children for three hours a day take children from 3 to 6 years old.

Two-Piece Dress Is The Big News

The big news of the Yves St. Laurent Rive Gauche collection shown in New York last week was the two-piece dress, featuring a softer silhouette.

Pleated or flared skirts are combined with softly bloused tops. For wear in the day or evening, St. Laurent selected cotton voile, crepe de chine and silk shantung for the resort collection. The newest fabric is cotton voile as soft as chiffon, printed with large, muted floral designs.

ERICA ROAD BEAUTIFICATION

By PAT PERRY

Why does a long established town like Corte Madera suddenly need a town meeting?

Because in Corte Madera there is intense citizen interest and involvement in civic affairs. Most town council and planning commission meetings attract large audiences, and never a one goes by without someone standing up and having his say.

There's been a recall movement against the mayor this year, there have been demonstrations and angry words over the controversial Madera del Presidio high-density development near the Koch Luggage plant, and an emergency building moratorium.

More than 100 people attended a residents' roundtable just to plan a town meeting, and it's expected that many hundreds of Corte Maderans will go to the meeting itself, set for Sept. 30 at Redwood High.

"Before we came to Corte Madera I hadn't been interested in local government. But here it involves my own backyard. It's on such a level that my voice makes a difference.

"At my first election here there was a one vote difference, so I know for sure what I vote counts. And it's good to have a government you can go and say hello to on the street. To know that you aren't simply an IBM card."

Mrs. Carlson is on the open space study group for the town meeting, one of four groups researching and developing facts sheets for the all day event. Other subjects for the morning forums include updating the general plan, city services, and improving communications between citizens and government.

Betty Pierce, chairman of the meeting, has lived in Corte Madera for 21 years, and is entirely optimistic about the meeting's potential.

"It will give citizens the opportunity to say what they would like the future of the town to be. Particularly because of the general plan revision people are more apt now, this year, to be interested than a year ago or perhaps next year."

She considers the meeting will be constructive. "You see when someone goes to the town council or the planning commission they usually go to oppose something. Here they can state the positive things they want to see," she said.

The format of the town meeting, to be moderated by Peter Belden, teacher of psychology at Tamalpais High School, will be a morning session at which participants will split up into one of the four subject groups.

After lunch the entire conference will meet to hear reports from the groups. Then they'll make up a list of priorities and make specific recommendations for local government agencies.

When the possibility of a town meeting was first mooted town councilmen were lukewarm to the idea, but their attitudes visibly changed when it became apparent the event was intended to be constructive. Officials, including Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville attended the planning meeting.

"If nothing else the town meeting will serve to educate its citizens," predicted Patricia Rodriguez.

Already the researchers are uncovering surprising areas of ignorance. For instance, many long-time residents of west Corte Madera had no idea that the town east of Highway 101 (which includes 50 per cent of the population) had no park at all.

Similarly it had not occurred to them that it was difficult for east side children to get to the town park by bicycle.

"Corte Madera is sort of at the crossroads," said Donald Adams, "a lot of other towns have lost their chance, but it's not too late for us."

GI Homecoming Dispels Myth Of His Body In Mangrove Swamp

HOUSTON (UPI)—Phillip J. Manning came home this weekend and proved that the skeletal remains found in the bayou near his home last year weren't his.

He was missing for 13 months and police have believed he was dead for 12.

Manning joined the Army June 26 and was soon due for promotion to corporal, he said. He will be 15 on Aug. 31.

During the 13 months Manning motorcycled through 48 states, saw the flood disaster in Rapid City, S.D., and served a short term in the Army. He was considered dead all that time by his family and police.

"I should have listened to my father when he told me it would be rough when I got out into the world," he said after his arrival from Fort Polk, La.

Manning said he plans to go to school both days and evenings until he finishes, then he wants to join the Army again.

He had a lot of trouble getting out of the service. His mother had to go to Fort Polk with Manning's birth certificate, his school records and sign a notarized affadavit that he had lived with the family.

He was released from the service Friday and collected an Army check for more than $300.

Manning joined the Army using a birth certificate under the name of Michael E. Blassingame. He and a friend enlisted at the same time after they had toured the country on motorcycles and had nothing else left to do, he said.

Last week, Manning was one of a busload of soldiers that stopped in Ragley, La., on the way back from Fort Polk. Manning saw a cousin in the bus station.

Jimmy Hollingsworth, the cousin who works at the station, said, "a boy got off the bus—he had Blassingame on his uniform—and asked how Grandma Dunn and Pam (another cousin) were doing."

Hollingsworth didn't recognize Manning, whom he hadn't seen in three years. Later, after he had thought about the incident, he called Mrs. James Dunn of De Quincy, La. and asked if she had a grandson named Blassingame.

She said she didn't but said the description sounded like Manning. She called Manning's parents and Manning's mother called police who in turn called Fort Polk.

They traced Manning and his mother drove to Fort Polk last Wednesday and identified him. The army questioned him and he and his mother were reunited.

"We just ran and grabbed each other," she said. "It was the most wonderful feeling I've ever had in my life. It was so grand to have him back."

Manning's father, Bobby J. Manning, was convinced his son was still alive, Mrs. Manning said, but she wasn't so optimistic until last week.

"I thought it (the skeleton) was him, I really did," she said. "But my husband didn't think so at all — he said he was off bumming around somewhere."

Three Hurt In Fire At Old Hotel

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—When the fire alarm bell clanged in the dead of night at the Barclay Hotel most of the fire-conscious residents were awakened and made their way to the street in quick but orderly style.

The alarm was sounded at 2:05 a.m. today and the hotel was quickly emptied of its approximate 120 tenants, a fire department spokesman said.

It was a general alarm blaze but was confined to the sixth floor. No injuries to residents were reported. Three firemen suffered minor injuries.

The 77-year-old hotel in the downtown area was hit by fire last March. Three persons died and seven were hurt in that fire.

This morning, one tenant, 91-year-old John McCracken was led to safety by a fireman.

"Someone woke me earlier," he said, "but they didn't say anything about a fire."

In addition to sounding the alarm bell, hotel employes telephoned residents and also knocked on doors.

George Schultze, 78, was awake, reading in his room, and suddenly became aware of the noise of fire engines on the street.

"When I saw the ladders go up, I walked out," said Schultze. "I've lived through an earthquake and two fires here. I guess things just happen to me."

A Tax Hike Regardless The Victor

But, overall, he predicted, "1973 will be a good year" economically.

"There will be a tax increase whoever wins in November. It can't be avoided," said Samuelson, head of the economics department at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in an interview with the Sunday Herald Traveler and Sunday Advertiser.

"There will always be trouble with the economy. Things usually get rough a year or two after a recovery period but there is reason to believe that 1973 will be a good year and that whoever is elected will keep going right to the end of 1973."

Samuelson, an economic adviser in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, said tax loopholes will be a main issue in the election campaign.

"The working man doesn't like to see the rich getting tax shelters, such as trusts, citrus groves, beef cattle, and investment tax credits," said Samuelson.

As for the economy in general and Nixon's policies, Samuelson said, "Without question, he has stolen the thunder from his critics."

Clark Asks 'Truth' In Bombing Of Dikes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark urged the U.S. government in a magazine article published Sunday "to demonstrate the truth of its answer" to charges that it is deliberately bombing dikes in North Vietnam.

Clark said in a Life magazine article that he met Aug. 11 with North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong and Dong accused the United States of waging "a war of genocide" in Vietnam and deliberately bombing the dikes.

"I believe in our basic goodness," Clark said. "We will not tolerate this if it is true. I believe our government has the highest duty to demonstrate the truth of its answer to this charge.

The United States has denied that it has intentionally bombed the dikes.

Clark said he viewed bomb damage to five villages, five cities, six dikes, two sluices, six schools, four hospitals and four churches in the six northern provinces, which have not been as hard hit as the southern part of the country.

He described damage to one section of the dike system in the Red River Delta, which is vital to the North Vietnamese to retain water for rice in the dry season and to protect crops and people from inundation by seawater.

"The Lan Sluice is a key water-control facility servicing 48,000 acres of land, according to the minister of water conservancy, and some 600,000 people live in the area affected by its operation," Clark said.

"When I saw it on Aug. 3, it was ringed by bomb craters on the dry-land sides. The concrete was heavily pocked. The superstructure and its steel frames, engine houses, lifts and cables were demolished," he said. "No repairs were under way."

Princess Marries American Student

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A 21-year- old princess of Thailand married an American engineering student during the weekend, saying she was not giving up much in abandoning her royal status.

The daughter of King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit of Thailand, known to fellow students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as Julie Mahidol, married Peter L. Jensen, 21, at All Souls Episcopal Church in a 12-minute service.

TURN THAT CHILD INTO A TOAD!

Slithering and sliding, swooping and snarling, the Wicked Witch in The Wizard of Oz casts a spell of terror over every child who sees the current Marin Shakespeare Festival play. Connie Kennedy of San Diego has brought a new dimension to the witch's role, playing her with feline menace. Her dramatic entrances, complete with flashes of fire and smoke, send shudders up small spines. The musical has been so successful that it's been extended for four additional shows, with afternoon and evening performances set for Aug. 28 and 29 at 2:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Miss Forrester Gives An Exciting Marin Recital

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Canadian contralto Maureen Forrester enchanted an audience of some 900 people yesterday afternoon at the Veterans Memorial Building in the closing concert of the Marin Music Chest summer series.

Her program, which ranged from art songs of the utmost refinement and sophistication to lullabyes and spirituals, marked her debut as a song recitalist in the Bay Area — a notable achievement for te music chest, for this singer is world renowned for her honey-mellow voice and consummate artistry in communicating both dramatic and infinitely delicate shades of meaning.

She has a powerful voice, evenly developed through a wide register — especially thrilling in its lowest range, and she produces it with great freedom and agility, yet controls it smoothly.

A large woman, she has a majestic stage presence, but still manages successfully a folksy charm in songs in which that manner is appropriate. I particularly admired her mastery of the art of gesture and movement, a difficult accomplishment in the static situation of a song recital. Her gestures were not only graceful but suggested to just the right degree the mood of the songs and meaning of the lyrics.

Her opening number, the aria "Ariande Auf Naxos" by Haydn was operatic and her most dramatic selection. This and the following group of 10 Italian poems translated into German and set to music by Hugo Wolf, were sung in polished German. The Wolf lied were a special joy because the words are so perfectly matched to and integrated with the music, and Miss Forrester's ability to vary tonal color achieved a full realization of the changing moods, from terror to playful flippancy.

Very much the same characteristics were revealed in the five "Melodies Passageres," five French poems of Ranier Maria Rilke set to music by Samuel Barber and sung in French.

In a group of four lullabyes by Britten, sung in English, the contralto spun the finest silken pianissimos and contrasted these with the dynamic witch's "Charm" lullabye frov Humperdinck's opera "Hansel and Gretel," a great success because of her flair for comedy.

Miss Forrester closed her program with two delightful French folk songs arranged by Britten and two spirituals from the noted American Negro Roland Hayes "Songs of My People."

As an encore dedicated to the children present Miss Forrester sang an hilarious little song based on an essay by an 8-year-old boy.

Her accompanist was an excellent young pianist from Los Angeles, Martin Katz, who was notable for his ability to adapt his dynamic levels to the singer's powerful voice.

At intermission Marin Music Chest president Mrs. John A. Lesoine introduced four recent $200 scholarship winners, naming the particular scholarships they received. They were cellist Jerry LeClerc, a Caroline Livermore scholarship; pianist Paul Denegri, the Peter Palmer scholarship; violinist Dan Smiley, the Carlos Freitas scholarship, and trumpeter Robert Elkjer, a Caroline Livermore scholarship.

Two girls unable to be present because of performance engagements were Soprano Clairellen Waldeck, the Marin Music Chest Maude Fay Symington Memorial Scholarship and flautisl Laurel Elkjer, the Florence Archibald Memorial scholarship.

A Polished Concert On The Harpsichord

By WILLIAM CLARK

The unusual program, the last presentation of the Inverness Music Festival for 1972, was an illuminating cross-section of musical currents in the last quarter of the 18th Century.

A gem of an early Mozart sonata and the wit and gaiety of a mature Haydn fantasia set off the intensely idiomatic keyboard writing of Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach, the studied polish of his brother Johann Christian Bach, and the introspection and searching of the third son of Johann Sebastian, Wilhelm Friedemann Bach.

Miss Fabrizio, looking the picture of fragile sensitivity, played with a clean and agile technique, effective registrations, warmth, lyricism, and a very great deal of flexibility. There is no doubt of her ability to communicate to an intimate audience in a very personal way.

She was at her best when rapid tempos thwarted a tendency to overuse agogic accents, and her performance of the Haydn was stunning.

A warm and gemutlich slow movement was achieved in the Mozart, and the first movement of the C.P.E. Bach sonata was dashing, almost bravura.

The connection of W. F. Bach's four polonaises with any dance form was, however, not apparent. The moderate and slow movements, while exhibiting sensitive and musical playing, were sometimes marred by a variable pulse which made the continuity of the musical line difficult to follow. Often the relationship of even consecutive phrases was less than clear.

It is perhaps noteworthy that Miss Fabrizio's harpsichord reinforced the period qualities of the evening with its restrained gold trim and delicate roccoco painted figures covering the soundboard.

This event maintained the high standards and thoughtful programming of the Inverness Music Festival, an organization which makes a real contribution to the vitality of Marin music making.

COUNTY FAIR JURY

'Nice' Out; Tougher Art Wins

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Yesterday, as on probably any other day, the National Guard Armory in San Rafael seemed grim. It had the hollow sound of metal doors and backless benches scraping on cement. Nothing softened the dead white walls or the relentless olive drab scattered around the room on truck parts, lockers and machine guns.

Hard, wire-covered ceiling lights glared down at nothing in particular and only indifferently included the lonely, dingy easel standing in the middle of the floor.

Three chairs faced the easel and in them Ralph DuCasse, Mills College Art Department chairman; William Elsner, curator of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, and Hayward King, Bolles Gallery curator, sat silently jurying fine arts for the upcoming Marin County Fair.

They voted by machine with the majority ruling, each occasionally pressing his green electric button for "accept" and more often, the red one for "reject." And they were usually in accord.

Paintings and graphics particularly, had to stand on their own to make it here. No flattering surroundings, familiarity or good lighting bolstered their merits. Nor was there friendly persuasion among the jurors to save them from rejection, indignity and oblivion behind the metal lockers.

The jury was quick and decisive. In fact, to have a painting brought in and placed on the easel, viewed and judged took little more than 15 seconds. And the toll was heavy. Of the 403 paintings and graphics submitted for its approval, the jury selected only 59. Only 7 of 29 sculptures were accepted.

As with every art competition, there were entries of every sort, style, purpose and pretense. But with respectable prize money and with residency requirements expanded this year to include artists throughout the state, the competition was more intense.

The jury ran through work that would have been accepted and hung in smaller, less significant local shows and discarded most of it. "Nice" things just weren't good enough. Instead, they went for the tougher, crisper, leaner works which declared their importance at a glance. And that could mean bright, big-billed jungle birds, or a contoured canvas with teepee stands of color, or a huge mandala, just as long as when you saw it you were impressed that it was there.

Of all the entries, the judges were particularly pleased with the graphics which they termed "excellent." As for the show overall, Fair officials hope one juror's parting words will tumble from the lips of all Marin County Fair visitors when the show is finally hung. He said, "You can be very proud."

A trophy and the $150 best-in-show award for fine art in the 1972 Marin County Fair was awarded to the painting "Five" by Ralph Hilton of San Francisco. Other $100 merit awards announced by Jean Fitzgerald, chairman of the fine arts division, went to Phyllis Thelan, San Rafael; Charlotte Workman Stevenson, San Rafael; Elizabeth Sher, Fairfax; Wesley Chamberlin, Mill Valley, and Tony Costanzo, Santa Rosa.

Honorable mentions were awarded to Fred Herschleb and Sydney Herschleb of Kentfield; Elisa Maria Leptich, San Francisco; Felice Shatz, San Rafael; and Edith B. Geever, Oakland.

The County Fair fine arts exhibit will be held in the Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center fairgrounds, Aug. 31 through Sept. 4.

Critics Rate Britten's Work Best

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seventy-six music critics and publishers who responded to a questionnaire have named Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem" as the most significant composition of the past 25 years.

The two works which were runners-up were "St. Luke's Passion" by Krzysztof Penderecki and "Mass" by Leonard Bernstein, composed for the opening of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, which conducted the poll.

It was done to help the center program a music festival called "The Old and the New," which will be held at the center from Aug. 30 through Sept. 10, featuring more than 30 concerts of 17th, 18th and 20th Century compositions.

The results of the survey, in which questionnaires were sent to 500 critics and publishers, were announced by Julius Rudel, the center's music director who devised the program, and Martin Feinstein, executive director of performing arts.

Britten's "War Requiem" will be heard during the festival with Rudel conducting. "St. Luke's Passion" was not scheduled, since the National Symphony will play it during the fall.

Two other works which placed high in the most-significant poll, "Mass" and "Jesus Christ Superstar," were not included since they recently concluded runs at the Kennedy Center.

Igor Stravinsky received the most votes in two categories of the poll: once as the most influential composer, and again as the composer "you predict would be performed 50 years from now." In the latter category, he tied with Aaron Copland.

After Stravinsky, the respondents picked as most influential composer Karlheinz Stockhausen, John Cage and Pierre Boulez. Others the critics predicted would be played 50 years from now included Britten, Serge Prokofiev and Bernstein.

SAN QUENTIN THRONGED

25,000 Visit Art Show

FIRST-COME, FIRST-SERVED — Art patrons Mr. and Mrs. Terry Quinlan, regulars at most of San Quentin's annual arts and crafts shows, were first in line Saturday morning for this year's show outside the prison walls.

From 20,000 to 25,000 visitors flocked to the annual San Quentin arts and craft show in the shadow of the prison wall Saturday and spent $27,300 on inmates' art work.

Saturday morning's leaden skies may have deterred some would-be art patrons, but after the day turned bright and sunny, the crowds thickened.

Two years ago, the show realized $35,000 from 20,000 visitors.

Attendance last September dropped to 6,000 persons, largely because of the previous month's escape attempt in which George Jackson was killed.

Some 1,400 art works in all media were entered in this year's show, down from the 2,000 works displayed in previous years, and for the first time in the show's 19-year history, no prizes were awarded.

According to Gunther E. Schmid, San Quentin's arts and crafts teacher, there were not enough entries in some categories to have judging. Most of the artists submitted oils. No charcoals or drawings were in the show and only 80 watercolors and pastels.

The reason for the dropoff, Schmid said, was that many of San Quentin's inmates had been transferred elsewhere as part of the gradual phasing out of the prison.

What there was was snapped up quickly, most of it sold by noon.

Many of the paintings were seascapes and landscapes done in a naturalistic manner. Seascapes invariably seemed to be dramatic, showing waves breaking with great force on a rocky shore. By contrast, the landscapes tended to depict pastoral scenes of great calm and serenity, with no human figures to mar the peacefulness.

Most artists showed a taste for rich, flamboyant colors. A portrait of Christ was painted in eye-searing day-glo colors over which a glittering substance had been pasted.

Few abstract paintings were in the show, cuddly animals were not evident, and only one portrait of moppets in the wide-eyed Walter Keane manner was entered.

There was an assortment of bullfight scenes, some erotic nudes, and a stallion rearing defiantly on a wind-swept hillside.

A favorite at Saturday's show was an exhibit of framed bas relief copper plates which included a depiction of the last supper, and also what appeared to be a creature showing a bull's head, bloody fangs, and an insect stinger, described by its artist as "monster and a bug."

Also on display were finely crafted walnut boxes, hand-tooled leather purses and wallets, and a table full of lamps made to look like Conestoga wagons with the canopies made of stain.

Tucked away in one corner of the show was a near-photographic likeness of Angela Davis done in pastels. Facing her was a painting of George Jackson, by a different artist. It was done in a flat, expressionless style, like a religious icon.

Smog Fighters To Eye Clean Point Reyes Air

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO AIRPORT — California smog officials, conceding their knowledge about smog is extremely crude despite years of effort to control it, have launched the first detailed study of the tiny particles that are a key component of air pollution.

Even the bracing air at the Point Reyes Light Station will be analyzed for contaminants by scientists using a mobile laboratory fitted with $350,000 in space-age instruments. West Marin was picked for its relatively clean marine air after no comparably clean air could be found in Southern California.

Contrary to a nature lover's expectation that salt particles would be the only air contaminants at such a remote site, more than half of all particles in the air there may be from belts of contaminants spinning around the earth, the officials predicted.

The tiny particles, or aerosols, are "the least understood phenomena of smog," according to Dale H. Hutchinson, research chief for the State Air Resources Board. Finding the source and dangers of these particles will determine future controls on their emission, he told newsmen at a briefing Friday at San Francisco airport.

These controls inevitably will lead to restrictions on land use and to changes in society, cautioned another leader of the study. Consequences of the study's findings someday are "going to hit each and every one of us," said George Hidy of the North American Rockwell Science Center.

The $1.7-million study, started a few weeks ago, is being conducted by the center, ARB and state Public Health Department. Its findings are due before the ARB in October, 1973.

Hutchinson explained that the study also will distinguish between natural and man-made particles. Complicating the picture, he said, is that a substantial portion of the particles are "secondary aerosols" that form in the atmosphere because of chemical reactions.

Existing knowledge of the particles stresses "very simple properties" such as their weight, said Dr. Terry Loucks, manager of the study for the science center. This approach tends to overlook the smaller particles, which are carried the farthest and are suspected of damaging human health by carrying toxic substances as passengers into the lungs.

Loucks noted that these smaller particles primarily are made by man. Hutchinson observed that suspecting aerosols affect health is one thing, but proving it is difficult.

Besides cutting visibility, aerosols also dirty everything from buildings to clothing and speed corrosion of everything from statues to cars.

The mobile laboratory, a van sprouting a host of odd-shaped probes to sample air that then is analyzed inside by a battery of instruments and computers, will be at Point Reyes in early December.

Transit Proposal On Supervisors' Agenda Again

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meeting tomorrow at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, again will consider endorsement of the Phase II report of the Balance Transportation Program.

Supervisors deferred action on the report two weeks ago after it came under fire as "politically influenced" by a committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin.

The charge, leveled by Supervisor Michael Wornum, came amid questions why expansion of the Golden Gate Bridge and new roadways in Marin had not been recommended.

The report recommends future transit needs in Marin to be met with a fleet of 350 intracounty buses operating on 23 miles of separate bus lanes.

Commuter service would be provided by a sophisticated ferry operation and 300 buses. Rail rapid transit was dismissed as too costly and contrary to the goals of the countywide plan for controlling growth and population.

The board will meet with the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee at 9 a.m. in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice to discuss that committee's activities.

It will then reconvene at 10:15 in its usual meeting room in the administration building.

Other items scheduled for discussion include the proposed crime laboratory, San Rafael's negative response to providing more exterior security to the Civic Center and an appeal of planning commission approval for Unit 5 of the Marinview subdivision master plan.

Marin Assessment Rolls $49 Million Over 1971

Final assessed valuation figures for Marin County have been released showing a $49 million increase over last fiscal year.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said the fiscal 1972-73 total reached $764.7 million from three major categories: secured property, unsecured property and public utilities.

This year's total includes $694.8 million in secured property such as land and improvements, $36.6 million from unsecured property such as boats, planes and other personal possessions and $33.3 million from public utilities.

Mitchell said the total — increased primarily through reappraisals of property and new construction — is a 6.8 per cent increase over last fiscal year's $715.9 million.

The jump is significant, Mitchell said, "but is considerably lower than the average increase over the last 20 years of 11.2 per cent."

(Preliminary figures released in July showed an increase this year of 7 per cent but that figure was revised downward after the public utilities rolls were set by the State Board of Equalization.)

Assessed valuation represents 25 per cent of market (or actual) value as determined by the county assessor's office. The public utilities' roll is based on a 27 per cent figure.

Of Marin's 11 cities, Tiburon led the list with a 15.7 per cent increase over last fiscal year. Its assessed valuation now totals $33.3 million.

San Anselmo, meantime, had the smallest percentage increase at 1.2 per cent for a total assessed valuation of 34.4 million.

Totals for other cities (with per centage increase in parentheses) are:

Belvedere, $20,981,937 (11.7 per cent); Corte Madera, $31,658,821 (3.2); Fairfax, $19,331,010 (14.8); Larkspur, $40,120,262 (8.7); Mill Valley, $50,673,707 (10.2); Novato, $76,947,192 (8.9); Ross, $12,966,624 (2.0); San Rafael, $165,884,749 (8.0); and Sausalito, $39,215,223 (3.0).

In the unincorporated area of the county, the assessed valuation increased 4.6 per cent for a $239,185,774 total.

The assessor's department reevaluated about 30,000 individual parcels of property throughout Marin, according to Assessor Bert W. Broemmel.

The assessments reflected shrinking market value of lands where new construction has been halted by a ban on sewer hookups, restrictions on use of tidelands and building moratoriums to permit open space or other planning.

The City of Tibuorn, for instance, was assessed $169,000 less than it would have been with no building moratorium. That translates into about $17,000 of lost tax revenue for the city.

Only one school district showed a decrease in total assessment roll, but it was a whopping 9.9 per cent drop in the Bolinas-Stinson district. The drop was caused when the 1,700-acre George P. Leonard property was taken off the rolls for park expansion.

Other school districts' assessed valuation and percentage increase (in parentheses) are:

ELEMENTARY DISTRICTS — Dixie, $74,512,067 (15 per cent); Fairfax, $22,810,090 (13.0); Kentfield, $51,849,301 (8.3); Laguna Joint, $1,454,214 (3.8); Lagunitas, $8,332,157 (2.5); Larkspur, $46,170,735 (2.4); Lincoln, $1,649,735 (7.1); Mill Valley, $95,407,513 (8.5); Nicasio, $3,428,305 (10.1); Reed, $69,794,301 (11.3); Ross, $15,101,951 (3.3); San Anselmo, $42,919,395 (1.2); San Rafael, $146,780,973 (4.4); Sausalito, $44,541,050 (3.6) and Union Joint, $439,671 (0.1).

UNIFIED DISTRICTS — Novato, $106,074,195 (8.2); Shoreline, $21,367,855 (3.7).

HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICTS — San Rafael, $221,293,040 (7.8); Tamalpais, $412,486,218 (6.2) and Petaluma Joint, $3,543,620 (4.8).

COLLEGE DISTRICTS — Marin Community, $761,221,308 (6.8) and Sonoma Junior, $3,543,620 (4.8).

Moratorium On Building Due Review Tonight

A special joint meeting of San Rafael's city council and planning commission will precede the regular council meeting at 7 o'clock tonight at city hall, according to Marion A. Grady, city clerk.

The early meeting is for a discussion of the city's emergency building moratorium ordinance, and a proposal to extend it for an eight-month period.

At the regular meeting, scheduled to start at 8 p.m., there will be a public hearing on the moratorium extension, at its meeting on Aug. 8 the planning commission unanimously approved the extension, stating it should be strengthened and clarified if necessary.

Other public hearings include an appeal by American Savings and Loan against the planning commission's refusal of a tentative map of Peacock Gap unit 5.

The city council will also set the tax rate for fiscal 1972-73.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Neck pain is as common as was low back pain 30 years ago. It stems from many causes, varying from poor posture to arthritis of the neck vertebrae.

Football accidents, falls, and whiplash injuries may sprain or dislocate a vertebra or fracture the spine. In other instances, the nerves, muscles, or connective tissues are affected. The disks between the vertebrae may also herniate or rupture.

ASPIRIN, physical therapy, exercise, and traction are standard remedies. Special collars are also helpful, especially when the victim is up and about. These vary from a thick piece of felt that encircles the neck to a chest device that holds up the chin.

The thick felt collar is the least expensive. It should be wide enough to hold up the head and to restrict neck movements. The collar is held in place with laces in front.

X-rays may demonstrate changes in the vertebrae, especially when there is arthritis or a ruptured disk. These conditions often result from years of stress and strain associated with constant activity including sudden jolts and twists. Such wear and tear is more common in the obese and in those whose occupation creates unusual strain on this part of the body.

NOW AND THEN distress develops long after a neck injury. The initial damage may have occurred years before while playing football, falling on the head or while sitting in a car that was struck forcibly from the rear. Slouching may do the same and may in time lead to dowager's hump.

Nervous tension also produces pain in the neck. Prolonged contraction of the muscles is responsible and the individual is so uncomfortable during periods of anxiety that cause and effect are obvious. The condition is similar to tension headache but distress is located lower down. Heat, massage and muscle relaxants are most helpful.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

MOUTH ULCERS

Mrs. D. writes: What are the possible causes of mouth ulcers in a 5-year-old boy? Could it be allergy to toothpaste or mouth washes? Or, is it more likely to be due to an internal condition?

REPLY

Irritation from dentifrices or mouth washes may cause cold sores, but it is unusual. Our leaflet on this subject which covers various other possibilities can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

PSYCHOSOMATIC ILLS

REPLY

Psycho refers to the mind and soma to the body. Psychosomatic is a fancy term for a neurosis and treatment centers about the emotional causes of the bodily symptoms. In other words, the doctor concentrates more on the psycho and less on the soma.

SPIKE HEELS

J. writes: Do you think wearing high heels damages the body?

REPLY

No, but they raise cain with the metatarsal arches by forcing improper distribution of weight on the front part of the foot. When used as a weapon for defense, the heel does as much damage as a hammer.

DRAINED GALLBLADDER

D. P. writes: If a gallbladder is drained only, will it have to be removed eventually?

REPLY

Yes, provided infection remains in the gallbladder. Removing stones eliminates only part of the disease and this is why most surgeons recommend that the gallbladder and the stones be removed.

APPENDICITIS

REPLY

No. The most common cause is obstruction of the lumen of the appendix by various kinds of debris.

SHRUNKEN OVARIES

REPLY

IN SHOCK

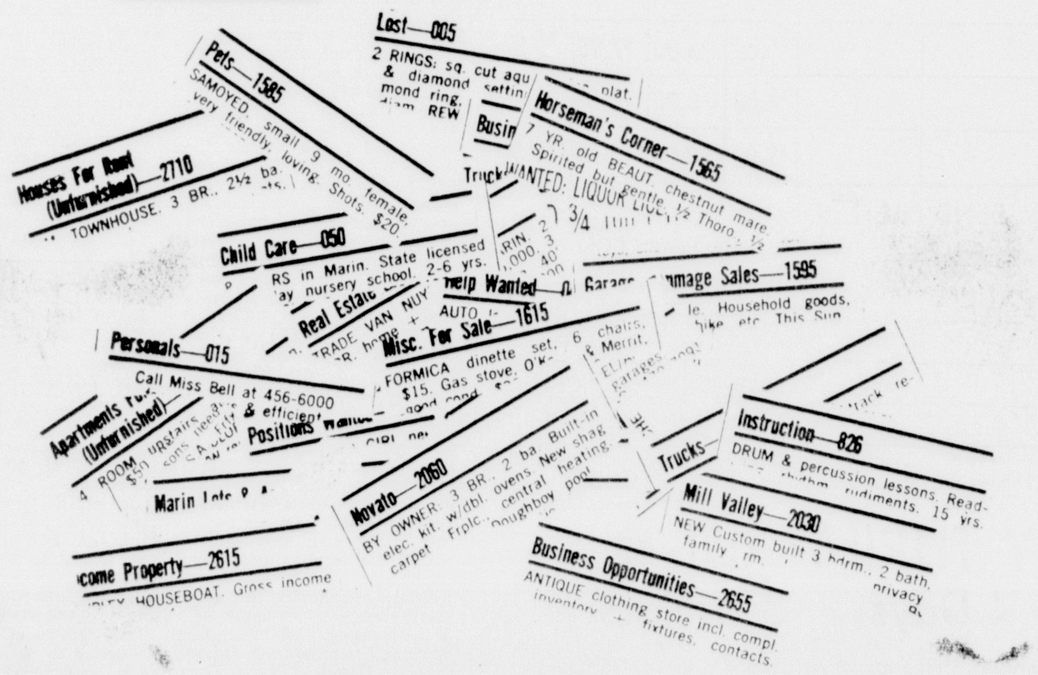

N. A. writes: How does a person act when he has a heart attack?

REPLY

There is not much action, except to clutch the chest in an effort to relieve the feeling of constriction. Many sit or lie quietly, afraid to move or talk. They look anxious, the skin becomes ashen, and beads of perspiration form on the brow. Others collapse and become unconscious due to an irregularity or stoppage of the heart.

Nixon Booster Tells Of $500,000 Gift

The Chicago insurance executive said Sunday night he has given $500,000. "I gave the same amount in 1968," he added.

Rustling Trial Due In East Bay

Robert L. Sweeden, 30, San Leandro, was arrested on a charge of rustling last March 17 after police found the carcass of a calf in Sweeden's home and traced the "Lazy L" brand to a Livermore ranch.

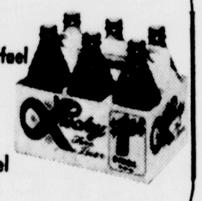

Sweeden said he purchased the calf, but investigators said they found a calf hide and entrails in the suspect's car along with a high-powered rifle.

Cattlemen in the area have reported that more than $50,000 worth of prime beef is lost annually to motorized rustlers.

Suit Asks Benefits For Pregnancy

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A class action suit demanding State Disability Insurance benefits for pregnancy and pregnancy-related illnesses has been filed with the California Supreme Court.

The action, brought by three women — including a Novato telephone operator — and the San Francisco Waitresses Union Local 48, contends the Unemployment Insurance Code discriminates against women "solely on the basix of sex."

The petition for a hearing was filed by California Rural Legal Assistance against Sigurd Hansen, director of the State Human Resources Agency.

It quotes the code as saying that "in no case shall the term 'disability' or 'disabled' include any injury or illness caused by or arising in connection with pregnancy."

The suit held that "it is arbitrary to contend that . . . pregnancy-related injuries and illnesses . . . are not disabilities" and says that 200,000 women each year are denied disability benefits in connection with pregnancy and pregnancy-related illnesses.

Denying such benefits violates the equal protection clause of the Constitution's 14th Amendment, the suit held.

The three women who brought the action are Elizabeth B. Johnson, a Novato telephone operator; Augustina D. Armendariz, a Gilroy secretary, and Jacqueline Jaramillo of Oakland.

Lodge Talks Of Ending Race Bars

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The grand exalted ruler of the Fraternal Order of the Elks said here most members of a committee of past national Elk leaders are on record as favoring the admission of blacks.

But Francis M. Smith of Sioux Falls, S.D., national leader of the 1.5 million member organization, said blacks can be admitted only if the Elks constitution is altered.

"If there is to be a change, it must be voted on by the membership," Smith said.

Chef Didn't Go Down With Ship

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Diners at the Galley restaurant were calmly enjoying their seafood when they heard the call to abandon ship.

The pumps on the barge, converted to a restaurant on the Sacramento river, gave way Saturday night and water began seeping into the dining room.

"I got on the public address system and told everybody that we had a slight emergency and everyone would have to leave slowly by the side ramp," said Mrs. Hal Schultz, wife of the restaurant owner.

She said the 150 customers took their plates of seafood with them and watched on the bank as the barge sank to the river bottom.

The last ones to leave the barge were two dishwashers, who were told to mop up the water until firemen arrived.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Hurry To Draw Trumps If Your Hand Has A Problem

Despite the use of transatlantic cables and communication satellites, some parts of the world have not yet heard about Sheinwold's Law: "Be it known to all men (and women) that a bridge player who has a problem should not be in a hurry to draw trumps." Defiance of the law cost one expert a slam in a match between Austria and England some years ago.

WEST OPENS

At both tables, West opened the ten of clubs. The play proceeded in the same way for a few tricks.

South took the king of clubs, cashed the king of hearts and entered dummy with the king of spades to discard the diamond on the ace of hearts. Next came a trump to the ace.

At this point the two declarers parted company. The Austrian drew a third round of trumps with the queen. He then cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club with dummy's last trump.

CLUBS NOT ESTABLISHED

Unfortunately for the Austrian player, the clubs were not established and he was in the dummy. He could get back to his hand with his last trump, but then he had to give up a club trick and the ace of diamonds. In fact, he was lucky to be down only one trick.

The English declarer avoided drawing that fatal third round of trumps. Istead, he first ruffed a low club with dummy's nine of trumps. Only then was it time to lead a third round of trumps to his queen. The clubs were not established, but at least South was in his own hand.

TAKES THE ACE

Now South could take the ace of clubs and give up a fourth club to the nine. South still had a trump and two good clubs, and could therefore easily make the rest.

Saturday's Answer

Policeman Wins Disability Pay

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 31-year-old policeman whose partner was shot and killed in 1967 has won a disability pension of about $580 per month on grounds that his work caused him "emotional distress."

The City Retirement Board approved the pension for Patrolman William Owens after a five minute hearing. It amounts to half his regular monthly salary.

Owens joined the force seven years ago and has been off active duty for a year because of "debilitating fear" for his safety.

Brundage, Rhodesians Meet To Stop Olympic Walkout

MUNICH (UPI) — Avery Brundage, working on one of his knottiest problems in the closing days of his Presidency of the International Olympic Committee, met today with the Rhodesians and the African nations in an effort to prevent an Olympic walkout.

Pressure —in the form of a statement from the whole United States track and field team and behind-the-scenes action by the German Olympic Committee —is mounting for the I. O. C. to reverse its position and expel Rhodesia from the Games starting Saturday.

MEETING

Brundage met twice with the Rhodesians and then went into a conference with the African nations. A news conference at which some announcement concerning the situation was expected was set back.

The Ethiopian team, the only one which has given formal notice of intention to withdraw, had reservations on a late afternoon plane for Rome en route home to Addis Ababa.

INDICATIONS

Indications were that Brundage's efforts were not meeting with initial success. Willie Daume, chairman of the German Organizing Committee, wore a gloomy expression and declined comment on progress.

The failure of the Africa nations actually to go through with their threats was first taken by many to indicate a lack of sincerity in the threats. Now many are guessing that the Africans haven't left because they think they are going to win the dispute.

RESOLUTION

The U.S. track and field team, including black and white members, held a formal meeting Sunday with Clifford Buck, President of the U.S. Olympic Committee, and approved a resolution which — according to one track official —had actually been phrased by George Wilson, team manager of the track team.

"It was a straightforward statement that in effect many of the athletes and staff of the U.S. track team are concerned with Southern Rhodesia's participation in the Olympic Games, which caused many other nations to withdraw," the official said.

The official said that Buck has agreed to relay the statement to the I.O.C.

He stressed that the statement does not contain any "threat or demand," but just "explains what we are thinking about."

The existence of a behind-the scenes move by the German Olympic Committee to settle the dispute one way or another became known Sunday. It was learned that the Germans were not seeking to have the Rhodesians formally expelled, but wanted official permission to approach the Rhodesians and ask them to withdraw voluntarily in the name of harmony.

GERMAN CONCERN

The Germans are concerned that the 12 African nations will withdraw, that the black athletes of the United States may walk out in sympathy, and the Games thereby lose a great deal of lustre.

The U.S. blacks refused to compete Saturday in a pre-Olympic tune-up meet at Kempten, Germany, because Rhodesia was entered. Another and more important tune-up meet is scheduled on Wednesday and Rod Milburn, a black hurdler from Southern University, said he thought the team would hold another meeting before then to consider the situation at the time.

OLGA CONNOLLY

In a dispute within the U.S. Olympic team, former women's Olympic gold medallist Olga Connolly said more than half of the women's team supports her in her battle against team "instructions" limiting interviews with newsmen.

Mrs. Connolly, 39-year-old mother of four who first won the Olympics as a competitor for Czechoslovakia and will be competing this year in her fifth Olympics, said on arrival here she thinks she has won her "test case" against the rule by speaking out last week.

"I think the simple fact that I was not punished and the Olympic Committee could not find that I had done something wrong, shows that the rule was wrong and should be taken off the books."

Mrs. Connolly also asserted that the women's team had a "poor training camp" at which there was emphasis on "surface things like your dress" instead of "basic things like the athlet's preparedness."

A's Fall Into 1st Place Tie

DETROIT (UPI)—The Oakland A's had a co-tenant in first place and an angry manager as they moved into Detroit for a battle with the tough Tigers tonight.

Chicago meanwhile split with Boston to wind up the afternoon in a flat tie in the American League West with the A's with both teams showing 67-48 marks.

WILLIAMS

Manager Dick Williams said that he was unimpressed with Cleveland pitcher Dick Tidrow, who got the win over an ineffective Ken Holtzman, and the fiery A's pilot again blasted umpire Hank Morganweck.

"Tidrow didn't particularly impress me," he said. "Am I supposed to be impressed just because he beat us? We didn't impress ourselves with our offense. We beat us, not Tidrow. We and that umpire, Hank Morganweck, held us to one run."

Williams blasted Morganweck earlier this season which drew a harsh reaction from league president Joe Cronin, but Sunday the A's skipper was at it again.

'INCOMPETENT'

"I don't care," he said. "Morganwick is incompetent. Hell, we should have had the bases loaded with none out."

That was in the fifth inning when Oakland trailed 3-0 and had Ted Kubiak on second and Campy Campaneris on first with none out. Angel Mangual hit a chopper to shortstop Frank Duffy, who bobbled the ball before tossing to second.

Morganweck called Campaneris out on the force. Campaneris remained on second for a half-minute before learning he had been called out. Then a mighty rhubarb involving Campy, Williams and Morganweck followed.

"I called him everything I could think of," said Williams.

The ruling stood and Joe Rudi then hit a deep fly to score the lone A's run, but their chances for the big rally were gone.

But the A's had many other chances to score and it was not any close calls by umpires that frustrated their chances. They just didn't get the hits when they needed them.

Giants' Happiness Is Taking 4th Spot

15-Game Deficit Wiped Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Happiness for the San Francisco Giants at the moment is a tie for fourth place in the National League West.

Manager Charlie Fox said he is "pleased with our position in the standings" as a result of Sunday's 5-3 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"This is not really a last place ball club. It's not a fourth place ball club either, except we are going through a transition period with the greater emphasis on youth," Fox said.

The Giants haven't been as high as fourth place since April 29 and at one time were 15 games out of fourth.

Ken Henderson hit in his 17th straight game Sunday and had a pair of singles to give him an amazing 31 hits in his last 68 at bats.

"Because of the poor start we got, I think you'd have to say it is satisfying to be up in fourth place now," Henderson said.

Dave Kingman, who got a big two-run homer in the second inning to give the Giants a lead they never lost, said he wasn't surprised that the Cardinals failed to give him an intentional walk.

"The way I've been hitting, I would have pitched to me, too," said Kingman. "They just threw the ball over the plate, right over the plate, and dared me to hit it."

Kingman suffered from an ankle injury for nearly a month and because of that and a batting slump he has been hitting eighth in the batting order.

Commuter Takes Marin Tennis Title

Other people commute on weekdays. Eric Lee commutes on Saturdays and Sundays.

Lee, a 16-year-old San Franciscan, made his various trips across the Golden Gate profitable yesterday, as he captured the boys 16 title in the Marin County Junior Hardcourt Tennis Tournament in the afternoon after winning the Class B title in the San Francisco City tourney in the morning.

Saturday's play, which was scattered to several sites throughout the county by rain in Mill Valley, yielded one championship and three defeats in the finals for Marin County players.

Carrie and Anne Zarraonandia of San Rafael won the girls 16 doubles title from Ellen Metcalf and Joan Pennello of Sacramento, 6-3, 6-3, at Corte Madera Municipal Park. Earlier, Carrie won the girls 14 singles.

Charles Bolcom of Belvedere was defeated by Matt Murphy of Alameda, 6-2, 6-3, in boys 12 finals at Harbor Point. Matt's sister, Charlene, earlier won girls 12 singles.

Sue Beatty of Tiburon was beaten in girls 16 singles finals by Valerie Mendoza of Sunnyvale, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0, also at Harbor Point. Leslie Airola of Tiburon succumbed to Susan Brown of Oakland in girls 18 singles at Marinwood Community Center, 6-0, 6-2.

Other finals:

Boys 14 — Chip Hooper, Sunnyvale, d. Scott Lipton, San Jose, 6-3, 6-3.

Boys 18 Singles — Ken (Butch) Walts, Fresno, d. Bill Maze, Orinda, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6, 7-5.

Bueler Bats, Hurls Knicks To Victory

Winning pitcher Dennis Bueler cracked three hits, including a two-run single which keyed a three-run sixth inning, as the C. L. Moore Knickerbockers of Novato defeated Benicia Industries yesterday, 5-2, in a semi-pro baseball game.

Chuck Ashowrth also had three hits, as the Knicks' eighth and ninth batters in the order accounted for six of their eight safeties. Bueler struck out nine, and reliever Lenny Hoffman six.

SAN FRANCISCO TITLE TO GREENBRAE NETTER

John Zwieg of Greenbrae played steady tennis yesterday to defeat young Dave Lucky of Alameda, 6-4, 6-1, and win the San Francisco City championship at Golden Gate Park.

Zwieg, 25, used his superior experience to defeat Lucky, an 18-year-old who will attend the University of Pennsylvania this fall.

Zwieg experienced trouble early as the first set was tied, 2-2, and he was trailing in the fifth game, love-15, but smashed four straight winners to take a 3-2 lead and eventually win, 6-4.

The Greenbrae netter and teammate Gil Howard were defeated in the semi-finals of the men's doubles by Rich Anderson and Steve Cornell, 6-2, 6-3. Rich Andrews and Peter Hultgren beat Anderson and Cornell in the finals, 7-5, 0-6, 6-4.

Olympic Swimmer To Move To Marin

Robin Backhaus, a member of the United States Olympic swimming team from Redlands, Calif., will move to Marin County next month to compete for the Marin Aquatic Club, the Independent-Journal learned Saturday.

Backhaus, a butterfly specialist who is also extremely proficient in the other four strokes and the individual medley, will live with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Keck of San Rafael. Backhaus' parents will not be moving up to Northern California.

The 6-foot, 185-pounder will attend San Rafael High School.

"This is the first time in the four years I've been here that somebody has moved to Marin County just to swim," coach Don Swartz of the Marin A.C. said.

"The family sought me out at the Olympic trials (in Chicago earlier this month) as our program had been recommended to them," by the University of Southern California Swim Coach, Peter Daland.

"This is very exciting," said San Rafael High coach Bill Ranney, anticipating a stronger team next spring because of Backhaus. "Don (Swartz) has a policy of having his swimmers work out with him and not with the high school, but this is fine with me."

Backhaus has outstanding best times 51 plus seconds for the 100-yard butterly, 1:51.0 for the 200 fly, 1:57 plus in the 200 I.M., 48.2 in the 100 free, and 1:42.1 in the 200 free.

He qualified second for the Olympic team in the 200-meter butterfly behind world record holder Mark Spitz of Arden Hills, Calif., in 2:03.3.

Suyderhoud Retains Ski Crown

I-J Special Report

SEATTLE, Wash. — Starring despite an injured knee which required a brace, Mike Suyderhould of Petaluma retained his men's over-all title yesterday in the National Water Ski Championships, although he was divested of his jumping crown.

Mrs. Thelma Salmas of Bel Marin Keys finished second over-all in the senior women's division, and Bob La Point of Novato was third in boys over-all after retaining his slalom title.

Suyderhoud finished second in all three events to rack up 2,847 points, barely ahead of the 2,832 compiled by Ricky McCormick of Independence, Mo. McCormick won jump with 157 feet, while Suyderhoud was second at 150. Robbie Kempton of Tampa, Fla., won men's tricks with 5,390 points to Suyderhoud's 5,093.

What was good enough for Suyderhoud was not good enough for Mrs. Salmas, who likewise finished second in three events. Unfortunately, Mrs. Barbara Cleveland of Hawthorne, Fla., finished ahead of her each time and recorded 3,000 points to Mrs. Salmas' 2,134.

La Point passed 51½ buoys in his slalom, edging Wayne Grimditch of Hillsboro Beach, Fla., who passed 51. Grimditch won the over-all title easily with 2,990 points, while Ohio's Chris Redmond had 2,373 and La Point 2,336.

San Rafael Lad 4th

DiMaggio Crown To Italian Club

Turning on the power when it counted, the Italian Club defeated the Ukiah Elks in two games out of three over the weekend to win the North Bay Region Joe DiMaggio baseball league tournament at San Rafael's Albert Park.

Don Bianchini, the tourney's most valuable player, and Jim Caito unloosed two-run homers in the final game to give the Marin County representatives a 4-2 victory and launch them into the state championship tournament starting Wednesday night in Vallejo. Bianchini's first homer of the tourney on Saturday had sparked the Italian Club to a 7-6 come-from-behind victory, which Ukiah partially avenged in yesterday's first game, winning 5-4 in extra innings.

On Saturday, with Italian Club and Ukiah both coming off first round victories chalked up Friday night, the Elks led 5-0 going into the bottom of the sixth. After Matt Gondak, who had clobbered a pair of home runs the game before, led off with a walk, Bianchini found the range in left field to make it 5-2.

The next and final inning the Marin team scored five times on five hits and two walks to

White Sox Get Tie For First

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

In 1959 they were dubbed the "Go Go Sox" while fashioning a Punch'n Judy attack of base hits and stolen bases and no one, including their owner Bill Veeck, really believed they could win it.

This time, however, things are different on Chicago's south side as the White Sox are back from the dead, fighting for a pennant and just about everybody in the Windy City expects them to win it.

LONG BALL

Maybe it's because the White Sox' freewheeling '72 style specializes in the long ball in contrast to the scrappy '59 pennant formula, but after splitting a doubleheader with Boston Sunday, the 29,497 fans at White Sox Park were still chanting 'We're No. 1' even though their heroes owned only a half-share of first place in the AL west.

Pat Kelly's dramatic three-run homer with two out in the ninth earned the Chisox a 9-7 first game victory over Boston before the Red Sox came back to cop the nightcap 5-4. The Oakland A's, however, allowed Chicago to gain a share of the lead in the west by dropping 3-1 decision to Cleveland. Elsewhere it was Detroit 11, California 9, Minnesota over Baltimore 4-1, Kansas City on top of Milwaukee 2-1 and the New York Yankees over Texas 2-0.

'BEST FANS'

"We've got the best fans in all of baseball," Chicago manager Chuck Tanner said after the twinbill which saw White Sox overall attendance balloon to 957,631 for the season as compared to 653,000 at the same point last year. "I love 'em. Our fans have been very instrumental in our winning at home the way we have (46-16 thus far)".

"They say there isn't any such thing as a home field advantage," Tanner continued. "But there is—they've supported us all year and now I just hope we can win it for them."

A three-run homer by Bobby Darwin sent the Orioles down to their fifth defeat in the last six games as Ray Corbin won for the Twins with a four-hitter.

The Tigers maintained their slim hold on first place in the AL east when Aurelio Rodriguez capped an eight-run sixth inning with a two-run homer after starting it with a double. The Angels, who blew 9-2 laad, had previously put together a nine running inning in the fourth.

LYLE RESCUES

Once again it was relief ace Sparky Lyle who came to the Yankees' rescue. Lyle picked up his fifth win of the season after scoring the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning. Lyle, who came on in relief of starter Rob Gardner, opened the 10th with a single and advanced to third after Horace Clarke was hit by a pitch and Thurman Munson delivered a sacrifice bunt. Lyle then scored on an infield grounder.

Syd O'Brien and Johnny Briggs rapped out run-scoring singles to propel the Brewers over Kansas City.

Astro Wilson Fans 14 Phillies In Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Don Wilson wasn't trying to be fancy Sunday afternoon but the Philadelphia Phillies were impressed nevertheless.

Wilson turned in a 14-strikeout performance as the Houston Astros topped Philadelphia, 3-1, with Jesus Alou driving in the winning run in the seventh inning.

The veteran right-hander struck out 11 Phillies over the final five innings including the final three batters he faced in the last of the ninth.

'STRUGGLING'

"After struggling with breaking pitches the first couple of innings, I decided the hell with being fancy and fired it," Wilson said. "That's when I started striking people out."

With the score tied 1-1, Helms led off the seventh with a single and tallied on Alou's hit. Alou then scored the final run of the game on Larry Howard's single.

Wilson gained his 10th victory against eight losses. The only Phillies run came in the fourth on Greg Luzinski's 12th homer of the season.

OTHER SCORES

In other National League games, Cincinnati ripped New York 8-1, Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from San Diego, 9-3 and 5-2, Chicago beat Los Angeles 5-3, San Francisco topped St. Louis 5-3, and Montreal blanked Atlanta 1-0.

Pete Rose pounded out three hits and drove in two runs and the Reds Reds capitalized on a series of fielding lapses by New York in trouncing the Mets.

GULLETT TOUGH

Don Gullett blanked the Mets over the first seven innings and upped his record to 5-7 before giving way for a pinch-hitter as Clay Carroll mopped up, yelding New York's only run in the ninth.

Bob Robertson and Richie Hebner cracked homers in the nightcap to lead Pittsburgh to a sweep of their doubleheader with San Diego after Willie Stargell drove in three runs with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly in the opener.

Jim Hickman cracked a two-run homer and Ron Santo went 4-for-5 to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Santo's three singles and a double drove in one run and set up another as the Cubs tagged Claude Osteen with only his second loss in his last six decisions.

Devlin Wins Golf Tourney

Devlin, the master plumber from Australia who likes to dabble in golf course architecture, methodically sank four straight birdies midway through the final round Sunday to walk away from the field in the $200,000 USI Classic at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

ELDER SECOND

Napa's Ron Cerrudo finished with a 287.

Mahaffey, in his first full year on the tour, qualified for the USI as the fifth and last alternate and got to play only because Orville Moody had a bad back.

There was no taking it away from Devlin Sunday. He shot a three-under-par 69 and finished the tournament with 275, a record-tying 13 under for 72 holes while claiming the $40,000 in first place money.

Devlin's game was steady throughout the four days as he shot rounds of 69-68-69-69.

MAHAFFEY

But it was Mahaffey who caught the fancy of the gallery of 42,340 with an up-and-down exhibition that took him on one occasion to within one stroke of the lead before Devlin wrapped it up.

The pressure, Mahaffey realized, was his undoing. He's sure he can overcome that sinking feeling.

DEVLIN'S STORY

Devlin, who plans to leave the tour for a three-month business and pleasure trip to the southwest, Japan and Australia, said his string of birdies on the eighth, ninth, 10th and 11th holes "tells the story."

"I guess I snuck away with a three or four-shot lead right there," he said. "Then I just wanted to get in as quickly as I could." He shot his way out of the rough on the 10th hole and made the green in two shots, then two-putted on the tough, 530-yard 11th hole.

For Devlin, too, it was the biggest payday since he joined the tour in 1962.

Mrs. Cann Favored In Champs' Tourney

(Last in a Series)

Having won in her two previous tries, Mrs. John Cann will be favored to make it three-for-three next Wednesday in the fifth annual Marin County Women's Tournament of Champions golf match at Mill Valley.

For 14 straight years the women's club champion at Meadow Club in Fairfax, Laura Cann won the tourney of champs in 1969, and again the following year. She might have taken it last year had she not gone to Europe with her children for the summer.

A long ball hitter with a seven handicap, Mrs. Cann is wary of the Mill Valley course, where she had not played in 10 years prior to a practice round last week. "The lies are very difficult, the terrain very hilly," she says. "And since my long game is my strong point, I'm going to have to do a little practicing."

Her opponents for the tourney will include Cookie Baer of Peacock Gap in San Rafael, Nancy Gapinski of San Geronimo, Tillie Gondak of Marin Country Club in Novato, Peg Williams of Novato's Indian Valley and Joan Wheeler of Mill Valley.

"Nancy Gapinski has always been my toughest competition," says Mrs. Cann, "but I would say Joan Wheeler has an edge over all of us. Local knowledge counts very much on that course."

Mrs. Cann has been playing golf for "about 20 years," 17 of them at Meadow Club. Her husband is an anesthesiologist at St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco. The couple has four children; Jacqueline, 20; Bill, 19; Jane, 15; and Robert, 10.

Namath Forecast Proves Invalid Against Giants

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Novice soothsayer Joe Namath looked straight into his crystal ball to foretell the winner of this year's game between New York's two pro teams and came up with a lousy prediction.

Namath, who predicted the New York Jets' 1969 Super Bowl triumph over Baltimore, called the New York Giants "a terrible team" earlier this week and figured the Jets would have no trouble in handling their cross-town rival in Sunday's National Football League preseason game. But the Giants not only proved Namath wrong but they rubbed it in by intercepting five of his passes to engineer a 31-31 tie with the Jets at New Haven, Conn.

"I guess you'd have to say they're not terrible," said Namath laughing. "They played a helluva game.

NAMATH RECORD

Despite the five interceptions, Namath completed 12 of 24 passes for 340 yards and three touchdowns, hitting Don Maynard on scoring passes of 20 and 87 yards and Eddie Bell on a 45-yarder.

The Giants actually had a chance to win the game but blew it when Pete Gogolak, who kicked a 10-yard field goal to tie the game with 7:31 remaining, missed a 37-yarder with 52 seconds left that would have given the Giants the victory.

Ron Johnson gave the Giants a 7-0 lead when he dashed 63 yards for a TD on the second play of scrimmage. Quarterback Randy Johnson took the Giants 80 yards in eight plays after the second half kickoff capping the drive with a 12-yard pass to Bob Tucker, who finished with eight receptions for 104 yards.

OTHER SCORES

New England topped Chicago, 17-14, and Detroit mauled Cleveland, 34-7 in the only other Sunday exhibiton games.

In Saturday night action, Oakland beat Los Angeles, 34-9, Houston whipped Green Bay, 20-3, San Diego edged San Francisco, 17-16, St. Louis topped Denver, 17-13, Miami ripped Cincinnati, 35-17, Pittsburgh romped past Atlanta, 31-17.

Quarterback Greg Landry rifled a 24-yard touchdown pass to Earl McCullough with the game only 3:52 old and then hit All-Pro tight end Charlie Sanders with a six-yard scoring pass as the Detroit Lions mauled the Cleveland Browns.

Jim Plunkett completed 17 of 28 passes for 254 yards, including a 66-yard scoring pass to Randy Vataha and a seven-yard touchdown toss to Reggie Rucker to give the New England Patriots a win over the Chicago Bears.

PASTORINI

Dan Pastorini threw two touchdown passes and Mark Mosely kicked a pair of field goals to lead Houston past the Packers. Pastorini, a second year quarterback, hit tight end Alvin Reed with a 48-yard strike early in the first period and connected again with wide receiver Ken Burroughs midway in the final period.

Quarterback Tim Van Galder came off the bench in the second half to lead St. Louis over Denver. Van Galder replaced Gary Cuozzo with the Cardinals trailing 13-0, moved the Cards 36 yards in 11 plays on his second series in the game and Jim Bakken kicked a 24-yard field goal.

GRIESE PASSES

Bob Griese passed for three touchdowns and 161 yards and led the Dolphins over Cincinnati. Griese hit Paul Warfield with a 13-yard pass and Marlin Briscoe with a 19-yard pass for Miami touchdowns.

Backup quarterback Terry Hanratty, taking over the injured Terry Bradshaw, guided Pittsburgh to three touchdowns in little more than five minutes in the second quarter as the Steelers ripped Atlanta.

Mike Montgomery scored one touchdown and set up another and placekicker Tony Fritsch added 12 points to lead unbeaten Dallas to triumph over the New Orleans Saints and the Cowboys to their fourth preseason victory.

Two Marin Stars In Swim Meet

Miss Campion won three first places and racked up 51 points in the girls 13-14 age bracket, recording personal lifetime bests of 1:08.8 in the 100-meter butterfly, 1:02.4 in the 100 freestyle and 2:28.1 in the 200 fly.

Keck racked up 54 points in the boys 11-12 bracket, winning the 50, 100 and 200 freestyles. He and Miss Campion each placed four other times.

Santa Clara Swim Club won the meet with 640 points, while Pleasant Hill Swim Club was second at 605. Marin A.C., which took eight swimmers was eighth with 156.

RAMS LOOK DISMAL

Raiders Sharp In Victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders looked in mid-season form and the Los Angeles Rams looked for the most part like they were sorry they showed up for the game.

Three Oakland quarterbacks —Ken Stabler, Daryle Lamonica and rookie Don Milan—put on a rather dazzling display of passing and threw a total of four for touchdowns Saturday night to beat the Rams 34-9.

It was the third straight preseason victory for the Raiders while the Rams now are 1-2.

GABRIEL DEBUTS

Roman Gabriel, No. 1, Ram quarterback, made his first appearance of the year. He threw accurately enough, completing five of eight passes for 65 yards but could not get the Rams a touchdown.

The Ram scoring against the Raiders was the exclusive work of placekicker David Ray. He kicked three field goals—24, 40 and 41-all in the first half. Forty-four-year-old George Blanda booted a 27-yarder for Oakland in the first quarter and a 23-yarder in the third period.

SMITH SCORES

The Rams had a 9-3 lead at 14:02 in the second period when Stabler flipped a screen pass to Charlie Smith, who ran through the Ram team for 30 yards and a touchdown. Blanda's conversion made it 10-9 for the Raiders at the intermission.

Lamonica connected for two in the second half — a 29-yard pass to Fred Biletnikoff and a 23-yarder to speedy Cliff Branch, a rookie from Colorado.

Milan, a newcomer from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, hit another rookie, Mike Siani of Villanova, with a five-yarder for the final touchdown at 13:43 of the last quarter.

BRANCH CATCH

The Raiders lost rookie running back Ray Jamieson in the first quarter when he tackled Phillips, who was returning a punt. His injury was diagnosed at Mt. Sinai Hospital as a fractured dislocation of the neck.

"It's very hard to talk about a ball game when something happens like it did to Jamieson," said Raider coach John Madden.

Jamieson regained some functioning in the neck and is "improving," a spokesman at Mt. Sinai Hospital said Sunday.

The hospital spokesman said Jamieson had been transferred to a private room and probably would remain there for some time. His wif has flown to Los Angeles to be with him.

The Raiders hit on 20 of 39 passes for 318 yards—four td's —with one interception.

Shackford's 73 Tops Qualifiers For Match Play

Terry Shackford of Pacific Grove shot 38-351-173, one over par, yesterday at Pebble Beach Golf Course on the Monterey Peninsula, to lead a field of 32 qualifiers into the Northern California Golf Association Amateur Match Play championship.

Qualifying will continue today, with four Marin County golfers scheduled to participate — Roger Baron, Steve Gaddis and Jeff DeVoto of Mill Valley Golf Club and Charles Raznikov of Marin Country Club.

Dave Cardy of Mill Valley, Terry Jarcik of Marin, Chuck Freitas of San Geronimo National and Mark Lund of Petaluma Golf and Country Club failed to qualify yesterday. The tournament begins Wednesday.

Black Hawks File Suit To Keep Superstar Hull

CHICAGO — The Chicago Black Hawks have filed suit to keep their superstar Bobby Hull from playing for the New World Hockey Association Winnipeg Jets, a spokesman for the Hawks said today.

Cook County Circuit Court judge Francis T. Delaney, who will hear the case Wednesday, will be asked to enjoin Hull from playing for anyone but the Hawks.

The suit charged Hull with breach of contract. The club said the team still had an option on Hull's services for the 1972-73 season.

Boating

CINCINNATI — One hydroplane pilot was killed and another was seriously injured Sunday when their poserful crafts collided during the 52nd annual Ohio River Regatta.

Conley Snowden, 36, of Lexington, Ky., was dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital. Ronnie Davies, 18, Kettering, Ohio, was conscious but listed in serious condition at St. Francis. He was reported partially paralyzed.

"It appeared that Davies turned and that Conley went right under him," said Bob Ballinger, racing chairman.

"Walton is the kind of player that can completely turn a team around," Chamberlain said Sunday.

"Walton's future as a pro player is unlimited, he's coming along at just the right time moneywise," Chamberlain said. "He'll be worth whatever it takes to sign him. I just wish I had his future."

Suburban Auto Out Of Tourney

Suburban Auto of San Rafael suffered two 2-1 losses over the weekend and was eliminated from the North Pacific Regional softball tournament in Stockton.

On Saturday the Marin team lost to Livermore. Suburban's run came when Phil Gambucci walked, stole second and scored on a single by Nolan Wilson.

Yesterday Spanos of Stockton was the villain. This time Suburban got their run when Dennis Staub singled, stole second and came home on Jess Munyan's single, his second hit of the game.

BASEBALL

pull out the victory. John Billings and Daryl Edralin struck doubles in the rally, and Steve Sherry had a triple. Bianchini added a single, his third hit of the game.

Ukiah came back to escape elimination in yesterday's first game, breaking a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the eighth when Lou Goring lifted a sacrifice fly to center with the bases loaded to score pinch hitter Greg Alexander.

The man he hit for, Rod Dockins, went the eight innings for the victory, and pitched a total of 14 innings in the tournament, seeing action in four out of five games. He was also the winning pitcher in Ukiah's opener, when he beat Loleta of Eureka with five innings of superb relief.

When both pitching staffs depleted, Italian Club coach Dan Abballo went with lefthander Mark Ruggles in the final game, and he responded with a complete, seven-hit performance for the win. Ruggles, who also had seen a lot of action as a starter Saturday and reliever in yesterday's first game, exhibited supreme control, not walking a man, and that made the difference for him. He gave up only single runs in the first and third innings.

Bianchini gave his team the lead in the second inning, when after leadoff batter Matt Gondak was hit with a pitch, he belted a tremendous home run to straight away leftfield. Coincidentally, it was to the same spot where Gondak hit the second of his two home runs on Friday when Italian Club opened the tourney with a 9-1 win over Fortuna of Eureka.

Caito's blast, which broke a 2-2 tie, came in the fourth inning, again with Gondak aboard. Like Bianchini's, it was a towering shot to left.

Bianchini, who collected five hits and six runs-batted-in for the tourney, led an all-tourney team composed of Gondak, Ruggles, Billings, Gene Frey and Steve Sherry of the Italian Club, Dockins, Goring, Marshall Brandt, Tony Shimitz and Tom Walker of Ukiah, Dale Biondini and Dennis Wood of Loleta and Dennis Pricer Fortuna.

Chargers Defeat 49ers; Injuries Hit Both Teams

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers' 17-16 exhibition victory over San Francisco Saturday night may have been one of the costliest in the club's history and the 49ers are hurting, too.

Charger middle linebacker Tim Rossovich, acquired only a few weeks ago for a first round draft choice, appears lost for the season with torn knee ligaments. Six other Chargers sustained lesser ailments.

49ER INJURIES

The 49ers lost fullback Ken Willard with a sprained knee and defensive backs Jimmy Johnson and Mike Simpson with shoulder separations. Coach Dick Nolan said he hoped they would be ready for the season opener against San Diego Sept. 17, but would not know until X-Rays were taken.

"I think it will be all right," Willard said as he hobbled from the dressing room on crutches.

MORAL VICTORY

San Francisco scored a moral victory as they played without quarterback John Brodie. San Diego had to call starter John Hadl off the bench inthe fourth quarter to overcome a 16-10 49ers lead.

He guided the club 67 yards in nine plays and culminated the drive with a three yard scoring pass to Jerry Levias with 56 seconds left. Steve Spurrier then brought San Francisco to San Diego's 30, but Bruce Gossett missed the last field goal.

SCORING PASSES

Hadl also connected with fullback Cid Edwards on a 39 yard scoring screen pass play, while Larry Schreiber scored the 49ers' only touchdown on a seven yard pass from Spurrier.

Schreiber, who came in for Willard in the first quarter, gained 73 yards on 13 runs.

Gary Garrison made his first appearance for San Diego early in the second quarter and caught a 30 yard pass from Wayne Clark. Four plays later he and Simpson collided going for a pass. Garrison writhed on the ground for a minute but escaped with a mild concussion while Simpson suffered the more severe injury.

The Chargers visit New Orleans this week while the 49ers host Denver.

Hamilton's Wells Praised By Bobick

MUNICH (UPI) — Nick Wells, who fights out of Hamilton Air Force Base, has been called by someone who should know the second best amateur heavyweight boxer in the United States.

Duane Bobick, the best amateur heavyweight in the U.S. and the likely successor to George Foreman as Olympic heavyweight gold medal winner, made the remark yesterday. "Wells is a tough fighter," said Bobick, who beat him on a three round technical knockout in an Olympic trials match at Forth Worth, Tex. "He's the second best (amateur) heavyweight in the United States."

Bobick, in training for the Olympics, is typically unconcerned about the next few days.

He just hopes that when he wins the championship — with Bobick there is no such thing as "if I win" — he defeats a worthy opponent.

There is no seeding (an estimation of who is best, second best, etc.), but only a blind draw," said Bobick. "I just hope the Cuban is in the other bracket from me.

"I think the Cuban ought to get to the finals. I think we are the best two here."

The Cuban Bobick referred to is Teoilio Stevensen, a talented slugger who has met Bobick before and lost.

Bobick comes into the Olympics with a string of 60 straight wins — the last few of those coming in the trials at Forth Worth, Tex., and West Point, N.Y.

And one of those fights has brought a little bitterness into the usually calm frame of the handsome slugger from Bowlus, Minn.

"I'm sorry I didn't get to fight Nick Wells again," Bobick said, "After what he said. He said he thought he was beating me when they stopped that fight in Fort Worth. He was so tired he could barely stand up. He would have never lasted the third round."

The Wells-Bobick fight came in the finals of the preliminary Olympic trails. Both boxers were bloodied during the fight, but a cut over Wells' eye was judged so deep that he was not allowed to come out for the third round.

Wells was selected by the Olympic boxing committee to serve as a special challenger to Bobick at the boxer's camp in New York, but the cut over Wells' eye did not heal quickly enough. So Larry Holmes was picked to fight Bobick in that bout, and as expected it was no contest.

The selection of special challengers — something which is done in every weight class — is another thing that sticks in Bobick's throat.

"If there is a worthy opponent that is different," Bobick said. "Wells would have been a worthy opponent. But he could not fight. What if I had been cut or something against Holmes?"

Bobick is just about over the effects of the long trip to Munich and has his girl-watching talents back in tune but in between describing the obviously splendid attributes of a particular Miss over in the dining hall, Bobick suggested one of the reasons he is so confident.

It has to do with the complicated international scoring system in amateur boxing.

Plant Shop, Gallery-Gift Shop To Join Lark Creek Development

A plant and garden supply shop and an art gallery-gift shop will join the growing list of businesses at Lark Creek Shoppes in Larkspur, next to Lark Creek Inn.

Sommer & Ryan Enterprises of 234½ Magnolia Avenue, which manages the Lark Creek Shoppes, announced that the total number of shops has expanded to 12.

Opening tomorrow is The Plantery at 276 Magnolia, carrying a large selection of house plants, indoor garden supplies, and decorative plant containers from all over the world including mainland China.

The Plantery is owned and operated by Neil Jones of Ross, a former Peace Corpsman who has a bachelor of fine arts degree from California College of Arts and Crafts and four years experience as a professional garden consultant.

Opening Sept. 6 at 246 Magnolia is The Meadowlark, an art gallery and gift shop. It will offer paintings, prints, pottery, and decorator items of a handcrafted nature.

The Meadowlark will be owned and operated by Sally-Jean Shepard, Karin Battat, and Joy Kuhn, all of Tiburon, and Helen DeBerry of Belvedere. Mrs. Battat, Kuhn and DeBerry are well-known for their art in Northern California.

Roger Barbaer's antique shop at 242 Magnolia has just expanded by one-third. He said that growing interest in Oriental and English antiques among his Marin clientele prompted the expansion. Fine gifts and exclusive dinnerware are other specialties of Barber.

Roger Barber has been in the gift and antique business for 30 years and opened his Lark Creek shop a year ago.

MARIN PROPERTY Owners Association moved last Friday to new and expanded quarters at 818 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael. It was formerly located at 1330 Lincoln Avenue. Executive director of the association is Edward W. Colthurst.

Temby Rewoldt

ROBERT GWYNNE TEMBY of Belvedere has been named San Francisco regional sales manager by American Building Maintenance Co.

Before his appointment, Temby was vice president of Easterday Supply Co. of Northern California, a subsidiary of American Building Maintenance Industries, of which ABM Co. is the contract cleaning division. Temby joined Easterday in 1955 and was named manager of the company's Portland office in 1961. He returned to San Francisco in 1964 as manager of Easterday sales operations in Northern California.

DO YOU HAVE the best broker or financial institution managing your money? Or should you change, and if so, to whom?

Finding answers to these questions is a specialty of a unique new Marin firm called Roberts Reports Inc. of Box 155 Tiburon. President is Robert Rewoldt, who was with General Motors investment division from 1960 to 1963 a d has since been a private consultant with automobile manufacturers.

Rewoldt said he has a computerized system fo analyze, compare and rate the performance of the stock broker, investment adviser or financial institution that manages your investment.

"Our system can compare the performance of your broker with the performance of other brokers in any of 18 investment categories," said Roberts. Every 90 days, the computer prepares a report, rating the various brokers and investment counselors, ranking them in order.

Rewoldt said that a broker who does poorly in one investment category might be a whiz in another, and this information is constantly updated.

At the end of nine months, the client gets a tax planning report to show whether he should buy or sell for tax purposes. At year end, he gets a complete year-end accounting. Roberts Reports' fees start at $99 per year and increase with the type, size and activity of the investment account.

Rafael Carpets carries top name brands including Armstrong, Alexander Smith, Barwick and Monarch. The store, located in the J. B. Rice Center across the street from Graham Lumber Co., is open six days a week.

Behrendt has been in the carpet installation business in Marin and San Francisco for the past nine years.

ROCK ISLAND Line Organic Foods Store at 1915-A Bridgeway in Sausalito may be sold to new owners about Sept. 1.

Nancy Coner and Henry Abramson, who have owned the store for the past year and a half, are negotiating to sell the shop to Marilyn Turkel and Brenda Nawi of Berkeley.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have seen no comment in your column on Loews Corp. At the time of the Lorillard merger I received warrants which I would like to exchange now. Could you give me some information on this company? — T.F.

A. These warrants enable you to purchase Loews common at $35 a share until Nov. 29, 1972, and at $37.50 for the next four years. Since the warrants are trading at $21.00 you would pay $56 for shares listed on the NYSE at $50. Thus the ASE-listed warrants trade at a 12 per cent premium in a cash purchase but at no premium if the 6⅞ per cent debenture is exchanged for the shares. Sale of the warrants and outright purchase of the common shares, which incidentally return 2 per cent in dividend income, would be more practical. Better still, if income is not vital, just hold the warrants which move in line with underlying common shares.

Corporate changes in recent months have attracted considerable speculation about Loews' future plans. Not only has the company sold its 20 per cent interest in Franklin New York Corp., a Long Island bank, for $40 million but it has also sold a candy company for $5.5 million. Other streamlining in the corporate structure includes the sale of three hotels, leasing of four others and the $16 million sale of a 48-unit theater chain. Shares of a 50 per cent-owned real-estate developer will be offered to the public at $21 per share.

Shareholders Will Ballot On Merger

Shareholders of the Bank of Marin will meet in special session on Aug. 29 to vote on a proposal to merge it with two other banks under a three-bank holding company called Independent Bankshares Corporation. The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at the Bank of Marin, 1108 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael.

A Bank of Marin spokesman said that combining the resources of the three banks gives the banks more flexibility in all areas of banking.

If the proposal is approved, the Bank of Marin, Bank of Sonoma County, and the First National Bank of Cloverdale would become banking subsidiaries of Independent Bankshares Corp. Shares of the three banks would be exchanged for shares of Independent Bankshares.

For each share now held, shareholders of Bank of Marin would get 1.63 shares of Independent Bankshares Corporation; shareholders of Bank of Sonoma County would get one for one; and shareholders of the First National Bank of Cloverdale would receive 2.75 shares.

Each bank will continue to maintain its own identity and management.

Surprise in Safest Automobile Color

Crocker Bank's August auto newsletter reports it is white.

These are findings of an extensive scientific test using a newly developed optometric instrument, called a color meter, and a number of "test persons" with certified "normal" eyesight.

The findings contradicted several previous tests which apparently were based more on emotional than scientific factors.

Market On Mixed Side At Final Bell

The market moved higher at the outset, carrying over the momentum from Friday's gain. But this petered out and the list turned mixed and lower after midsession. Analysts said there was no news in the background to spark much action.

Some said investors are concerned about the White House pressure on the auto industry not to raise 1973 prices. The industry generally has compromised but a stalemate looms, analysts said.

Department store issues generally were lower most of the day. Losers included S. S. Kresge, Sears-Roebuck, J. C. Penney, Mays Department Stores and Federated Department Stores.

Gold mining issues were lower from the outset, bucking the early market trend. On the easier side were American-South African, Campbell Red Lake and Dome Mines.

Sharp Rise Reported For Chrysler Sales

DETROIT — (BW) — Chrysler Corp. reported Tuesday record sales of 35,880 new passenger cars during the first selling period of August, a 38 per cent increase over the 25,988 units delivered by dealers in the comparable period a year ago and the highest volume for the period since the like period in 1968 when sales reached 35,182 units.

The daily selling rate of 3,987 in the period compared with 3,249 in the like 10-day period in 1971, an increase of 23 per cent.
